WHY COLLEGE GIRLS STEAL

Two University of Oregon girls have pleaded guilty to shoplifting and have paid fines of $100 each, or their parents have paid the fines for them.

Of course the girls will be more severely punished by the odium that will attach to them because of the crime they committed. The length to which they went to satisfy feminine vanity is going to be an expensive and embarrassing lesson.

The writer did not hear the testimony in court, nor does he know of the circumstances that led up to the committing of theft by two girls whose parents evidently were not of the poorer class.

As near as we can judge from reading between the lines, the parents, although providing well, could have provided more than they did but thought they were giving their girls all that it was good for them to have. These girls, seeing clothes equal to theirs worn by those whose parents were less able to afford them, or not having what they thought in their position they should have, took to shoplifting to supply what parents thought it not well to supply.

As near as we are able to judge, these girls had wardrobes of a dozen or two dresses, which may not be much considering what little there is in a dress these days, but considering the little that a girl cares to wear at one time, such wardrobes should have been sufficient.

The girls could not see it that way, however. They were itched by the fact that their parents were not willing to give up more pleasures in order that their daughters might have all they wished, or because they wished to save a little day by day to provide against the day when they will not be able to work and save, at which time little can be expected of daughters who are willing in their younger days to let parents give their all to satisfy the vanity of such daughters.

It is possible that we have not sensed the exact condition, but if we have not we have described the situation so far as many college girls and many parents of college girls are concerned.

In these jazzy razzzy days the jazzy razzzy college girl can not take the place that she feels that she ought to take with less than $50 a month to spend for clothes and pleasures. Such girls make it mighty hard for the girl who is earning part or all of her way through college, or whose total resources for a college education are about equal to what the jazzy razzzy girl must have for clothes and pleasures alone.

Education in our institutions of higher learning has been made almost impossible for the child of parents of moderate income, unless that child is willing and able to earn all or part of his or her way, and all because of clothes, clothes, clothes, razz and jazz.

Not knowing all the circumstances, the writer does not severely criticize these two youthful victims of a social condition that is as much to be blamed as the poor things that pamper their vanity even to the extent of stealing what they feel their parents ought to be able to provide them, of stealing the things which they feel that their parents should have made arrangements to provide.

Nor are these two girls any more guilty of stealing than are the boys and girls who fiddle away their time and leave college with little to show for the many thousands of dollars expended upon them by the state and by parents.

Volume I, number 1 of the Buyer's Guide, new Cottage Grove newspaper, was issued yesterday. It is a neat little publication for free distribution and the Enterprise Printing company, the publisher, states that there is no intention to put The Sentinel out of business. The Sentinel extends the fraternal hand and wishes the hebdomadal youngster all the good luck it consistently can. Possibly we should explain that "hebdomadal" is not a swear word and merely indicates something happens every seven days.

A bride is given away by her father or some relative, but the groom needs no such attention. His fidelity, irritated, embarrassed, I wonder whether I'm getting soaked appearance gives him away.

A boy won the recent Charleston contest in Eugene. The next we hear of him he probably will have won most of the wrestling championships.

A man should live close to his family, but should not be too close with them.

Some "Old Time Stuff."
The stage coach is a great and unpretentious accommodation. It is a cheap substitute for keeping a carriage or a horse; and we really think in spite of its gossiping, is no mean help to village liberality; for its passengers are so mixed, often varied, so little yet so much together, so compelled to accommodate, so willing to pass a short time pleasantly, and so liable to the criticism of strangers, that it is hard if they do not get a habit of speaking, or even thinking more kindly of one another than if they mingled less often or under other circumstances. (From Leigh Hunt's "Indicator," 1883.)

Watchcase Vanities of Cara Nome Powder and Rouge

Are the last word in convenience for the handbag or purse—likewise in beauty.

A real mirror, generous contents, a dainty lamb's wool puff, non-tarnishing case, a chic design, a catch that holds firmly, yet easy to open at your wish.

Altogether a vanity in which you may take genuine pride!

KEM'S FOR DRUGS

C. J. KEM, Prop.
COTTAGE GROVE, OREGON

DEFINITIONS OF BOOZE.

(Eugene Register.)

The other day some judge ruled that the man who has drunk intoxicating liquor can not be convicted of illegal possession of it. All of which was paradoxical enough to provide the newspaper humorists of Oregon with a subject.

C. E. Ingalls, of the Corvallis Gazette-Times, promptly opined that the decision was legal enough because, he averred, the stomach was manifestly an innocent purchaser and therefore could not be held for the crime.

Elbert Bede, of the Cottage Grove Sentinel, took another tack, and proclaimed that while the man maybe couldn't be convicted of illegal possession of liquor he could be held for carrying a concealed and dangerous weapon.

That ought to be good law. The average brand of moonshine is dangerous enough, although it might be argued that it can't be concealed from anyone with a fair sense of smell.

No doubt, though the judge was right about it in the first place. A man can't be convicted of illegal possession of liquor in his stomach because the average brand of liquor that is put in the stomach these days doesn't stay there long enough to be counted.

It turns right around and comes up again. At least, there is evidence to that effect in various dark alleys.

A MOTHER APPROVES.

Cottage Grove, Ore., Feb. 24.—(To the Editor.)—I want to thank you for your editorial, "How about Your Boy?" I think it was fine and I had my two boys read it and I tried to show them the lessons it contained. People in general are inclined to make a difference, but God makes no difference between the purity of our boys and of our girls. A MOTHER.

A Peculiar World.

A peculiar world this and a queer one when one thinks about it, says an exchange. On is struggling for justice, another fleeing from it. One man is saving money to build a house, and another is spending all he can make taking his girl to the theater and sending flowers with the hope of soon making her his wife, while his neighbor is spending all he earns trying to get a divorce. One man bemoans the fate that compels him to work at his desk indoors, while one who is outdoors thinks he would be happy if his work were inside. The man who is in business hopes for the time when he can retire, while another is struggling to get into business. The farmer hopes for the time when he can give up the farm and move into town, while every man in town dreams of the time to come when he can own a farm with a big bell at the kitchen door and plenty of healthy outdoor work to do. KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Home-Made Candies

THIS is the time of the year when a box of good candy is appreciated. The following are a few worth trying:

Butterscotch.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of molasses, one cupful of butter and cook until the mixture forms a hard crack in cold water. Put one cupful of chopped peanuts in the bottom of a well-buttered dripping pan and pour over the boiling hot syrup. When cool mark into squares and break apart.
Ornity Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of corn syrup, one-third cupful of water, boil without stirring until it forms a brittle ball in cold water. Pour the hot syrup over two well-beaten egg whites and one-half cupful of seedless raisins, one-half cupful of chopped walnuts and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into a greased pan and when cool cut into squares.

Raisin Fudge.—Put one-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of sugar, one square of unsweetened chocolate in a pan and cook without stirring until the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Remove from the fire, add a tablespoonful of butter, and cool. Then add one-half cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful of vanilla and beat until the mixture is creamy. Pour into buttered pan and mark into squares as soon as it is cool enough.

Chocolate Delight.—Break one pound of chocolate into the top of a double boiler, melt, and add two unbeaten eggs, stir until combined. Add one cupful of blanched almonds, sliced thin and beat well, turn on a buttered plate and mold into one large ball. When partly chilled form into small balls and roll them in sifted powdered sugar.
Peanut Brittle.—Shell a quart of peanuts, remove the brown skins and roll or chop, not too fine. Put one pound of sugar into a perfectly smooth omelet pan, place over the fire and stir constantly until melted to a syrup; add the nuts with one-fourth teaspoonful of soda and pour into a well-buttered dripping pan. Break into pieces when cold. (© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Little Miss Betty Marie Cone was a charming hostess Friday afternoon when she entertained a group of friends in honor of her third birthday anniversary. As the small children could not come unchaperoned, the hostess' mother, Mrs. Clarence Cone, invited the members of the Ad Libitum club to come, each to bring a little guest. The guests were received by Betty Marie, who was dressed becomingly in peach voile trimmed with white lace. Invited guests were Margaret and Phyllis Monson, Marcia Brund, Lois Bechhold (of Klamath Falls), Dorris Core, Duane Harvey and Billy, Elmer and Wendell Cone. Games were the afternoon's entertainment. Dainty refreshments were served. A huge pink and white birthday cake with three lighted candles formed the centerpiece for the table. Decorations and refreshments were in keeping with the colonial idea. Each little guest received a kewpie doll as a favor.

Mrs. Roy Short, Mrs. Fred Anderson, Mrs. W. H. Daugherty, Mrs. G. A. Sanders, Mrs. William Hall and Mrs. A. C. Jewell were hostesses to the Tanglefoot club at a dance Tuesday evening in Phillips hall. The women wore aprons and the men overalls and hard times costumes. The guests were received by the hostesses, who were dressed in quaint Dutch costumes. The hall had been transformed into a picturesque Holland garden with tulips blooming here and there. The lights were shaded with orange crepe paper on which were designs of Holland scenes. Punch was served from an old fashioned Dutch wind mill.

Mrs. Schofield Stewart, Mrs. Charles Jackson, Mrs. Bert Trask, Mrs. J. W. Craig, Mrs. George Matthews and Mrs. H. A. Miller motored to Eugene Tuesday and were guests of the missionary society of the Presbyterian church. The meeting was held at the manse and was an all day session. The program consisted of a review of the missionary book, "Pensant Pioneers." A delicious luncheon was served by the Eugene society. Delegations from several cities in this district attended.

Mrs. Harry Hart, Mrs. Herbert Breedlove, Mrs. E. E. Cone and Mrs. D. A. Forbes were hostesses Wednesday afternoon to the ladies' aid of the Methodist church in the church parlors. Devotionals were led by Mrs. Crow. The organization decided to hold a towel shower for the W. C. T. U. children's home at Corvallis. The rooms were attractively decorated with daffodils. A two-course luncheon was served.

The Research club was entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. C. Bosley. "The House of Mirth" by Edith Wharton was the book discussed and Mrs. D. A. Forbes was program leader. Miss Mozelle Hair of the University of Oregon gave an illustrated lecture on New York city. She showed slides of various scenes there and told of her experiences there.

The Tuesday Bridge club was entertained by Mrs. Raymond Grube at a 1 o'clock luncheon Tuesday afternoon. Additional guests were Mrs. Fred Peters and Mrs. E. A. Lewis of Eugene and Mrs. N. J. Nelson Jr. The rooms were attractively decorated with daffodils and sweet peas. A bouquet of these formed the table centerpiece. Mrs. R. L. Stewart won the club prize at bridge and Mrs. Peters the guest prize.

New members of the American Legion auxiliary and the winning side in the membership drive were entertained by the losers Monday evening at a dinner given in I. O. O. F. hall. Daffodils were used as table decorations. Mrs. C. E. Garat was presented with the quilt recently made by the auxiliary.

Mrs. George Knowles and Mrs. James P. Graham were joint hostesses Monday afternoon to the O. L. H. club at the home of Mrs. Knowles. The decorations and the luncheon were of a patriotic nature in keeping with Washington's birthday. Bridge was the diversion for the afternoon. Mrs. D. H. Hemmaway held high score.

Mrs. C. A. Stevens entertained Tuesday evening with a miscellaneous shower, honoring her daughter, Mrs. Stephen H. Edwards, a recent bride. About 20 guests were present. The rooms were artistically decorated with wild flowers, ferns and potted plants. Delicious refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Hayes entertained with a dinner party Monday evening. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Godard, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Richmond and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Umphrey. A bright bowl of jonquils was attractive as a centerpiece.

Get both the girl and the wedding invitations at home. The quality is better and usually the cost more reasonable. xx

"The college graduate," said President Hibben of Princeton at a tea, "sets out from college to conquer the world. Yes, he sets out with a very big opinion of himself, but the poor fellow soon gets taken down. A college graduate, the day after commencement, swagged into a bank and asked to see the president. He was told to wait in an anteroom where a small boy was chewing gum. 'Boy,' he said after a bit, 'do you know if there's an opening in this bank for a college graduate?' The boy, chewing grimly, answered: 'Dere will be if dey don't slip de extra five-spot wot I'm askin' fur in me next pay envelope'."
