How Hans Andersen Wove Fairy Dreams

Hans Andersen, whose fairy stories have brought happiness to thousands of children, was a stickler for form. So states Mrs. Marie Busch, who was a general servant to the author and the two spinners, the Misses Ballin, who shared a home with him.

"Andersen was very particular," she said. "He insisted upon my addressing him in the third person with the title conferred upon him by the king—Konferentsraad. This was a much-coveted title given to retired cabinet ministers and merchant princes, but never before to a mere poet."

The story teller also had his meals at a specified time in a certain way and when he read his newest work to the Misses Ballin and Mrs. Busch they had to stop their needlework. No matter where Mrs. Busch went outdoors, she had to wear a coat and when Andersen gave her tickets to the theater he also presented her with a pair of white gloves.

"All nice people," he remarked, "wear white gloves to the theater." Andersen had a soft touch upon which he weaved his tales of the fairies. "He was a tall and painfully spare man," Mrs. Busch said. "He could only find rest on a bed made up of soft pillows."

Yellow Fever Halted Revolution of 1793

John Adams wrote Thomas Jefferson that only the yellow fever in Philadelphia saved the nation from a revolution in 1793. Ten thousand people in the streets of Philadelphia day after day threatened to drag Washington from his house. The coolest and firmest minds, even among the Quakers of Philadelphia, have given their opinion that nothing but yellow fever could have saved the United States.

Philadelphia was the capital when that riot surged through Market street, ready to rend President Washington and Vice President Adams.

The very last sentence in any letter of a long correspondence between Adams and Jefferson was this penned by the former about two months before that Fourth of July, 1826, when both died:

"Our American chivalry is the worst in the world—it has no laws, no grounds, no definitions."—Detroit News.

Word of Grecian Origin

The word "Ichthys" is Greek, and means fish. It was frequently used as a symbol of Christ by the early Christians, because its letters form the initials of Christ's name and titles as the Son of God and Savior. The word is found on ancient seals, rings, lamps and tombs, and came into general use in the Fourth century. It is said that Apollonius, bishop of Miletus, was the first to construct the acrostic from which the symbol derived. Baptismal fonts were often ornamented with the figure of a fish, several of which may be found in French cathedrals at the present day. Augustine says that "ichthys" is the mystical name of Christ, "because he descended alive into the depths of this mortal life, into the abyss of waters." Julius Africanus speaks of Christ as "the great fish taken by the fishhook of God, and whose flesh nourishes the whole world."—Exchange.

Notaries Public

The following are regulations for the appointment of notaries public which hold good practically over the United States: A citizen of the state, over twenty-one years of age, and a resident of the county in which he or she desires to be appointed, may be appointed a notary public for such county by making application to the governor in writing, indorsed by some member of the legislature, circuit or probate judge of the county, district or circuit in which the applicant is a resident. A bond must be filed with the county clerk in the sum of $1,000. In the District of Columbia notaries public are appointed by the President of the United States. Application should be made through the office of the President, addressed to the secretary of the President.

Fish's Great Vitality

Messrs. de Beer and Huxley have conducted a series of experiments on the vitality of the jellyfish. They found that the common jellyfish, Aurelia aurita, could be kept alive without food in a laboratory aquarium for as much as 38 days, living at the expense of its own tissues. During that period it underwent a progressive decrease in size. The bell began to shrink first, the oral arms later, the tentacles and thread-like structures disappeared, and the gastrovascular cavity closed up. The bell continued its pulsations until an advanced stage of the process had been reached.

Nuts Classed as Fruits

In botany the fruit of a flowering plant is the matured seed vessel, and its contents together with such accessory parts as become finally incorporated with them. Thus in a botanical sense not only apples, grapes, etc., but all berries, nuts, grains, beans, pumpkins, cucumbers, etc., are fruits. Popular usage has become much narrower. The grains have been dropped, and the tendency is to drop nuts also, so that a fruit is now generally understood to be the fleshy, juicy product of some plant which when ripe is edible without cooking and adapted to use as a dessert.

Then They Parted

"A little bird told me what kind of a lawyer your father was."
"What did he say?"
"Cheep, cheep."
"Well, a duck told me what kind of a doctor your father was."—Cornell Widow.

Alfred E. Clark Of Portland

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for United States Senator

Read a few of many unsolicited press comments—

THE PORTLAND DAILY NEWS, speaking of the Senatorial candidates, said:

"If we were entirely business-like in the conduct of our public affairs, intent only upon getting the best man available for the money, there is no doubt whom we would employ."

"We would employ a man of proved achievement, proved honesty, proved fearlessness and trustworthiness. We would employ a big man."

"And that man is Alfred E. Clark of Portland."

THE TOLEDO LEADER: "Mr. Clark is a man who has had a world of experience, has the age, the dignity and the ability to represent the people of this great state in the national law making body as they should be represented."

EASTERN CLACKAMAS NEWS: "There are few men in the state who are as well qualified for Senator as Mr. Clark."

THE CONDON TIMES: His (Mr. Clark's) knowledge of public affairs, his prominence as a lawyer and his reputation as a man of high character should the people desire to send him to Washington.
