THOSE HE WORKS FOR TURN
ON PIERCE.

Jefferson Myers and Johnson Smith are officers of the Tammany Club of Oregon. Both are former state officers by appointment of Governor Pierce. One of the planks of the platform of the club is: "We favor the modification of the Volstead act in reason and as human necessity requires; we are not in favor of stool pigeons and ex-convicts attempting to enforce the prohibition laws, or any laws."

The Sentinel believes that Pierce honestly and sincerely believes in prohibition. The Sentinel believes that it is his earnest desire to enforce the prohibition laws.

Yet here are two former state officers, who owed the honor to appointment by the prohibition governor, who do not hesitate to subscribe to modification of the Volstead act, "in reason and as human necessity requires," whatever that means.

Not only are these gentlemen not satisfied with thus affronting the governor under whom they held office but they take another slap at him by the reference to ex-convicts and stool pigeons as law enforcing officers. On top of this comes condemnation by the ministerial association of Portland of the methods employed to enforce prohibition in Portland.

It seems inconsistent that a governor who sincerely believes in prohibition should be subjected to this humiliation, but Pierce just naturally doesn't seem to be able to touch anything of importance, no matter how sincerely he believes in it, without making a mess of it. There is of course the possibility that the Tammany club, which objects to stool pigeons, may wish to furnish the governor with officers to enforce prohibition, "in reason and as human necessity requires."

Of all the schemes to increase taxation and to tempt us to cease working to provide money for the state coffers, the proposed old age pension measure has them all backed off into the briny deep.

The ordinary woman's vocabulary consists of about 400 words—but some surprising results are obtained by intensive cultivation.

Both Eugene papers are to have comic supplements. Aren't they funny enough now?

There is a big difference in the way different people say the same thing.

Your sins will find you out if you run for office.

Primary Election Tomorrow. Tomorrow is the date of the primary election. The greatest interest has been among candidates, but the onslaught of campaign committees have awakened voters during the past week or so and the chances are that there will be the usual 50 per cent vote. Polling places in the city are as follows: First precinct, armory; second precinct, Cottage hotel; third precinct, city hall; fourth precinct, Harvey residence; fifth precinct, Cooper house, corner Tenth street and Adams avenue.

Church to Hold Quarterly Meeting. A quarterly meeting of the Free Methodist church of the Roseburg district will be held at the Blue Mountain church at 11 o'clock Sunday. Pastor W. E. Goode, district elder, will be in charge.

Animals and Insects

Prepare for Winter

Ants, bees, wasps, flies and many other insects protect themselves during the winter by securing food supplies and constructing retreats.

The wonderful work done by ants, bees, wasps, spiders, butterflies and worms has been studied by many naturalists and researchers have been charmingly described by Lubbock, Fabre, Maeterlinck and other able writers. The underground apartments and terraced homes of the ants, their domestic life, social organization and thoughtful nature are among the great wonders of nature.

These extraordinarily intelligent insects not only store away an abundance of food for winter, but also they provide aphides to be milked and they cultivate fungi gardens and manufacture many food substances while passing the winter months underground.

Genius, individuality and temperament in animals enable them to solve all the problems of winter which they may at any time encounter. These vary in individuals of the same species. Among any group of young animals or birds or insects you may notice individuals varying in fear, timidity, curiosity, suspicion, sociability, aggressiveness and initiative. Hardly two will be found with similar characters and temperaments. They differ as widely as the members of a single human family. The strong and fearless members of any species give the leadership and develop the customs which enable them to meet the conditions of winter.

Cold Welcome Given

to Cargo of Bananas

John S. Mackintosh, who died in Washington recently, was for almost fifty years an exporter in Boston, operating a line of clipper ships. With every ship came some curiosity. One day a ship returned from Central America, and the master showed Mackintosh an elongated yellow fruit that grew in clusters.

Mackintosh regarded it warily; the ship was half-full of such cargo, and his Scotch prudence was aroused. Even after he had eaten one and pronounced it delicious, he was not certain they could be sold. "What do you call them?" he inquired of the skipper.

"The natives call them bananas," the sailor answered. Mackintosh put them up for sale, and a few curiosity seekers bought a bunch or so. He harvested their quality and tried to impress upon the Bostonians the deliciousness of the fruit. But his venture failed.

Churches in Business

An old Jewish synagogue in Maiden lane, London, is now used as a theater for rehearsals, and a Methodist chapel in Southwark, where Wesley preached, is used as a paper warehouse. The famous Surrey chapel, where Rowland Hill preached, is today the great boxing rendezvous known as the Ring. At Willesden an old chapel has been converted into a draper's establishment, the pulpit being used as the cash desk; another, in the Hampstead road, has been turned into a picture palace.

The Union Jack club, opposite Waterloo station, stands on the site of a Methodist chapel which had lost its worshippers, while St. Andrew's, Tavistock place, was once a fashionable church, but has been in turn a cycle store and a club—London Answers.

Men of Great Strength

It is difficult to compare strong men. Each has his own special tests, at which he is superior to the rest. A recent newspaper article stated that unquestionably the strongest man of modern times was Louis Cyr of Canada, who was considerably stronger than Sandow. Breitbart, who died in October, 1925, is said to have come nearer emulating Sandow than any of the latter's many imitators. Certain strong men excelled Sandow in specific feats. For instance, Arthur Saxon was the best lifter of weights ever produced. Steinbach, Inch, Ashton, Travis, Roland and Lurich each had some unusual performance to his credit.

Finest of All Oils

Watchmakers' oil, the finest of its kind in the world, is obtained from the jaws of the porpoise by the Passamaquoddy Indians, who live on the coast of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Maine. The jaws are hung up in the sun, and the oil as it drips from them is caught in cans, placed below. Only about half a pint comes from each jaw. The oil commands high prices, and in late years it has become so expensive that its use in the delicate machinery of lighthouses has been abandoned.

Live on Camels

The Tuaregs, found over a large area in northern Africa, are nomads who live principally by means of, and on, camels. Tuareg women are as free as women in Britain. They go about unveiled, while the men are always veiled. The women choose their own husbands, and teach the children to read and write. They can own property, even after marriage, and their husbands have no control over it. Caste and authority are inherited through the mother.

His Little Joke

During the day, while moving the tall clock, Hubby, coming in late, remarked: "I thought this clock was at the head of the stairs." And he went on: "Oh, I see. It has run down."

Symptoms of Revolt

There is no reason why you should buy something for which you have no use because the young man trying to sell it was a college education—Toledo Blade.
