Disease Epidemics Not Rare Among Canaries

That even canary birds are not immune from the ravages of disease epidemics is shown by a report from experts of the New Jersey experiment station, published in the Journal of Bacteriology.

The first outbreak of the epidemic occurred among canary birds in a bird store in New Brunswick, N. J., where a stock of 200 birds became badly infected. The total loss in this store alone was about 70 birds, or a mortality of 35 per cent. Another private breeder lost 25 out of a stock of 30 birds. Many other owners were losing birds from the disease in the same period.

The canary bird fanciers had never known of a disease which caused such a death rate, spread so rapidly and seemed to affect both young and old birds. Nine of the birds which had died from the disease were therefore brought to the laboratory, where post-mortem examinations were made.

By means of a small glass tube a sample of blood was drawn from the heart of each of the nine birds and cultures made from these samples revealed in each case the presence of a bacteria of the paratyphoid group. The source of the infection could not be traced.

Common Legal Terms

Derived From Latin

The words council and councillor are derived from the Latin "concilium," "con" or "cum," together, and "salo," call. A council is a body called together, and it has come to mean such a body as a legislative council or a city council. A member of the body is a councillor, usually spelled in the United States councilor.

The word counsel is from the Latin "consilium," to consult. The verb to counsel means to give advice or counsel. The noun, counsel, has several meanings. There is counsel, the advice given, and then counsel is used to mean an adviser belonging to the legal profession, and in this sense it is either singular or plural—plaintiff's counsel may mean one lawyer or several. This title is given to lawyers specially commissioned to represent the crown, hence called king's counsel, but this distinction is now also conferred by the government on prominent members of the legal profession without regard to service for the crown. Counselor practically means the same, that is, one who gives counsel. The English form of the word is counselor, the United States is counselor. In Canada the English spelling is always used.—Montreal Family Herald.

Food Preservation

The Canning Trade says that the first canning in the state of Maryland was apparently done by Thomas Kensett some time between 1820 and 1830. There is definite evidence that he canned oysters in Baltimore city in 1841, which is possibly the earliest definite date. Previous to this William Underwood is supposed to have preserved foods in glass jars at Boston about 1820. These two men are credited with having brought the science of canning to America from France and England, and it does not seem possible to advise definitely the exact dates on which they first produced canned food. Probably canned oysters were the first things of the strictly canned food line, because preserving in bottles, jars and otherwise is not canning.—Washington Star.

British House of Lords

The peers of England were summoned to consult with the sovereign in matters of state in very early times, but the earliest writ in existence dates from 1235, in the reign of Henry III. The house of lords consists of the temporal and spiritual peers of the realm, and is presided over by the lord chancellor of England. He is the keeper of the great seal, and acts as speaker of the house on formal occasions.

The house of lords is the court of final appeal for all parts of the kingdom, and exercises original jurisdiction in trials of its members for treason or felony, and in cases of impeachment brought by the house of commons.—Exchange.

Odd Name Combinations

The following compilation shows the curious, and even ludicrous, results of including family names with the baptismal ones. Sponsors who read this little list would do well to hesitate when they are requested to "name the child": Edna Brooker; Motherhead; Martin English; Sawyer Turner; Somerset; Nealon Pray Daily; Benton Killin Savage; Owen Taylor Money; Ima Little Lamb; Broker Husband Hart; R. U. Phelan Goode; Marie A. Bachelor; Eaton Grove Phatte; May Tymus Uppe; Betty Sawyer; Knott Worth Reading.

Colored Musical Genius

"Blind Tom" was the name given to Thomas Greene Bethune. He was born blind and a slave near Columbus, Ga., on May 5, 1849. He exhibited unusual musical talent before he was two years old, and played the piano when he was four. He was able to imitate birds, rain, thunder, etc., and could immediately play any selection after hearing it once. He appeared in his first concert when he was eight years old, and traveled extensively through America and Europe. He died July 3, 1905.
