Ismael-Shay.
Miss Marjorie Evelyn Shay became the bride of W. Earl Ismael Tuesday evening at a pretty wedding at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Shay. Pastor Duncan P. Cameron of the Presbyterian church read the service. The bride formerly taught in the local schools and has taught recently in Roseburg. Mr. Ismael is an employee of the Southern Pacific in Portland. After a wedding trip through Washington they will make their home in Portland.

Mrs. Earl Garoutte and Mrs. W. A. Garoutte entertained with a bridge party Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. A. Garoutte, honoring Mrs. W. A. Garoutte's sister, Mrs. Harold Dugan of Manteca, Calif. Guests were Mrs. Jack Callahan of Portland, Mrs. Charles Bussey, Mrs. G. A. Sanders, Mrs. L. E. Liston, Mrs. Victor Chambers, Mrs. Merville Veatch, Mrs. H. A. Hagen, Mrs. P. C. LaCasse, Mrs. Ivan Barker, Mrs. E. W. Frans and Mrs. Fred Anderson. Three tables of bridge were formed. A luncheon was served at the Gray Goose.

Mrs. Ivan Barker entertained last Thursday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Joe Galdibini, at Anlauf for the Elmarites club. Additional guests were Mrs. Floy Hopper, Mrs. Robert Thomas, Mrs. W. A. Garoutte and Mrs. Harold Dugan. Mrs. Harold Dugan is of Manteca, Calif., and a former club member. The table centerpiece was an artistic piece of nasturtiums. A dainty luncheon was served. The hostess was assisted by her sisters, Miss Josephine and Miss Pauline Galdibini.

Mrs. John McCall entertained Wednesday evening with a hayseed party for several of her nieces. Guests were Miss Elizabeth Horton of Seattle, Miss Marguerite Carlile, Miss Genevieve Woodard and Miss Grace Alice Carlile. The guests loaded hay in the afternoon and held a slumber party in the barn that evening. Home made ice cream and home made bread and butter were the refreshments.

T. J. Hanna was honor guest Sunday at a party given at his home in celebration of his seventy-fifth birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Willard and son Dale of Roseburg, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Wise of Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hanna, Mrs. Beulah Rentele and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hanna of this city.

The Social Twelve club will meet this afternoon at Boswell Springs, each member to take a guest. A luncheon will be served at the hotel and a special entertainment will be given. Mrs. B. R. Job is in charge of the entertainment.

Mrs. C. F. Hoskins entertained Monday with an informal evening of bridge, honoring her house guests, Mrs. J. E. Hosch and daughter Louise of Bend.

Just What He Deserved.
A would-be wit wished to display his brilliancy before two women with whom he was walking along the street. A police wagon was standing at the curb, and he remarked to the driver, "Got any room inside?" "Yes, for one," replied the driver. "We've kept it for you. Jump in." The wit, to show that he could not be outdone, retorted, "What's the fare?" "Bread and water—the same as you had last time," was the answer.

His Busy Day.
"Gosh! My eyes are tired to-night."
"Been using them pretty hard today?"
"I'll say. I watched a safe being hoisted to the tenth floor, a man fixing a tire, a sandlot ball game, a skywriter doing his stunt, another man getting his engine started, a couple of kids fighting, and the rest of the time the parade of silk hosiery going by."

Skunk's Combat With Crows Unequal Match

How one skunk staged a battle with a flock of crows and was worsted by them on a floating cake of ice in Weller river is told by a rancher living east of Weller, Idaho. His attention was attracted by the uproar of the crows and he watched the battle for some time, says the Milwaukee Journal.

The birds were apparently excited by the skunk's proximity. Occasionally a crow would lose control of itself and fall into the water and drown. As the ice floated nearer the battle grew in intensity. The crows were fierce in their attacks but the skunk was just as fierce, using not only his claws but also his poison gas equipment. He would dart his best weapon into the eyes of his assailants and there would be one less crow to combat. Gas supplies finally gave out and the unequal battle ended when several of the birds alighted on the ice and picked out the skunk's eyes. As the ice drifted out of sight the skunk was stretched feebly on his side, with the crows picking vigorously at him. The rancher counted more than a dozen dead crows in the stream.

Inkfish That Blinds Enemies With Light

A cuttlefish that confounds its enemies with light instead of darkness is the interesting creature described by Prof. E. Newton Harvey, student of what is popularly known as "cold light," who devoted eight months to research in the marine laboratories of Naples and Messina, Italy.

Ordinary squid or inkfish that live near the surface escape their pursuers by throwing out a cloud of black fluid, as a kind of submarine smoke screen. Professor Harvey explained. This abysmal form, which lives at depths of probably ten thousand feet, where no light ever penetrates, has only a rudimentary ink sac, which instead of the usual inky sepioid contains a luminous substance. When disturbed it discharges a jet of this luminous material and thus blinds its enemy with light instead of darkness.

Professor Harvey is of the opinion that this deep-sea squid is a descendant of surface-living animals, but that as it evolved in darkness it found that this reversal of its ancestral mode of defense was useful in insuring its survival.

Vanity Cost Job

In the old days in the West, when saloons, instead of being blind pigs, were saloons, a circus magician, down on his luck, obtained a job as bartender. One day a traveling conjurer visited the saloon where the magician was employed, and in exchange for a few drinks did a number of tricks. The proprietor was greatly impressed, and, after the conjurer left, remarked, "That was a clever fellow. His coin tricks were wonderful." The magician, who had said nothing of his true profession, but whose pride was now aroused, remarked, "I can do better myself." He thereupon took a dollar from his pocket, and made it disappear before the eyes of the proprietor. When he had recovered from his astonishment, the proprietor said, "You're too smart to handle, my money. You're fired."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Water That Burns

Powder river is a fitting name for the stream which passes through the northeastern section of Wyoming—it burns.

"Burning water" exists in several places on the river where natural gas is found bubbling up through water. Some bubbles will ignite when a match is applied.

During the winter peculiar formations are caused by the gas seeps. When the river is frozen over, gas accumulates under the ice and as the pressure gathers, it forces thin sprays of water through the weaker spots in the ice and these sprays freeze in curious formations of arches and low pillars. The gas does not make the water unpalatable for drinking. In Nevada there is a drinking fountain, the water of which can be set on fire at any time.

A Roughneck

Every real fellow I ever knew was, on occasion, something of a crank and roughneck. A real fellow will be agreeable until crowded; then if developed he has a punch. The reliable old house dog will play prettily with the children and never growl at them, but observe him some day when fed at the kitchen door. Let another dog approach, who is on the prowl and the old reliable will develop into a terror.

Note the captain of a ship. How agreeable he is to the passengers! How the ladies admire him. But in case of a panic or mutiny he is the worst roughneck on board.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

She Was Surprised

The schoolgirl was a very gentle, sweet creature. Her teacher always thought of her as most refined, as a girl who always spoke softly, and thought delicately. She was not a good student, neither was she a very poor one. Her marks were apt to be just below passing. Finally came a crucial test. The girl just passed it, but this result had not yet been given to her. Seeing her teacher alone at the desk at recess time, she stuck her head in the door to ask fearfully, "Did I pass?" "Yes, you did," said the teacher. "My gosh!" said the girl.—Springfield Union.

His Reward

Dick—Why don't you ask May to marry you, Ed?
Ed—I did.
"What did she say?"
"Oh, I have the refusal of her!"
—Brown Jug.
