

SOCIETY

Mrs. James P. Graham entertained Tuesday with an informal afternoon of bridge for the O. L. H. club. Miss Lulu Curran was an additional guest. Autumn leaves were attractive room decoration and dainty refreshments were served.

The Research club met Tuesday afternoon at the city library. Mrs. F. E. Mendenhall, who was program leader, gave an explanation of the following departments of state federation's general program: Public welfare, scholarship loan and endowment. Each member responded to roll call by stating what she considered the greatest need of the community. A round table discussion was held on the need stressed by the majority. Mrs. Van Osdel, who was leader of the current events number, discussed measures to come up at the November election which are of particular interest to women.

Mrs. D. H. Hemenway was hostess to the Tillieum club Wednesday evening at its first meeting of the fall. Additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dickson, Mrs. O. M. Miller and George Marksbury. Mrs. Charles VanDenBerg was elected president. Chrysanthemums were room decorations and a two-course luncheon was served.

Mrs. Schofield Stewart entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon Tuesday for the Tuesday Bridge club. Mrs. Sam Anderson was an additional guest and held high honors. Michaelmas daisies and narigolds were decorations. The club's next meeting will be with Mrs. Gaven Dyott in Eugene.

Mrs. Dale Hawkins entertained the Tounours Prote club Wednesday evening. Fancy work was the diversion and a two-course luncheon was served. The club will meet in three weeks with Mrs. R. L. Stewart.

Mrs. Charles Adams and Mrs. Omer Moore were program leaders at the meeting of the Tuesday Evening Study club held Tuesday evening in the city library.

The women's foreign missionary society of the Methodist church met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. F. J. Leonard. Mrs. F. F. Wells was program leader.

Mrs. Clara Burkholder is hostess this afternoon to the Social Twelve club.

DO OUR SCHOOLS MISS THE OLD BIRCH ROD?

Cottage Grove, Ore., Oct. 4.—(To the Editor.)—In the current issue of Scribner's Magazine there is a very able article on the growth of juvenile delinquency by Harlam C. Haines. In this article the writer voices his impatience with the science of teaching that would substitute naturalism, self-determination and appeal to the child's interest and indefinite psychological suggestion for the old fashioned birch rod or paddle.

This writer does not lay all of the blame for juvenile delinquency and waywardness at the door of the withdrawal of the sterner methods of discipline but his inferences are so plain that he who runs may read.

Mr. Haines suggests that under the modern method the aim of the school is to relate training to life, and as a consequence the life situation as the child may find it in later experience is introduced into the school room. Accepting the definition of modern education, the writer very poignantly asks, "How truly and how far does the system of self determination, naturalism, permitting the child for the most part to choose his own course, of adopting the very easiest way, really fit him for life?"

Most men and women of mature experience, looking back with their own lives behind them, will be able to tell of life's struggles and in what measure the present system is preparing our young folks to adequately cope with the great problems before them. No sane man today will suggest that success comes along the easiest pathway. If we in our training put only the pleasant things in the forefront, if we sent authority, ignore counsel, laugh at the guidance of experience, there is but one place we are leading our youth to, and that is to a life of delinquency and crime. Life isn't easy and the man or woman who says it is, he teaches or parent, is no friend to youth. Life is a well regulated existence and regulation means limitation.

The rules that we must follow to get successfully through life are not those that each man lays down for himself, but those well defined rules which are the product of experience and that are designed for the general good.

To most folks guide posts are necessary in order that they may keep within the straight and narrow path. Not only is a stage necessary in order that each may play his part well, but a well balanced instructor is essential in order that each may perform as he should.

To say as some do that school children, immature and inexperienced, are better off in this respect that their elders is to blind one's eyes to the facts and speak in terms of foolishness.

If school life is to be an expression and a preparation for that life that is to be lived, then it is very manifest that we cannot ignore what life is. We must admit that for most of us, indeed with but very few exceptions, life is very much of a lockstep affair. The individual who does not learn that as a child, has a tough time learning it as a grown up. Learn it he must or else become a derelict. Insofar as discipline and even coercion will teach the needed lesson, by all means let us have them. DUNCAN P. CAMERON.

Eugene People Visit Culp Creek.

Culp Creek, Oct. 4.—(Special.)—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Chambers and Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Snodgrass, prominent residents of Eugene, stopped here briefly Sunday. The men, who had not visited the Row river valley for 30 years, expressed wonder at its development in recent years. They did not wonder that its natural beauty drew Buster Keaton here for the filming of the biggest picture he has ever made.
