MAVERICK BOB.

When Bob Stanfield jumped the republican reservation he lost his right to claim any party label. His action may do much to wreck the party which has so highly honored him, and his claim to being an independent republican is likely to avail him little should he be returned to Washington, which does not seem at all likely. We believe it will be either Steiwer or Haney. Should it be Haney, Stanfield alone will be to blame, should his votes combined with Steiwer's be greater than those given Haney, which is certain to be the case.

The excuse for his candidacy given by Stanfield that Steiwer couldn't be elected, is a fatuous one. Steiwer is a strong candidate, and if Bob is third in the race, as seems likely, there is the strong probability that Steiwer not only could have been elected but that he will be elected.

Stanfield's claim that he did not receive fair treatment in the primaries is not based upon any more solid grounds than Steiwer could have had for an independent candidacy had he been defeated and Bob's excuse is not nearly as good as one as many defeated candidates have had in the past.

And supposing that all Stanfield has claimed is true, which it is not, when in the history of the world have two wrongs ever made a right?

Stanfield is being flattered by the democratic Oregon Journal, which not only discovered Steiwer ahead of the Oregonian, but also egged Stanfield into the fight. Sometime when we feel that we can stand the odor we may print a few of the things that the proud upright and holier-than-all-the-rest democratic daily would have said about Bob had he been the only candidate against Haney.

Not only is it not at all certain that Stanfield will retain any of his committee positions should he be returned to Washington, but should his candidacy result in the election of a democrat and give control of the senate to the democrats, all western republican senators, including our own Senator McNary, would lose their important committee positions and these would go to the democratic south.

Those who wish their own state well and who believe in the principles of the republican party, will vote for Frederick Steiwer, the republican nominee.

PATTERSON NOT TO DEBATE.

Governor Pierce has issued an other challenge to I. L. Patterson, the republican nominee for governor, to debate the issues of the campaign. It may be good business for Walter to issue such challenges, and it certainly is political expediency on the part of Nominee Patterson not to be drawn into a forensic encounter in which he could not hope to appear to advantage. Anyway Oregon has arrived at the point where it has decided that it does not want a debater for governor. It wants a governor with sufficient confidence in his own judgment to act, and that, promptly, without waiting to discuss problems before the singing societies and ladies' aid societies of the state. We have had plenty of the latter kind of government to satisfy us for a long, long time.

State Treasurer Kay is borrowing money to pay state warrants. Paying interest on state indebtedness is a poor way of reducing taxes.

Possibly we old grouches should encourage the women in the use of paint, to keep some of them from going half naked.

It would be well if the laws on the statute books were as fully understood as the unwritten ones.

The person who really gets the most out of life has something that can not be stolen or borrowed.

The man who is always on the right side isn't doing anything to solve the problems of the day.

The folks with the biggest theories quite often amount to the least.

There are some things which it is worth while to forget.

Love and whisky rob men and women of their brains.

What's a Name For.

A man rushed into an old furniture store.

"What do you want?" asked the proprietor.

"Is this a second-hand store?" asked the man.

"Can't you see it's a second-hand store?"

"Well, I want a second hand for my watch."

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

Samoan Native Still

Believes in Old Oath

White men who introduced the system of plotting land and the surveyor's methods of denoting boundaries, brought with them to Samoa the white man's method of administering oaths.

So, officially, the native Samoan places his hand upon the Holy Bible to swear that title to a certain piece of land belongs to him. But those who have lived there long know that, at heart, the native does not have the degree of fear when an oath is taken upon a Bible that he had for the old Samoan oath. Where grave issues are at stake he is apt to discard the modern form for the old one.

While the old manner varied in the different villages the common rite was to take a bunch of grass and lay it on a stone or other object that represented the family or village god.

The contesting parties would say with hand resting on the grass, "In the presence of this whole assembly, I lay my hand on the grass. If I have declared falsely may I suddenly die."

It often happened that one making a false oath would be seized with superstitious fear that would overcome him or cause him to confess.

The meaning of the grass was that, should the oath be false, he and his entire family would be exterminated from the face of the earth and their habitation covered th grass.

Sudden Jungle Quiet

as Night Approaches

There is some noise in the jungle all day long, according to African travelers, but just at nightfall it becomes oppressively quiet. Not a sound is to be heard for a while, but this does not last long, for all of a sudden there are many noises to be heard that were not expected during the day.

Jacksals begin to yelp and hyenas to howl, immediately followed by hundreds of other lesser denizens of the jungle. These noises keep up all night, approaching at times and then receding, so that the camper is kept at qui vive all the time, not knowing when some animal will poke its nose into his presence.

Every other noise sinks into insignificance at the roar of the lion, which seems to shatter the atmosphere.—Chicago Journal.

Old City of London

In the early days of London, the houses of nobles and peasants were built side by side, but in later centuries a species of segregation went on that led to the main divisions of West end, City and East end. Yet even now, tucked away in the most fashionable parts, are to be found clusters of the poorest. The liability to fogs is believed to have led to the earliest enactment in the matter of smoke abatement and in 1805, on the petition of the citizens, the burning of sea coal was made a capital offense, says the Vancouver Province. Not long afterward the first serious labor trouble came to a head in the revolt of Wat Tyler. London was occupied by farm workers and the court took to the Tower. In those days agriculture was the chief industry, so the result might well be termed a general strike.

Niagara Falls Receding

Besides being the source of tremendous amounts of power, Niagara falls is a sort of gigantic clock by which scientists estimate time. From repeated annual measurements it has been found that the cataract is cutting back at the rate of two feet a year, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. At this rate, it has taken it at least 30,000 years to recede from its original site at Queenstown, 80,000 feet from the present location. Another check on time is afforded at the Mississippi delta. By measuring the sediment in a quart of water at different seasons of the year and figuring the total volume, an estimate is made possible as to how fast the land is wearing away.

Electricity for Belts

Electricity has now been called into use in experiments to give loose belts a firm grip on the pulleys. Metal pulleys are coated with any smooth, hard and durable insulating substance, and the friction of the belt causes it to be charged with electricity on its inner surface. As the belt passes over the insulating coating, the metal of the pulley becomes charged by induction with electricity of the opposite pole, and strong attraction between belt and pulley is developed.

Hair Growth After Death

Scientists differ somewhat on this subject, but the weight of authority favors the view that the hair, including the beard, ceases to grow at death. Apparent growth of the hair and beard after death is explained by the shrinkage of the soft tissues around each individual hair, a natural result of the evaporation of the liquids of the muscles. Those scientists who believe that there are authentic cases of the hair actually growing after death say that such growth continues but a brief period.

Many Adverse Reasons

The editor had already that afternoon rejected the manuscripts brought by six poets, and consequently was not in a pleasant mood when the seventh of the breed of bards entered his office. "Here," said the versifier, handing a bulky manuscript to the editor, "is a poem that you cannot afford to ignore." The editor looked the verse over hurriedly. "Can't use it," he said abruptly. "Why not?" demanded the poet. "It's too long," the editor replied. "And besides, it's too wide and too thick."
