BORAH SAYS U. S. HAS PERFORMED ACT OF WAR

(Special to The Sentinel.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(United Press.)—The charge that the United States has engaged in armed intervention in Nicaragua has been made by Senator Borah, of the foreign relations committee. Commenting on the Borah charge, Senator Norris said that if the embargo on arms has been lifted for the conservative Diase government and has been maintained on the liberals, then the United States has participated in an act of war. The situation is daily becoming more strained.

Coloma, City of Gold, Pathetic in Its Ruin

Coloma is an unknown name today, but three-quarters of a century ago every American able to speak had it at his tongue's end. There that New Jersey adventurer, James Wilson Marshall, discovered gold in January, 1848, and started the rush of fortune seekers from all the world to California, a writer in the New York Sun recalls. Coloma grew quickly to a town of ten thousand inhabitants and boasted of all the luxuries that a pioneer could demand. A stranger wandering among the hills of El Dorado county recently rediscovered it. He found a country store and a post office in the midst of a cluster of deserted shops and houses. The mail carrier said that in the whole community there were scarcely a hundred and fifty persons. In the graveyard on the hillside was the only reminder of Coloma's fame, a memorial to Marshall, the bronze statue surmounting it pointing to the place of California's first gold discovery.

Coloma had dreams of magnificence in the early fifties. Coloma then had a dozen hotels, a street lined with stores, a hundred saloons, as many wide-open gambling places and dance halls, an express office, three schools, four churches and a jail. The shells of the dance halls, the saloons and the gambling places remain. The churches and schools passed generations ago. The jails that had housed the bad men, the killers and crooked gamblers long ago fell into ruins.

First Settlement in Oregon Was Astoria

The first permanent settlement in Oregon was founded at Astoria by agents of the Pacific Fur company, who arrived at the mouth of the Columbia river 115 years ago. The fur company was backed by John Jacob Astor, but the men engaged by him to invade the northwestern wilderness were Canadians, a majority being of Scotch descent.

The party left Montreal in a big canoe and made their way down the St. Lawrence, thence to the Hudson and New York, from which port they sailed on the ship Tonquin, which doubled Cape Horn and proceeded to Hawaii, sailing thence for the Columbia river. Arrived at the mouth of that mighty stream, they built a fort, calling it Astoria, which gradually developed into the town and city of that name.

Penny Not Worth While

At Times square a matinee crowd waited for the long-distance busses. Other crowds pushed by in a steady stream, yet above the traffic noises came the clink of a dropped coin. Those passing looked down, alert, curious, until a single penny whirled into sight, spun around and then topped to the sidewalk. No one picked it up. It was tramped on, pushed and started rolling again. Many looked, but none stopped until a chubby little fellow, holding tight to his mother's hand, spied it.

"Mother, mother!" he cried in excitement, "I see my penny! Stop—let me—let me pick it up!"

"Come, come," chided the mother, impatiently, as she jerked him along. "It's only a penny. Let it alone. You'll get your gloves dirty, dear."—New York Times.

Colonial Workmanship

The greatest quality in all Colonial work is dignity. In the houses of the rich and the houses of the poor there is apparent the same dignified scorn of ostentation and the same pride in honest building and honest living. Although it has been said that Colonial architecture is old-fashioned and belongs to a day that is past, this is no more true of Colonial design than of any other of the traditional styles. Furthermore, Colonial architecture seems out of date only because its progress was stopped by the Greek revival and the eighteen eighties. If it had continued to grow and develop, how much more lovely would our countryside be than it is now with its potpourri of all styles—including the Scandinavian!

By Inches

When Bobbie was six, he was given a real watch, which, regardless of quality or accuracy, had a loud tick.

Naturally the little fellow was very proud, and he would stroll up and down the street, stopping every moment or two to draw the timepiece from his pocket and regard it gravely.

Every passer-by smiled at Bobby's performance, but the climax came when his little cousin, Betty, tripped along and asked him the time.

Bobby regarded his watch perplexedly for a moment, and then replied with dignity, "Two inches to four!"

Asked for It

Said the teacher: "Now, boys, quadruped and biped, you know, are two kinds of animals. Quadruped, animal with four legs, such as cow, elephant and horse. Biped, animal with two legs, such as—well, ah— Yes, there is a biped"—pointing to a picture of a goose on the wall—"and I am a biped, and you are all bipeds. Now, what am I?"

A breathless pause, then one of the bipeds answered, "A goose, sir!"

Harsh Thing to Say

A man who has sailed around the world thirty times got married recently. Evidently he never thought of doubling on his tracks to avoid capture.—London Opinion.
