WRONG START FOR FUTURE CITIZENS.

Seven boys of the Cottage Grove high school recently formed a secret band and on several nights last week entered the high school building and marked desks and blackboards with the sign of the band.

As a result of the escapade, three boys have been suspended, one of them indefinitely and two of them for the remainder of the semester.

One of the boys, when questioned as to what the boys hoped to accomplish by the escapade, replied, "Oh, we just wanted to start a little excitement, and I guess we did." This lad regretted his action and was one of those who have made solemn vows that their department during the remainder of the school term shall be above reproach.

This writer is inclined to believe that the escapade of the boys was because of the irresponsibility of the generation that has reached its teens, because of its thoughtlessness of others, rather than because of viciousness, and this bears out what the Sentinel frequently has said: Children are not appreciative of the great amount of tax money that is being spent in order to make of them useful citizens, they are not appreciative of the sacrifices being made by parents to the end that their children may have advantages which the parents did not have; children are thoughtless of what the effect of their actions will be upon those who are nearest and dearest to them.

That this condition exists is not primarily the fault of the schools. Insubordination starts in the home. Children dislike to be ruled, but they are demonstrating every day that they are not yet fitted to assume the responsibility of guiding their own conduct. A firmer hand is needed in the home. When this firmer hand is applied there, the schools will be better able to do their part.

Because one of the boys suspended was a member of the basketball team, the other members of the team threatened to turn in their suits. That again illustrated the wrong slant the growing generation is getting upon its responsibilities; its lack of capability for assuming the responsibilities of life.

Thank goodness that when these boys were shown that they were throwing down their school, that they were throwing down their coach, that they were encouraging insubordination and disregard for law, they reconsidered and agreed to go ahead with the team regardless of what may happen to an individual member of that team.

There has been some criticism of the superintendent of schools, not so much because of the punishment meted out to the three boys that have been suspended as because of lack of punishment for the four others who were their partners in breaking into a school building and marking up the furniture and blackboards.

The school board is standing solid ly behind the superintendent and principal, which is exactly as it should be if discipline is to be maintained in our schools, if our schools are to be a place where citizens are made, instead of a hotbed for bolshevism.

The Sentinel will support the school board and superintendent to the utmost of its ability, but it does believe that every one of the boys should have had some severe punishment. The four who were let off easily were thus treated because they frankly admitted their guilt, agreed to disband their society and made a solemn pledge that their department henceforward shall be above reproach.

The superintendent used his best judgment, and the school board has endorsed his action. Nevertheless The Sentinel believes that the four who remain in school will not be properly dealt with unless parents provide some form of punishment for them. Parents should do that much to help the schools and to help crush in its incipency this serpent of youthful bolshevism.

A man without ambition is of little use to anyone for anything

Some folks are such blockheads that we wonder why they don't get splinters in their brains.

Few friends are so steadfast that they won't gossip about you behind your back.

It's a wise provision of nature that marriage changes the actions of young folks toward each other.

Under the Big Dome

(By Elbert Bede.)
STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Ore., Jan. 17.—A member or clerk of either house has to keep his eyes open to keep something from being put over on him. One of the most alert (optically) has made the observation that all the stenographers are reserved and modest. All wear bloomers and there is but one set of rolled socks. The observant one further observed that in not more than one case do bloomers and hosiery fail to cooperate.

C. M. Shinn, who lives in Portland but maintains his voting residence at Cottage Grove, where he once was part owner of the electric light system, is here for 40 days and many more nights. He is interested in watching legislation that might affect the bond and stock business.

Newspaper boys of the session are looking forward to the biennial feed for which R. Lee Steiner of the state hospital is always host. This feed is the high light of the session for those who can qualify for attendance and invitations are eagerly sought by many outside the profession. Because of the limited number for whom places may be provided, few outside of newspaper boys are honored by an invitation. A number of those who will be present have come prepared with stories with which they will "knock 'em over." Usually no story that may be told to ladies or gentlemen is permitted. Elbert Bede has been honorary president and toastmaster of the organization since its organization a number of sessions ago and Secretary Stone, of the Salem Statesman, has been on the job for the same length of time.

The purpose of much of the legislation that will be introduced along educational lines will be to cut down the cost of education and to make it possible for more to get a higher education. It is recognized by those who have made a study of the subject that the institutions of higher learning have been compelled to take up work that should have been completed in the high schools, thereby making education expensive for both student and state. Many educators have stated this to be the fact and are ready to encourage any move that will make education possible for a greater number at a smaller expense. Several have diagnosed the trouble as leniency of high schools in permitting pupils to take hit and miss courses and the failure of the course laid out by the state department of education to keep high school pupils trained in the fundamentals which they acquired in the grades. There is a friendly feeling toward education, but there are some ready to help education with an ax.

This is the first session since women's suffrage became effective that there has not been a woman member of the legislature. Senator Kinney of Astoria was the woman member of the preceding session, but she was replaced this year by Al Norblad, one time candidate for congress against Hawley and a former member. Four years ago and six years ago there were two women members.

Inhibition of potting parties along the highways of the state will be the object of one or more bills. It is said that many lives have been wrecked by indiscriminate parking on the asphalt—many marriages have resulted.

One of the most popular new faces under the big dome is that of Hal Hoss, who for years has been manager of the Oregon City Enterprise. Although appointed to the position of private secretary to Governor Patterson, he considers his newspaper position equally as important, and equally as profitable, and will jog down to Oregon City every few days to give the folks down there instructions what to do until he can get back again. He also will continue to hold his position as secretary of the Oregon Editorial association, which he has occupied, if not ornamented, for a number of years. Hal is built for speed, his legs cooperating with his body somewhere in the region of the neck. He already has a large acquaintance over the state that makes him the right man for the job and he has a way of meeting those he doesn't know that will help to make popular the administration of his chief. He discreetly guards the outer portal of the governor's private office for eight hours of the day and performs the routine duties of his office behind closed doors at night. It was no hoss on anyone when Hal was put on the job and by this, his first appointment, Governor Ike showed a rare discernment that he may well take with him when he fills other positions.

The Ad Libitum club was entertained Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Tom Laffoon at her new home on north Ninth street. The affair was in the form of a housewarming. For the first time in several meetings all members were present. Special guests were Mrs. Jack Glover of Vancouver, B. C., house guest of Mrs. R. L. Cooper, and Mrs. Harry Hart. Needle work was the afternoon's diversion and a social afternoon was enjoyed. A dainty two-course luncheon was served.

Eight members of the Social Twelve club attended a meeting of the Lane county federated clubs held Thursday in Eugene. Mrs. J. H. Chambers represented the club on the receiving committee for the reception given for Mrs. G. J. Frankel, state federation president of Portland. Mrs. H. H. Veatch, president of the club, gave a report of its activities. The regular Thursday meeting of the Social Twelve was postponed until Wednesday when the club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. J. A. Wright.

SUN SPOT INFLUENCE PHYSICAL NOT MORAL

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 17.—(United Press.)—Sun spots exert a physical influence on men and beasts, but they do not affect their free actions or morals. Father Jerome Riard, sun spot expert at Santa Clara university, noted scientist, made this statement in placing little belief in the theory recently advanced by Professor A. Tchijovsky, famous astronomer of the University of Moscow, that a culmination of sun spots within two more years will precipitate another world war.

The Russian astronomer is quoted as saying that in 1927 to 1929, when the eleven-year period of sun spot activity attains a maximum, it will coincide with the maximum of the other periods of sixty and thirty-five years.

During those two years the Russian believes there will be a "great human activity of the highest historical importance, which may again change the political chart of the world."

Human life, he goes on, reaches its fullest development at the times of this maximum of sun spot activity, and "all great wars have followed periods of intense sun spot activity."

Father Riard described Tchijovsky's prediction of another world conflagration as "fatalistic." "Heavenly influences have nothing to do with the moral affairs of men," the padre holds. "It is true sun spots exert some physical influence on men and beasts."

"Their influence is brought about indirectly through the weather, but man's free determination is not disrupted to such an extent that men will go to war because of the weather," Father Riard continued. "History does not record such, at any rate."

Such predictions as that of the Russian astronomer, Father Riard asserted, "smack of astrology, and we no longer believe in statements of astrologers."

SOCIETY

Twenty-two club women of Cottage Grove attended a meeting of Lane county federated clubs held in Eugene Thursday, when Mrs. G. J. Frankel, state president of Portland, was present. Members of the local Delphinian society attended a group meeting of their organization in the morning at the home of Mrs. H. J. Campbell. All of the women were present at the 1 o'clock luncheon at the Eugene hotel. Following the luncheon, five-minute talks by respective club presidents were given and Mrs. Frankel gave an interesting address on the purpose of the federation. In the evening Mrs. P. L. Campbell and Mrs. E. L. Knapp were hostesses for a dinner for Mrs. Frankel, the club presidents and county committee women. This was held in the tea room of the Osburn hotel. A round table discussion took place after the dinner. Reports from the various clubs show that during the past year the clubs have branched out from strictly self culture work and included in their work problems of a civic and general welfare nature.

WATER PIPE LAID 1926 TOTALS ABOUT 6500 FEET

Approximately 6500 feet of water pipe of various sizes was laid in the city during 1926, according to a report of the city water department. Six standard fire hydrants were installed. These are the first of the standard type to be placed in the city. They are equipped with gates which make it possible for repair work to be done without shutting off the entire main.

The total number of consumers for the year was 8759 and the deposits totaled $21,054.20.

"You say you've worn this hat three years," said the latter. "Wonderful! It looks like new." "Yes, three years I've worn it," said the customer. "Once I had it reblocked, twice I got it cleaned, and once I changed it in a restaurant for a new one."
