Leisure and Laziness Matters Far Apart

If the women's clubs are futile and the politics get nowhere, and if a disillusioned age has found that charity has a great many more attributes than are mentioned in the thirteenth chapter of Corinthians, if being a delightful person is the most a woman can do with her time, why not admit it frankly instead of camouflaging a pleasant and idle life with a pretense of vast activity, or hiding behind the children's rompers or the responsibility of able service or anything else?

Leisure is good for women, and if they are of the temperament to enjoy it, let them have it. Hard work is good and necessary for some women, and there is still and will be for a long time plenty of interesting nonprofessional work for women to do, if they have the ability and temperament. But the air needs more cleaning. No one should have to apologize for not flying into what is really voluntary work. No one should become absurd for going into it. But if one stays out it should be because one openly prefers leisure.

Leisure and laziness have nothing in common. Laziness breeds discontent and cripples energies. Leisure breeds humor, of which we need much, and beauty, of which we need more, and philosophy, of which we need most. The thirties, if they are wise—and on the whole they are both wise and clever—will come to the point of choosing between the two. Destroy their laziness and preserve their leisure, and the thirties will be the incomparable decade.—Margaret Culkin Banning in Harper's Magazine.

Constancy That Gave World Great Lesson

Behind him lay the gray Azores—behind, the gates of Hercules; before him not the ghosts of shores—before him only shoreless seas. His good mate said: "Now must we pray, for lo! the very stars are gone! Brave admiral, speak; what shall I say?" "Why, say, 'Sail on! sail on! sail on!'"

They sailed, and sailed, as winds might blow, until, at last, the blanched mate said: "Why, now, not even God would know, should I and all my men fall dead. These very winds forget their way, for God from these dread seas seems gone; now, speak, brave admiral; speak and say—" He said, "Sail on! sail on! sail on!"

Then, pale and worn, he kept his deck, and peered through darkness. Ah, that night of all dark nights! But, lo! a speck, a light!—a light! a light! a light It grew—A starlit flag unfurled It grew to be Time's burst of dawn! He gained a world; he gave that world its grandest lesson: "On! and on!"—"Columbus," by Joaquin Miller.

Helium Helps Diver

Helium, the rare, noninflammable gas so essential in the safe operation of the monster dirigibles of the air, has also found important uses in undersea exploration.

As the result of experimental work by the United States Navy department the use of the gas in synthetic helium-oxygen atmospheres for "decompression," or restoration to normal atmospheric conditions, of divers or others performing labor under increased atmospheric pressure, by preventing caisson disease, promises to extend greatly the time and depth of underwater operation by divers, and thus to enlarge the whole range of submarine engineering.

Very Open

A man had invited a business acquaintance to play a round of golf with him. The guest, who was a very pompous individual, was also a poor player and hacked up the turf with each stroke.

After he had carried away an unusually generous portion with his iron he turned to his host and said: "You know, I don't care particularly for the game, but I like the glorious open country hereabouts."

"Ah, quite," replied the other, as he surveyed the scarred ground, "but do you mind closing up the open country as we go along!"

Ingredients for Jelly

Scientific study of the principles of jelly making has shown that three ingredients are required for the formation of a jelly, namely, sugar, acid and pectin; and these must be present in fairly definite proportions. Tart apples, cranberries, red currants and grapes, when collected at the proper stage of ripeness, contain pectin and acid in sufficient quantity to form a good jelly when cooked for a short time with the proper amount of sugar.

Gas Power Analyzed

A gas company has figured out that 1,000 cubic feet of gas will cook 18 meals for 6 persons; heat shaving water for 1,000 days, roast sufficient coffee to make 2 cups daily for 70 years, light 2 cigars a day for 500 years, boil 275 gallons of water, bake 1,700 ¾-pound loaves of bread in a continuous oven, do the work of two hens in hatching eggs, broil 7 3-pound steaks; barbecue enough ham to make 1,750 sandwiches.

Not to Be Taken Literally

"I'll be delighted to vote for you."

"The car's as good as new."

"Your daughter plays beautifully."

"The pleasure is all mine."

"Come again."—Toronto Star.

And how about "Let me pay"!

So Talking Is Hot Air

A physicist has calculated that if 1,000,000 persons were to talk steadily and the energy of their voices was conveyed into heat, they would have to talk an hour and a half to produce enough heat to make a cup of tea.

NEWPORT FISH TRIES TO DRAG FISHER TO SEA

NEWPORT, Ore., May 12.—(U. P.)—B. F. Wilkins is claiming the honor of having hooked the biggest fish "that got away" this season.

Wilkins had a close call in winning that distinction. He was trolling in the bay and hooked some sort of fish. The fish took out for sea, dragging the boat along with it. Wilkins managed to cast loose by cutting his line just in time to avoid being carried outside the bar.

Mrs. Harry Armstrong Dies.

Mrs. Harry Armstrong died Wednesday night at a Eugene hospital. She had undergone a major operation several days before and never fully rallied from its effects. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Mills chapel, Pastor Duncan P. Cameron of the Presbyterian church officiating. The body will be taken to Portland for cremation.

Anna Margaret Armstrong was born March 2, 1882, in Astoria. She had been a resident of Rujada about six years. She was the wife of Harry Armstrong, who is engineer on the Shay engine for Anderson & Middleton.

John A. Linn on her birthday anniversary was held Wednesday night in the Methodist church parlors by a group of friends. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served.

Ralph Chestnut Is Injured.

Ralph Chestnut sustained bruises and cuts Tuesday when he fell from the inside of the bridge two miles beyond London from which he was removing some timbers to make it possible to get through the bridge with a load of equipment for the mines at Black Butte. A timber by which Chestnut was supporting himself gave way and he fell 14 feet to the floor of the bridge, injuring his right shoulder and left leg and sustaining several cuts on the face. The latter, however, Ralph is certain will in no way detract from his facial pulchritude.
