

The Quarry.

I gaze across the street so wide,
I start, I dart, I squirm, I glide,
I take my chances, oh, so slim—
I trust to eye and nerve and limb;
I scout to right, I gallop through,
I'm here and there, I'm lost to view.

My life, I know, hangs in the toss—
Another plunge—I am across,
Oh, give me pity, if you can,
I'm just a poor pe-de-strian.

'Faith that Moves Mountains.

Here is a story about the most optimistic man! Totally bald, he went to a druggist and asked for a bottle of hair-restorer. "Yes, sir," the clerk said, "here is a preparation that is sure to make your hair grow." "All right," replied the optimist, "I'll take a bottle. And please wrap it up in a comb and brush with it."—The Argonaut.

Many Kinds of Bark in Use as Medicine

The United States Pharmacopoeia lists 17 kinds of bark used in medicine. There are, however, no less than 35 kinds of bark altogether grown in America which are more or less widely used for preparing simple, home-made remedies, although only 17 are classed as "officials."

Some are valued, for example, as febrifuges, chief of which, of course, is the Peruvian bark or cinchona, to which the world owes the priceless boon of quinine.

A second class includes those which exert a cathartic or laxative effect, and of these the most highly prized is the bark of the graceful little buckthorn tree found in California, and known by its Spanish name of cascara sagrada (sacred bark).

A third class includes those which stimulate the flow of one or another of the secretions of the body, such as the saliva, gastric juice, perspiration, mucus, etc.

Others are soothing in nature, such as an infusion of slippery elm, and many may be used for preparing soothing draughts in cases of sore throats, etc. Still others are said somewhat vaguely to possess "tonic" properties.

Odd Inspiration Ideas of Masters of Music

Haydn, when he sat down to compose, always dressed himself with the greatest care, had his hair nicely powdered and put on his best suit. Frederick II had given him a diamond ring, and Haydn declared that, if he happened to be giddy without it, he could not summon a single idea. He could write only on the finest paper, and was as particular in forming his notes as if he had been engraving them on copper.

Gluck, when he felt inspired to compose, had his piano carried into a beautiful meadow and, with a bottle of champagne on either side of him, composed divinely.

Pastello composed his "Barbiere di Siviglia" and "La Mollara" in bed.

Sachin declared that he never had a moment of inspiration, unless his two favorite cats were sitting on each shoulder.—Market for Exchange.

He Doesn't Call Now

The thrifty young man often called on a certain girl, but had never taken her to a theater, or movie, or even out to tea.

The family had noticed and often commented on what they termed his "stinginess," and all before the girl's ten-year-old brother.

One chilly night the youngster was in the drawing room when the thrifty young man was present. The caller, who was sitting close to the fire, said suddenly:

"Oh, how I love to sit before your fire and think, think—"

Like a flash came an interruption from the ten-year-old:

"Think—think of how you are saving money by sitting here."

Monkeys Sing in Chorus

Colobus monkeys indulge in community singing. Very early in the morning and at intervals during the day these denizens of the jungle start their song fests and as soon as the whole troop gets going good, other troops in different parts of the forest join in and the green rafters ring with the remarkable sounds they make, according to Della J. Akley, a naturalist. There is a leader of each troop who directs the nature of the emotional expression by raising or lowering the pitch. Some of them sing in a different pitch, much like the bass and contralto of human singing organizations.

Joseph Conrad's Baby

Joseph Conrad, the famous writer of sea tales, wrote a letter to a cousin January 21, 1898, three days after the birth of a son. The letter is included in a group of Conrad's letters published by World's Work. "The doctor says it is a magnificent boy," he wrote. "He has dark hair, huge eyes, and he resembles a monkey. What pains me is that my wife pretends that he also resembles me. Enfin! Do not draw too hasty conclusions from this astonishing concurrence of circumstances. My wife is certainly mistaken."

Not to the Manner Born

Brown was going South to visit his son and wife for several weeks and was being drilled by Mrs. Brown in preparation for the visit. Table manners were on subject in the curriculum and one on which both pupil and instructor worked hard. One day at dinner as Brown poured the contents of his coffee cup into a saucer, he remarked comfortably: "Well, I'll drink you out of the saucer now, but," with a dismal shake of the head, "when I get down South, I'll drink you out of the cup."—Indianapolis News.

English Sparrows

The first English sparrows were brought to America in 1850. They were imported by Nicholas Pike and the other directors of the Brooklyn institute to protect the shade trees from damage by caterpillars. Eight pairs were released the next spring, but none of them survived. In 1853 another shipment was made. During the next 20 years 15 shipments of English sparrows to the United States took place.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Real Service to World

And he gave it for his opinion, "that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country, than the whole race of politicians put together."—Swift.

Spiders Love Music?

Do spiders enjoy music? A London organist has noticed that every time he starts to play the organ a spider swings down over the keyboard by a single thread of its web.

As soon as the music stops he disappears. Either very soft or very loud music also causes the spider to disappear.

During a concert at Leipzig, a spider seemed to like violin music. During two violin solos he dropped down from a chandelier by its web, but went back up again when the violin music stopped.

Tale of a Tail

During the summer a certain number of American visitors endeavored to smuggle dogs into England when they landed at Southampton, remarks the London Post.

One day an official encountered a lady whom he had every reason to suppose was infringing the law. "Madam," he told her, "it is contrary to the regulations to bring dogs into this country." The lady protested that she had no dog. "Then, madam," said the official coldly, "I am to understand that the tail hanging down below your coat is your own?"

A Long Wait

"And what cemetery is that?" asked the Palestine tourist, pointing toward an expansive hill entirely covered with gravestones.

"Oh, that's a family cemetery," replied the guide.

"Yes, that's where all Methuselah's nieces and nephews who passed away waiting for their rich uncle to die are buried."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Consolation

The journey through life goes through many dark tunnels, and the darker and longer they are the more we appreciate the glory of sunshine afterward and the grandness of the view.—A Woman's Confession.

NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE ON EXECUTION IN FORECLOSURE.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution and order of sale in foreclosure issued out of the Circuit court of Lane county, Oregon, on the 5th day of April, 1927, in a suit wherein on the 1st day of January, 1927, in said court William F. Doeltz, plaintiff, recovered judgment against the defendant, Katherine Louise Schiele, also known as Katherine Louise Schiele and Ambrose L. Woodward for the sum of $500.00 with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent per annum from October 2nd, 1923, and the further sum of $100.00 attorneys fees, the further sum of $12.50 together with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum from July 15, 1926, until paid; for the further sum of $5.00 with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from April 5, 1927, and the further sum of $12.75 costs and disbursements herein, which judgment was entered and docketed in the clerk's office of said court in said county, on the 5th day of April, 1927, and said execution to me directed commanding me in the name of the State of Oregon, in order to satisfy said judgment, interest, attorneys fees, costs of suit and accruing costs to sell the following described real property, to-wit:

East half of the southeast quarter of section ten in township twenty-one south, range three west of the Willamette Meridian, in Lane county, Oregon.

Now, therefore, in the name of the State of Oregon, in compliance with said execution and order of sale and in order to satisfy said judgment, interest, attorneys fees, costs of suit and accruing costs, I will on Saturday the 14th day of May, 1927, at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon of said day at the southwest front door of the county court house, in Eugene, Lane county, Oregon, offer for sale and sell for cash to public auction subject to redemption as provided by law, all of the right, title and interest of said defendant Katherine Schiele, a widow, also known as Katherine Louise Schiele, Ambrose L. Woodward, J. S. Milne and C. D. Wallace, and all persons claiming by, through or under them or any or either of them in and to said premises.

FRANK E. TAYLOR, Sheriff of Lane county, a14-m12 ((et)) (T) Oregon.

Check Chevrolet Delivered Prices

They include the lowest handling and financing charges available.

In every section of the country Chevrolet Truck sales are breaking all previous records — establishing Chevrolet as the world's most popular gear-shift commercial car.

This decisive preference for Chevrolet is based on a matchless combination of dependability, economy and fine appearance — plus the public's confidence in a product of General Motors.

Chevrolet dependability under every condition of usage has long been traditional; yet recent improvements in the powerful Chevrolet valve-in-head motor — improvements typified by a new AC air cleaner and AC oil filter — have made Chevrolet Trucks even more dependable, with even longer life, greater operating economy and more satisfactory performance.

With a cab inclosure that matches passenger car design in comfort and beauty — with sweeping crown fenders and bullet-type headlamps — the Chevrolet Truck is one of the handsomest haulage units seen on the highways.

If you use trucks in your business — come in! Learn for yourself why Chevrolet performance has proved so satisfactory for every type of user — from the single truck operator to the largest fleet owner!
