Houses of Worship
Found in Odd Places

The miners in the Myndd Newydd coal mines in Wales have no call to shave, shine their boots, or don Sunday garb when they go to worship. They have a chapel all their own at the bottom of the shaft, so that when they descend the pit they can have a short service before going to their working places.

Though timbers form the pillars and beams of this chapel, and a coal trolley serves as a pulpit, the miners sit on rough wooden benches and the oldest among them acts as pastor.

A chapel, more finished in appearance, the St. Anthony, exists in the salt mines of Wieliczka, Austria. It has an altar, crucifix, and life-size figures of the saints, apparently in black marble, but really made of salt.

In the old German town of Obersteln an ancient church stands in a great rock rising from the river. The front is of stone, but the church itself is hollowed out of the rock and penetrates far into its heart. This curious church is now the only Protestant place of worship in the town.

A church in a Pennsylvania town is said to possess the distinction of being the work of one pair of hands. One man carried every block of stone of which it was constructed, cut each of them into shape, and laid them in place.

Strangers in Borneo
Get Strange Welcome

A most unusual form of greeting is the one accorded visitors by the Dyaks of Borneo, as described by William Beebe, the noted naturalist, in an article in Liberty. "This Dyak greeting holds true to the old primitive idea that a guest must be welcomed with a gift," Beebe explains.

"This gift is a very modest one," the writer continues, "but it is also very valuable. It is an egg. Throughout the whole country, if you find favor in the eyes of a tribe, you are formally presented with an egg on the day of your arrival in a village. And in the heart of Borneo, where food is, in the nature of things, a more or less undetermined quantity, the possession of an egg is a matter of profound congratulation. Particularly a fresh egg, because at times the Dyaks show a marked preference for high game and preserved eggs—an instinctive, almost racial preference not easily acquired by a more sophisticated taste. There is always the chance, however, that the egg will be a good egg."

Lesson of Forgiveness

Almost all lovers of art are familiar with Leonardo da Vinci's picture "The Last Supper." His biographer tells us that while at work on his great masterpiece the artist quarreled with a man and vowed to take vengeance upon him. While in this vengeful mood he sketched the face of Judas, but when he started to paint the face of the Master he found he could not give it the expression he so desired until he had gone to the man against whom he had vowed vengeance and sought his forgiveness. When this had been done, he was able to finish the picture.

Making a Thorough Job

"Dear Harold," wrote his sweetheart, "as you are probably aware, I am to be married to Mr. Blank the coming month. I shall, therefore, appreciate it if you will burn all the little notes I sent you, assuring you of reciprocity with regard to those you sent me."

"Dear Dorothy," he replied promptly, "I shall certainly comply with your request at once. And, incidentally, as your fiancé holds a few notes of mine, I shall deem it a great favor if you will induce him to burn them with the rest."

East Lynne's Premiere

The first American theatrical production of "East Lynne" was reviewed in the New York papers 62 years ago.

The critics agreed as to the merits of the drama, which had been seen at Niblo's garden the night before, and now foresaw that it was to become the most popular play of the century. Since then thousands of companies of every grade have played "East Lynne," and it has been staged in every theater and village "opry house" in the United States and Canada. It is based upon the novel written by Mrs. Henry Wood.

Easily Satisfied

Thomas did not like mathematics. He had been absent when long division in algebra had been developed, and on his return to school had been unable to grasp the subject.

The day for the test came, and sure enough, there was a problem in long division. Thomas copied it, studied it thoughtfully for a few minutes and without the least attempt to solve it, wrote underneath it the following note: "Dear Teacher—If you will give me five on this problem I'll be satisfied. Thomas."

Crab Finds Rich Oil Field

Oil recently found on an island off the coast of Honduras was discovered by the aid of a land crab, after man had searched for years for the petroleum. The region is infested with the crabs, which burrow into the soil. One of them dug into a marsh beneath a cottage. The next day the owner of the house smelled the odor of oil, and soon found a high-grade flow. He had been searching for oil for years without success.

Medford Girls Cut
Graduation Cost

MEDFORD, Ore., April 18.—(U.P.)—There is to be no worry this year over the respective quality of certain dresses of the graduation class at Medford high school. Crepe de chine and other fineries, which stretched some pocketbooks to the limit while scarcely making a dent in others, are a thing of the past.

The girls of the class, by an almost unanimous vote, decided that all would wear voile in pastel shades to be worn over pink slips at June commencement.

It was pointed out by the girls that the cost of such a dress and slip would approximate only $10—a drastic reduction from the usual prices of graduating dresses.

Officer: What are you doing here at this hour?
Stranger: I forgot my key, officer, and I'm waiting for the children to come home and let me in.

Tom: "Don't you think Betty has a weak mouth?"
Ted: "Well, I've found it to be the point of least resistance, myself."
