Leave Off Hats And Lose Your Eyes

OAKLAND, Cal., May 23.—(U. P.)—The collegiate fad of going without hats, even in the bright summer sun, is dangerous to the eyes, according to C. Arthur Kronquist, president of the Alameda County Optometrists' association.

"When the eye is exposed to the full glare of the sun," said Dr. Kronquist, "the outer covering must absorb the bright rays so they will not penetrate to the sensitive inner eye, and this is very harmful."

"Nature, in her effort to protect the eye, also causes squinting, which certainly does not improve the appearance."

"It has been our experience that men who habitually go without hats do not go long without glasses."
