"ARIZONA BOUND" COMING

ARCADE SUNDAY, MONDAY

"Arizona Bound," first of a series of western pictures in which Paramount will feature Gary Cooper, will be shown Sunday and Monday at the Arcade. It is a story of the old mining days and is replete with action and thrills.

Cooper, the star, has had a rapid rise in screen work since he started as an extra several years ago. His contract with Paramount calls for leading parts. He played an important part in "The Winning of Barbara Worth" and "It," Clara Bow's starring vehicle. He was born in Helena, Mont., and spent many years on a ranch in that state.

A strong cast supports Cooper. Betty Jewel plays the leading feminine role, El Brendel has the leading comedy role and Jack Dougherty plays the villain.
