Held Church Services in Old Waiting Room

Porters and clerks at Denmark Hill railway station, South London, often took to the accompaniment of hymns sung lustily by a congregation in a disused waiting room next to the booking office, says the Washington Star. The Mystic Church of the Comforter is one of London's most curious churches. Babies are baptized in a room that was once only used by impatient travelers waiting for their trains; funeral services are read in it and a marriage has been solemnized. This church has been in existence for about six years.

One end of the former waiting room has been transformed by an altar painted white and surrounded by the seven colors of the rainbow. Seven steps lead to the altar, and at the side are two pillars representing beauty and strength. Everything is done by symbols in this remarkable church and the badge worn by members is a dove standing in a circle with a seven-leaved branch in its beak. The leader and founder of the church was a woman named Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Eagle Skinner, with the official title of "messenger."

Founder of Textile Industry in America

Spinning as an industry in America was born in Pawtucket, R. I., December 20, 1790, when a young Englishman, Samuel Slater, completed the building of machines from plans he had carried in his memory to this country upon hearing prizes for inventions to improve the textile industry.

He built the machines for one Moses Brown, who, with his partner, had mustered an army of handloom weavers that at top speed could produce 8,000 yards of cloth in a year. Americans had attempted to build machines modeled after the English type without success, but Slater, in less than a year, had completed a set of machines that started every one by running successfully at the first trial. Yankees, even in that early period, prided themselves upon their ingenuity and inventiveness, but proved themselves also game enough not to resent the young Englishman's success and came from far and near to learn to operate Slater's machines and set up in the new industry for themselves.—Kansas City Times.

Armchairs Once Luxuries

Armchairs only became possible with the breakdown of monarchial and feudal power and the decay of the old family and social hierarchies. In the European society of two or three hundred years ago, it was impossible for anyone—from the holy Roman emperor and the king of France down to the poorest beggar, from the bearded patriarch to the baby—to loiter in the presence of anyone else. Every man was always engaged in being impressive towards his inferiors, or respectful to those above him. It was only in the eighteenth century when the old hierarchies had begun to break up, that furniture began to become comfortable.—Aldous Huxley in Vanity Fair.

Strength Tests

Tests of strength have been made, and the following are given as the average figures for the white race: The "lifting power" of a youth of seventeen is 280 pounds; in his twentieth year this increases to 320 pounds; at the thirtieth year it reaches its height—365 pounds; at the end of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very slowly at first. By the fortieth year it has decreased 81 pounds, and this diminution continues until the fiftieth year is reached, when the figure is 230 pounds. After this period the strength falls more and more rapidly until the weakness of old age is reached.

An Odd Violin Label

Johannes Robey, the well-known collector of violins, has one instrument of which he is particularly proud, since it contains a label which is a curiosity. The label is in old Latin and it reads: "Viva vivi in syvils; sum dura ocissa se-viri. Dum vixi, tacui; mortua, dulce cano." Which being interpreted means: "I was living in the forest; the cruel ax slew me. While I was alive I was mute; dead, I sweetly sing." This violin is a product of the sixteenth century "luteist" or violin maker named Gaspa Duitop-grugcar.

Bible Reached Conscience

After reading the Bible a burglar who broke into a house in Szilagysag, Rumania, returned his loot. A few days after the robbery the tenant of the house stumbled over a large bundle on his doorstep. On opening it he found everything that had been stolen, including his thumb-worn Bible. Attached to the book was a note which said: "I read this book and found in it the command, 'Thou shalt not steal.' Therefore I am returning to you all that I recently stole from your house."

Different Now

The small girl had taken to scrubbing her neck vigorously every morning. Mother was puzzled, because heretofore it had always been a struggle to get the small girl to put any water on her neck. "Why are you so clean all of a sudden?" asked mother.

"Well, boys sit all around me in school now," said the small girl, scrubbing harder than ever.—Springfield Union.

Old Truth Recorded

An inscription in the Supreme court-room of the state capital of Nebraska is by Hieracitus, and the words are: "Eyes and ears are poor witnesses when the soul is barbarous."

PASTOR EDWIN COLBECK NEW BAPTIST MINISTER

Pastor Edwin O. Colbeck of Elizabeth, Penn., has accepted the pastorate of the local Baptist church and already has taken over the duties of the position. He has a wife and two sons, who will join him soon. Mrs. Colbeck has been engaged in evangelistic services in California. Pastor Colbeck was here earlier in the spring looking over the field and preached here last Sunday. He has held important pastorates in eastern cities and comes here well recommended.

The Baptist church has been without a pastor since the first of May, when Pastor J. D. Chappelle, chapel car missionary, left to continue his evangelistic work. He had been in charge over a year.

War Veterans Warned.

Urging World war veterans of this community and state to avoid the inevitable last-minute rush of war-risk insurance reinstatement, Kenneth L. Cooper, Portland regional manager of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, is giving last minute warning that July 2 of this year is the last day that government insurance will be available. He asks that those entitled to government policies, by reason of having had war insurance, take action in this matter at the earliest possible moment in order that every applicant may be taken care of.

Application blanks and instructions may be secured from the local Red Cross chapter, American Legion post or by letter from the regional office of the Veterans' Bureau in Portland.

League Plans Installation.

Officers of the Epworth League of the Methodist church will be installed at the Sunday evening service of the church. Those to be installed are: Raphael Morgan, president; Ellen Arnest, first vice president; Hesper Hubbell, second vice president; Marie Sheburn, third vice president; Kenneth Goff, fourth vice president; Clare Hogue, secretary; Frances Wells, treasurer; Gladys Siemens, pianist.

Pastor John A. Linn will preach at this service on "What Have You Heard?" and in the forenoon on "Life's Best or a Substitute, Which?" Special music is being arranged for both services.

Baptist Minister to Speak.

Pastor Edwin O. Colbeck, who recently accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church here, will speak at both Sunday services. At the forenoon service he will speak on "The Prodigal Son's Father," in observance of Father's day. He will bring out the points of why the prodigal left home and the fact that the elder brother refused to come to supper.

At the evening service Pastor Colbeck will speak on "When I See the Blood, I Pass Over You." A song service will be held in the evening. Sunday school will be held at 10 o'clock and B. Y. P. U. at 7 p. m.

Roosevelt Highway Boosted.

James Forester, who at present is with the Port Umpqua Courier of Reedsport, was a guest at the chamber of commerce luncheon Tuesday. Mr. Forester is spending some time here in the interests of a booster edition being published by the Reedsport paper. He spoke to the club and expressed the satisfaction of Reedsport citizens regarding the progress of work on the Roosevelt highway in that section. A picnic for the Fourth of July is being sponsored by Reedsport towns people and an invitation has been extended to people of Cottage Grove. It will be held at Winchester bay and will be in celebration of the construction completed on the new highway. The local group took no action on the proposition. It is expected a number will attend.

Candlestick a Symbol

Albert Churchward, in his "Signs and Symbols of Primordial Man," says: "The seven candlesticks, with lighted candles, we have no doubt, were introduced by Moses as a representative type of the 'Seven Glorious Ones'—that is, the seven stars of the Little Bear originally in Stellar Mythos. We have at the present time the same in use amongst the Christian churches, representing the mystic seven, which are the prototypes of the Seven Glorious Ones."
