CITY MEASURES.

Being in a voter under the present system which requires popular action upon many propositions is a duty that is not taken as seriously as it should be, probably largely because a large part of the electorate would rather have things done for them and do not care to shoulder the burdens of government. However, they probably would not go to the polls to vote to shift the burdens to those who represent them in state, county and city government, so the rest of us will have to do the best we can in trying to arouse the interest of the half-hearted and apathetic, which is all by way of calling attention to two proposals upon which Cottage Grove electors will be called to act at a special city election which has been called for July 11. It should be borne in mind that this is nearly three weeks later than the special state election to be held next week.

The most important proposal that will be up at the special city election is one to give the city council power under certain conditions to create street lighting districts. First and foremost it should be emphasized that this amendment would grant power only and then under only certain conditions, the principal one of which is that 55 per cent of the property that would be affected could defeat any proposal for a lighting district.

The principal purpose of the proposed street lighting amendment is to give property owners on Main street opportunity to petition the council to create a Main street lighting district, to include property between the Main street bridge and the Southern Pacific tracks. This improvement is greatly desired to put Cottage Grove's business section in the same class as business sections of other cities. All lighting poles and telephone poles would be removed and lighting would be by standard lights, generally referred to as cluster lights, although it is becoming customary to have but one light for each standard.

The proposed amendment provides that the city may assess up to 50 per cent of the cost of installing the lighting system against property in the district, maintenance to be from the general fund of the city. The levy against property may be in ten equal assessments the same as for street improvements.

The second proposal is an amendment to empower the council to purchase portions of Delbert Kelly athletic field which it does not now own and to issue up to $750 in bonds for payment of same, the bonds to be retired within two years. The bonds are necessary in order to make the purchase at the present time because the city can not spend money for the purpose unless it has been previously budgeted. Authority is also needed to make purchase of property for this purpose. The city already owns a large part of the athletic field because of having taken it over on delinquent assessments.

This property can be secured now at a reasonable figure and the city would be given a splendid athletic field at moderate cost.

Both the proposed amendments are worthy of unanimous favorable vote, but there is likely to be some opposition and those who wish to see the charter changes acted upon favorably should make it a point to be at the polls. The polling places and the complete amendments are listed in an official notice appearing in this issue.

"Chorus girls are brainy," says a Broadway theatrical story. Shucks! How did anybody ever find that out?—Eugene Register.

Don't criticize the dear things too severely, that's about the only thing they have kept from us.

The young preacher who delivered the sermon to Cal Coolidge the first Sunday the president spent in the Black hills country, talked exactly 10 minutes. We are hopeful that Cal's influence may spread.

"Fifty years ago you could dress 'em for what their hosiery costs now." Thank goodness that pretty soon the hosiery will be the whole outfit.

Church News

"Elmer Gantry" to Be Subject.—Pastor Duncan P. Cameron will give a book sermon at the Sunday evening service of the Presbyterian church, when he will talk on "Elmer Gantry," the novel by Sinclair Lewis which has excited wide comment. He will answer the question of whether this book gives a true view of a minister's life and will give his opinion of the story. At the forenoon service Pastor Cameron will speak on "The Romance of Faith."

* * *

Baptist Subjects.—Pastor Edwin O. Colbeck will preach at the forenoon service of the Baptist church on "The Prodigal Son." He will give a new and original interpretation of this popular story. Pastor Colbeck says that many may not agree with his sermon but that it will set them thinking along a new line. At the evening service he will talk on "An Unphilosophical Plan of Salvation," telling of the time when God seemed to have made a mistake. A special song service will be a feature of the evening service.

* * *

Methodist Subjects.—"Teach Us to Pray" will be the subject of Pastor John A. Linn at the forenoon service of the Methodist church. In the evening he will preach on "The Influence of Jesus." The choir will sing a special number at the forenoon service. A special W. C. T. U. program planned for Sunday night has been postponed until later.
