C. J. Hurd Dies.
C. J. Hurd, former resident of Eugene, former member of the legislature from this county, former county agent of this county and recently extension specialist with Oregon Agricultural college, died Wednesday at Corvallis. Death was due to heart disease. He was aged 62 years.

Couldn't Stand It.
Mr. Bam: How did you like the new washing machine I had sent out today?

Mrs. Bam: Oh! It's terrible! Every time I tried to get in it to take my bath the paddles hit me.

Well Was He Called "Wise Ben Franklin"

"I made it a rule to forbear all direct contradiction to the sentiments of others, and all positive assertions of my own," wrote Benjamin Franklin in his autobiography. "I even forbade myself the use of every word or expression in the language that implied a fixed opinion, such as certainly, undoubtedly, etc., and I adopted, instead of them, I conceive, I apprehend or I imagine a thing to be so or so; or it so appears to me at the present. When another asserted something that I thought an error, I denied myself the pleasure of contradicting him abruptly, and of showing immediately some absurdity in his proposition; and in answering I began by observing that in certain cases or circumstances in his opinion would be right, but in the present case there appeared or seemed to me some difference, etc. I soon found the advantage of this change in my manner; the conversation I engaged in went on more pleasantly. The modest way in which I proposed my opinions procured them a readier reception and less contradiction; I had less mortification when I was found to be in the wrong, and I more easily prevailed with others to give up their mistakes and join with me when I happened to be in the right."

Mother-in-Law Gives Voice to Reflections

"I thought for a while that Harold was going to get out to the golf course alone, but just as he was leaving, Minnie's new trousers were delivered. "Lamech and I lived happily together many years, but he never played a game of any kind after we were married except once. We went to the volunteer fireman's picnic and he played baseball for two or three minutes. He was laid up four days. "Minnie's husband works harder at his play than he does his job. Lamech used to watch the weather signs to keep from losing his crops. Many's the time his rheumatic knee has given him warning to get the hay in off the south forty. In the spring and summer Harold reads the forecasts to see if the weather is likely to be bad enough to make him go to the office. "Of course, Minnie makes him take his recreations seriously. I've noticed a woman who can wear sport clothes usually advocates golf for her husband. But if Minnie isn't any better swinging a club than she is a broom it is a waste of good all-wool cloth to put her on the links."—Exchange.

A celebrated Welsh basso profundo, after years of fame, returned to his native village in the wilds of Cardiganshire. A charity concert was arranged, and the world-famous virtuoso was billed to sing "The Village Blacksmith." Just before the concert a local supporter came around to the artist's dressing room. "The visitor approached the artist and said: 'I understand that you are going to sing a song, 'The Village Blacksmith.' Well, I'm telling you now that I am the village blacksmith, and I want to say that if by any chance you get an encore, will you shove in an extra verse to say that I also let out bikes on 'Ire at sixpence an hour.' "—Taffy Tales From Welsh Wales."

Good Reading

Good literature has a charm incomparable, but it has also a power immeasurable in the forming or transforming of a nation as of an individual character. The people that have the cleanest, healthiest literature will become the cleanest and healthiest people. A good thought wisely expressed and thoughtfully applied is priceless for its endurance. Throw it on the winds and it will find its bourn; sink it in the deepest water and it will reach its haven; for the noblest thoughts are the breath of Almighty, and remain imperishable to the end of time and beyond."—Exchange.

Seamen Fond of Pets

Most ocean ships, especially in cargo carriers, are floating zoos. Seamen have a passion for birds and animals and members of the crew and officers take delight in acquiring unusual specimens from the various countries they visit. Recently ships berthed in New York boasted among their pets cats that catch flying fish, strange animals from Madagascar that can kill hawks alighting on the ship, long-necked giraffes, a baby elephant, cockatoos, parrots, macaws, tooth-pick birds, and constrictors, pythons and other snakes.

Infant Prodigy

A music critic encountered a pianist about whom he had made adverse remarks in print. "I'd like to know what you know about music, anyway," said the aggrieved man, angrily. "You never had any kind of practical experience. What have you ever played on?" "Oh, come, you wrong me," said the critic. "Why, before I was three years old I had acquired a complete mastery of playing on the linoleum."

Already Filled

After the arrival of her baby sister, Sally was transferred from her crib to another bed and she was not at all pleased over the newcomer's usurping of her former sleeping quarters.

One day when her mother went into the nursery to put the baby to bed she found the crib in a state of upheaval. As she approached, a small but firm voice from beneath the covers announced: "This bed is already occupied."—Chicago Tribune.

CULP CREEK.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

July 13.—(Special).—Mrs. Merle William of Dorena is now settled in her pretty little new home erected a stone's throw from the old home site, where fire played havoc a few months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Howard and daughter Frances have returned to Culp Creek from a ten day's vacation (f) doing fencing, gardening and having stunts on the little mountain ranch up the Kat creek canyon from Dorena.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Husted and children have returned from an interesting auto trip to points in Idaho. Mr. Husted is shovel operator for Anderson & Middleton.

Chf Smith, one of the Anderson & Middleton lumber company's old reliable in the rigging game, is this week removing his family from Culp Creek to Cottage Grove, where a permanent home has been acquired.

Notwithstanding the quietness of the lumber market, the Anderson & Son saw mill at this point seems to be able to keep going on orders slipping in from day to day. At present the company is working out a four-day order of heavy timbers and it was understood that an additional order of two cars was received yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Stuart and daughter are residing temporarily in Cottage Grove following the logging shut down at this place.

Bert Williams, who has been down from Stevens, Wash., where he is engaged in civil engineering, on a ten day's visit with his family at Dorena, has returned to his work. Just before his departure he drove to Culp Creek and placed a thirty-five wood order with Potter & Owen.

S. E. Daniels, who was with the Glen G. Anderson & Son saw mill at this place, has removed his family to the Mohawk valley above Eugene.

Mr. and Mrs. John Martin have removed to Cottage Grove.

Clarence Slona, bucker, recently with Anderson & Middleton, and who has been identified with the logging camps of Lane county for many years, is removing his family to Drain.
