Brevity is said to be the soul of wit, which may be the reason that some skirts look so funny to some of us old timers.

APPARENTLY.

In comment during a friendly controversy with this writer, the Oregonian said that this writer had said that the proposal added to the recent income tax bill to increase the tax levy for 1928 had been put there as an afterthought. What was actually said was that it "apparently" had been put there as an afterthought.

From a careful reading of the columns of the Oregonian during the campaign, and from his own knowledge gathered from association with state affairs, this writer was led to believe that the state was in dire financial straits and that income tax, as an additional tax, was necessary to our welfare and happiness, and I am wondering whether the Oregonian made its splendid fight for income tax to be an additional tax for one year only.

If it did, how did it expect to relieve the dire financial condition of our great commonwealth, brought onto us by that lachrymal pseudo friend of the overburdened taxpayer, Walt Pierce?

A permanent boost of the tax base was necessary to bring permanent relief, but there was doubt whether the people would vote such a boost. Relief for one year could be secured, provided the people wanted income tax, by hitching a boost in the tax levy onto income tax, by making it a tail to the kite. Whether some means would have been found to make this a permanent boost in the tax levy this writer does not know, but the proposed increase in the tax levy for one year only certainly was apparently an afterthought to save something from the wreck.

THE CHAUTAUQUA.

The annual chautauqua always brings a lot of discussion as to the merits of the institution, largely by those who have never backed one and have never risked a penny in bringing a chautauqua to the city. Those who have been guarantors for year after year usually have little to say.

It is rather odd that chautauqua should arouse so much adverse comment, for it is an institution for the uplift and betterment of the community. We may not each of us enjoy the same program, we may not all enjoy the same statements made by any speaker, we may not all enjoy the same play or the same entertainment, but all will have to admit that chautauqua brings to the city lecturers and entertainers that would not otherwise come here, and we must all admit that a form of education and entertainment that could be given in a Methodist tabernacle, where the sessions are being held this year, certainly will not harm the community.

The usual comment is that "I would support chautauqua if it would come here on its own merits and not ask a guaranty." It may as well be stated that chautauqua could not come and would not come except under the guaranty plan. Chautauquas have always followed that plan, and probably always will. There are several reasons why that is so. One good reason, applying to the Ellison-White chautauqua, is that it is a cooperative, non-profitable institution. This statement will be disputed by many, but it is nevertheless a fact.

The second and more important reason for the guaranty plan is that the quality of talent secured for chautauqua can only be secured by a guaranty. If talent were willing to take chances on the gate receipts, if chautauqua fans would be satisfied with the kind of talent that would be willing to go out as a sort of road show, then the guaranty would not be necessary. Talent of the quality that comes to chautauqua can not be secured except by a guaranty.

Another frequent complaint is that the business men of the city are asking the general public to pull them out of the hole because of their having guaranteed $1200 or some other amount to bring chautauqua here.

A perusal of the list of guarantors reveals that the guarantors are not the business men of the city. Not half are those generally referred to as the business men.

But those who are not among the guarantors need not worry about those that are. The guarantors merely wish to make it possible for the community to have something worth while, an annual mental treat, a gathering of master minds and master entertainers in a great week's program. The guarantors don't want folks to worry about them. All the guarantors want or desire is patronage of chautauqua by those who are appreciative of what chautauqua has to offer. As long as there is sufficient patronage there will be a sufficient number with sufficient interest in their community to guarantee chautauqua's appearance here. When there is not sufficient interest to keep the deficit down to a reasonable figure, chautauqua will come no more.

That is all there is to it. If you want chautauqua and like chautauqua, support it by your attendance. If you don't want it, and don't like it, don't worry about the fellows who are the guarantors. You probably have spent more money much more foolishly than do those who have each year made up the chautauqua deficit.

Of course we are not afraid to say to a person's face the things we say behind his back—we merely do not wish to hurt his feelings.

SOCIETY

Allen-Nichols.

Miss Donna Nichols became the bride of Donald Allen at a pretty wedding held Friday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Nichols. Pastor John A. Linn of the Methodist church read the ring service and only immediate members of the two families and a few friends were present. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Francis Mackin as the bridal party entered. Mrs. L. L. Booth was matron of honor and Miss Mary Allen, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Lee Nichols, brother of the bride, was best man and L. L. Booth was usher. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride was attractively gowned in a peach colored frock trimmed with rows of lace and carried a bouquet of roses, white carnations and maidenhair fern. The matron of honor and the bridesmaid each wore peach colored frocks. Mrs. Booth carried a bouquet of sweet peas and baby breath and Miss Allen a bouquet of sweet peas, Smilax, gladioli, candy tuft, roses and delphiniums. There were attractive room decorations and a bank of these was the setting for the marriage ceremony. The bride is a graduate of Cottage Grove high school and is popular among the younger set. Mr. Allen is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Allen of this city. The couple left Saturday to spend a short honeymoon visiting in Portland and other cities. They will make their home here.

A picnic was given Wednesday night at the steel bridge east of the city in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Carrington and son and daughter of Sacramento, Cal., who are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leonard and of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Pullerton. Swimming was a diversion.

Prisoner Digs Way Out Of Lane County Jail

Albert Pierce, alleged drug addict, bound over to the grand jury on charge of theft of property, escaped Friday night from the county jail at Eugene by ripping part of a steel window frame from bolts set in weakened brick and pushing three or four bricks from the escape place in the west wall. The escape went unnoticed by James Randolph, night turnkey, who has resigned because of the jail break. Although none of the prisoners gave an outcry or attempted to warn authorities, all have proclaimed their innocence as accessories. Two prisoners were said to have tried to get through the hole left by Pierce but both became lodged fast and had to be helped back.

Prisoners have hinted that Pierce had outside help and that a woman may have helped. The fact that Pierce had to make his escape over the picket wall that surrounds the jail offsets the theory that he had outside help, Sheriff Frank E. Taylor believes.

This is the first break from the county jail since March three years ago, when 13 men escaped through the same window in the same manner. Other attempts to dig out have been made since but were unsuccessful.

Lindbergh Reply Received.

Mrs. Clara Burkholder received a card this morning acknowledging her letter of congratulation sent to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh upon his return to the United States. The postal card was sent out by the St. Louis chamber of commerce and was signed by the president, Harold M. Bixby. The card expressed appreciation for the interest taken in the great flier and said that the volume of mail he had received prevented this answer.
