HOODLUMS AND ROUGHNECKS.

"Hoodlums and roughnecks is what a number of boys of the city have been called.

That may not sound like a proper way to speak of boys.

But these boys had not been behaving properly or the appellation would not have been given them.

And those boys may be the children of some who will read this, although no reader is likely to think so, and probably would deny that his boy would do anything to deserve such an appellation, some of them probably even if they were told that their boys were among those to whom the appellation was applied.

The boys were spoken of in that manner by one who has given a great deal of time in trying to do something for the youngsters of the city. They were spoken of in that manner because they have made it so difficult for anything to be done for the youngsters of the city.

The Keepers of the Den, auxiliary of the Lions club, have been sponsoring a playground at the city park. They expected to get much satisfaction out of doing something worth while for the kiddies.

Children of the city had been asking that something be done for their entertainment, parents of the children thought that the city should provide playgrounds or something. So it was reasonable to expect that children would show their appreciation by giving the heartiest of cooperation.

But instead of satisfaction with having done something worth while, members of the Keepers of the Den are inclined to give up with disgust their effort to provide something for the kiddies, simply because some of the older ones have shown so little appreciation that they have destroyed some of the playground equipment, have stolen playground equipment which had been put away in a building on the grounds and have been destroying trees on the grounds. All this has been done after playgrounds hours.

Possibly there are no more than half a dozen or a dozen of the boys in the group that have made it probable that little kiddies of the city will be deprived of the playgrounds which they have so much enjoyed. These are the ones that have been designated hoodlums and roughnecks, and they probably deserve being thus designated.

Probably these older roughnecks have little brothers and sisters that will have that pleasure taken from them.

There might be some little excuse for destruction of playgrounds equipment in play but there can be no excuse for the deliberate theft of playground equipment, and there can be no excuse for the wanton destruction of pretty trees. When the springtime comes and other trees are putting forth their spring apparel, a number of trees that have had a ring of bark cut away will wither and die, unless something is done to cover the scars and give them a chance to heal.

Police protection at the park has been asked for. Think of it! Having to ask for protection from the kids is a pleasure provided for them. It is because of just such things as these that it is almost impossible to develop interest in the establishment of a Y. M. C. A. or some kind of a home for boys. Those who would have to provide the money have seen so much of the abuse by boys of the things provided for them that money is difficult to get.

If the playgrounds move is abandoned because of the hoodlumism and vandalism of boys, it will be a long time before anyone will again suggest anything for the kids.

The many will have to suffer for the few, but the few probably are those who have been loudest in suggesting to their elders that the city should have a Y. M. C. A. or should provide something to occupy the spare time of the kids.

PLUS-FOURS.
A wife in Ashland, according to the Tidings, has made several important discoveries since her husband took up golf.

Among these are the fact that a meal that has been on the table for two hours can be heartily enjoyed by a husband who has been out chasing the little white pellet over a 40-acre field.

Another discovery is that a husband who demands a golf course the greens of which are as smooth as a board has no such feeling toward the lawn at home, also that the number of young men craving a meal who chance along at a time when the lawn can go no longer is quite remarkable.

The most important discovery is that the husband who formerly made sport of plus-fours would like to wear them all the time.

Any game that can make a man like to wear plus-fours is a dangerous pastime and should be prohibited as endangering the welfare of the community, state and nation.

Man is not a pretty animal at best, and these plus-fours make up for all the hideous forms of dress which woman has worn since old Adam parted with one of his ribs. They are a kind of combination of the hoop skirt and the wasp waist, but they have one feature that recommends them. They should be economical. Two discarded gunny sacks are all that is required in the way of material, and but a few moments are required to sew them together at the top.

These remarks are made despite the fact that Adonis Claude Ingalls of Corvallis and Chesterfield Hugh Hume of Portland both don the plus-fours on occasion. Outside of this one besetting sin these two are respected and respectable citizens and what they might have been had they preferred to follow the straight and narrow and eschew the gannysack attire it is difficult to imagine. Plus-fours is the wrong name, they should be called minus-sizes.

If your pocketbook is in a healthy condition you can find some doctor who is ready to find something about your anatomy that isn't.

One nice thing about all these reform movements is that we emerge from them all without any great injury.

At first it seems quite a treat to a man to hand his wife money but the novelty is not long wearing off.

We would like to see good times if for no other reason than to kill off the kickers and knockers.

Recall Rainier Mayor Proposed.
Mayor A. E. Veatch of Rainier, who is one of several officials of that city who are threatened with a recall, is a relative of Mrs. H. F. Wayne of this city and has visited here several times. Veatch is also editor of the Rainier paper and is using editorial broadsides in that defense of the administration. He charges that the move to oust the present administration has been instigated by the wet forces.

Bond of Brotherhood
Between Poetic Souls
A certain young woman, a stenographer for a New York firm, is best known in an adjoining suburb as a "poetess." She jots her inspirations down in shorthand notes, transcribes them on her typewriter and submits the effusions to the local newspaper, which sometimes finds place for them.

One morning from New Jersey there was a heavy fog on the North river and the ferryboat was proceeding on its way gropingly, with frequent stops and much whistling. At one time, out of the gloom, a great hoarse whistle, suggesting an ocean liner, sounded near. There was a stir of uneasiness among the crowded passengers, and the poet's male companion looked up from his newspaper with a nervous frown.

"Are you afraid?" he asked of the poetess.

"Afraid!"—the word came with withering scorn. "Afraid! Why, you know Shelly died by drowning."—Harper's Magazine.

Stained Glass Makes Appeal to Converts
In the center of a Christian settlement in the jungle of Madak, Hyderabad, India, stands a Christian church of the proportions of a cathedral. This is the central place of worship for the great community of Indian Christians, numbering over 50,000, who have gathered around Rev. C. W. Posnett, a Wesleyan missionary, as a result of his 30 years' work in this native state.

The church was opened a year ago, but there seemed something lacking in its beautiful interior, despite the marbles and many tinted tiles. There was no stained glass in the windows. Six thousand Indian Christians have given the money for a window, designed by Frank O. Salisbury, a well-known British artist. The subject is the Ascension, and Mr. Salisbury says of the windows: "The desire of the donors was that their church should be as beautiful as any Mohammedan mosque or Hindu temple, and I trust that my work will help them to realize their ideal of beauty as an aid to worship."

Queen Victoria Story
Some amusing stories concerning Queen Victoria are told by Sir Felix Semon in his autobiography. The queen had a great sense of dignity, but she also possessed a keen sense of humor. For instance, when Sir James Reid, her majesty's physician-in-ordinary, became engaged to one of her maids of honor, the Hon. Miss Baring, the queen was exceedingly angry, and, sending for him, lectured him severely. He ought to have known, she told him, that nobody was permitted to propose to a maid of honor without obtaining the queen's permission. Sir James listened, then humbly answered that her majesty was quite right; he certainly would not do it again! This so strongly appealed to the queen's sense of humor that she laughed heartily, and without further ado extended her pardon.

So Letty Private
He was a newcomer to the bank and consequently found his duties rather hard to remember; but all this was forgotten when he received his first pay envelope.

In a businesslike manner he quickly checked the contents before signing the receipt. Then his eye caught the words underlined in black:

"Your salary is your personal business and a confidential matter. It should not be disclosed to anyone."

The clerk grinned as he picked up a pen and signed his name. Below he added briefly:

"I won't mention it to anyone. I am as much ashamed of it as you are."

India's Holi Festival
At the time of the vernal equinox, on the night of the full moon, the popular Holi festival is celebrated by the Hindus of India. The ceremonies, lasting for three days, are derived from the ancient spring festival. This festival, originally a solemn religious rite, has degenerated and is now known as the Surnalla of India. Bonfires are lit around the temples and sacrifices are made to the gods. Red powder called kunkuma is thrown about, as accidents through confetti, and the clothing of the people becomes covered with it.

Brain Works Rapidly
Assuming you began to think consciously at the age of three, then at thirty, if you have done an average amount of thinking your "impressions" would number about 1,920,000,000. Those whose work is entirely mental would double those figures.

A woman's brain is about five ounces lighter than a man's, but it is of superior quality—of a higher specific gravity. It lasts longer, too. On an average a woman of sixty has a 20 per cent better brain than a man of the same age.

The Kiss in History
Kisses between men were common in England until the Seventeenth century. Medieval knights used to kiss each other before they began jousting, as modern heavyweights shake hands. Pages in France used to kiss articles they were given to deliver, both when they received them from the hands of senders and just before they delivered them to recipients, as a sign of honor.

Theory vs. Practice
A "sham battle" would be a great relief to the mind if there were any assurance that a real battle would follow the pattern it lays down with any degree of respect.—Washington Star.
