

SOCIETY

A group of friends gathered Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rhode in celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Rhode. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCullough and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sears, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kent, Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Nickelson, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Peterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McKibben and Herman Rudolph.

The LaComus club was entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Metcalf. Additional guests were Mrs. C. E. Humphrey, Mrs. S. L. Mackin, Mrs. Omer Moore and Mrs. Ernest Lilly. Needlework was the afternoon's diversion. Names were drawn for the annual club Christmas tree. Fall flowers were attractive room and table decorations. A dainty two-course luncheon was served.

Mrs. Ivan Barker was hostess Tuesday afternoon for the Elmarites club, inviting as special guests Mrs. Glen Smith, Mrs. Fred Bennett and Mrs. F. H. Allison. At bridge Mrs. Smith held high score and Mrs. H. A. Hagen low score. The rooms were attractive with bouquets of Macheulmas daisies, dahlias, cosmos and rose buds.

Mrs. K. K. Mills entertained Tuesday afternoon for the M. P. G. club. Miss Dorothy Coshaw was a special guest. Autumn leaves were colorful room decorations and asters were the table centerpiece. The afternoon was spent with needlework. A delicious luncheon was served.

The junior Christian Endeavor of the Christian church will entertain Friday evening at the church for parents of members and others interested in the work of the group. A program is being planned and refreshments will be served.

Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Hagen and Mr. and Mrs. Sam R. Veatch will entertain jointly tonight in celebration of their fourth wedding anniversary.

The ladies' aid society of the Methodist church was entertained Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. The hostess committee was Mrs. Andrew Brund, Mrs. J. R. Hendricks, Mrs. Joe Porter and Mrs. V. S. Goff. Plans for the annual bazaar and chicken supper to be given next month were discussed. A social hour was held after the business session and light refreshments were served. The rooms were attractive with bouquets of dahlias and cosmos.

The Lions club and Keepers of the Den honored Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Colner with a theater party Tuesday night in Eugene. The group chartered a Southern Pacific bus to carry them to and from Eugene.

Mrs. K. K. Mills entertained Tuesday with a luncheon at the Gray Goose in honor of the seventh birthday anniversary of her son, Robert Gordon Mills. A number of his friends were guests.

Mrs. H. A. Miller, Mrs. A. W. Swanson and Mrs. Roy Short will entertain this afternoon at Masonic hall for the Constellation club.

Mrs. Marie Sweet and Mrs. Ethel Ferguson will be hostesses this afternoon for the Past Noble Grands in I. O. O. F. temple.

Mrs. Clara Burkholder will entertain the Social Twelve club at her home Thursday, October 6.

The O. L. H. Club will be entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Miller.

Mrs. F. H. Allison will entertain this evening for the Bona Tempo club at its first fall meeting.

The Good Neighbors club will be entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ivan Barker.

Initiation and a supper will be held Wednesday, October 12, by the Pythian Sisters.

Deer Destroy Garden.
Deer are destroying his vegetable garden, he has no gun with which to shoot them and he is unable to keep them away with clubs, says B. S. Nichols of Ada, Lane county, in a letter to County Judge Barnard.

The judge has replied that he ought to invite some hunters to visit his place. The matter has been referred to the deputy state game warden.

Mayor Knowles Observes Birthday.
"Hizzonor" George O. Knowles, mayor of Cottage Grove, passed cigars at the chamber of commerce luncheon Tuesday in honor of his birthday anniversary but failed to say just the number of years he has to his credit. He has been mayor of the city for several terms and has been identified with the growth of the city for 30 years. Before that he was active in the Bohemia mining district.

Bankruptcy Action Started.
An involuntary bankruptcy action against the Briggs Lumber and Logging company of Walker has been filed in federal court in Portland. Those bringing the action are O. E. Woodson and Knowles & Graber of Cottage Grove, the Eugene hospital and the Associated Oil company of San Francisco. Claims of the creditors total $1,091.95.

Pastor Linn Is Returned.
Pastor John A. Linn was again assigned to Cottage Grove as minister of the Methodist Episcopal church by the Methodist conference which closed Monday afternoon in Salem. This will be Pastor Linn's third year here. He returned late Monday night from the conference.

Culture in America in Pleistocene Age

Primitive man lived in America at a vastly earlier time than is generally believed, says Scientific Monthly. If the evidence gathered by the Colorado Museum of Natural History in the Southwest is valid, instead of dating back only some 8,000 to 25,000 years, the time when the Indian is supposed to have come to America from Asia, these human relics are assigned to the geological period known as the Pleistocene. It was in this age, from 25,000 to 1,000,000 years ago, that northeastern America was periodically covered with a glacier; and when prehistoric mastodons roamed the land.

The discoveries are mostly arrowheads, metates (primitive grinding instruments) and other worked stones found in close association with extinct animals. Near Fredrick, Okla., remains of a mammoth were found at a level of eight feet above that of a deposit which contained some of the relics. This is considered strong evidence of their antiquity. The arrowheads were totally unlike those in any known collection. They were primitive, but the man who made them must have progressed considerably in culture, as they were far in advance of the human relics of that period unearthed elsewhere.

First Horseshoes in Form of Sandals

It seems that the first protections used for the feet of horses and other beasts of burden were sandals-like in form. Notations to this effect were made by such ancient writers as Xenophon, who recommends leather soles and shoes for baggage horses, and Aristotle, who mentions a kind of sock bound on the feet of camels used in war. These were probably followed by the so-called hipposandals, which varied in form, but usually consisted of an oval metal plate prolonged backward on either side and sometimes carrying a curved hook. In front and laterally are wings provided with eyes and wings. Straps passed through these clips, hooks, eyes and rings, fastening the shoe to the foot. The nailed-on horseshoe as now found is thought to have been used some time before the Roman subjugation of Gaul. Several forms of shoes were made and it is probable that the art was practiced at more than one center, the Gauls generally being credited as the first to practice the art of horseshoeing. At that time a very light, slender shoe was fastened without the use of clips and the hoof was not pared. It is believed that the Druids made and fastened on the shoes for the Gallic warriors.

Retort Courtneys

C. Lewis Hind, in his book, "Naphtal"—the story of his adventures while earning a living by writing—tells of his first meeting with Amy Lowell, the New England poet. He attended a literary supper in New York and sat next to a "rather large, formidable woman with an assured smile and no apology for being late"—she had arrived half an hour after supper had been served.

"She took the seat next to mine and at once usurped the conversation readily and animatedly. I listened with delight and wondered who she might be. I began to put questions to her, mainly about poetry, which she answered slightly, with half her intelligence. After a rebuff more pointed, I said suddenly: 'I believe you are Miss Amy Lowell!'"

"She flashed her handsome eyes upon me and said: 'Who the h—l did you think I was?'"

Experiments

A live fish was produced by placing a fish egg under a powerful ultra-violet ray for five to ten minutes. This life was made without the male sperm. The eggs of the sea urchin were placed under the rays of the machine and the eggs became swimming fish larvae. The male was eliminated entirely. The identical experiment was performed on a starfish and other forms of animal life. Peculiar deformities were produced by placing the embryo chicken under the radiation. The resulting chick grew to have one eye, and a heart broken up into several pieces, each of which pulsed independently of its fellows.

Where Flowers Grow

Sleep-sided valleys and ravines are moist at their bottoms, and thus afford homes for plants that love water. It is difficult for water in such hollows to evaporate and thus the moisture conduces growth in moisture-loving plants. Evaporation at the bottom even of a shallow ravine goes on from 20 to 30 per cent less rapidly when the effect of the full sunlight at the top is contrasted with that of the deep shade at the bottom; the loss of water to the air at the lower end of the series may be less than half that of the upper.

Three Kicks in a Dollar

According to a leading resident of Emporia, Kan., who presented a park to that town recently, there are three kicks in every dollar. The first of these is when one makes the dollar, for naturally, he says "it has to be earned before you have it."

The second kick is when one saves it to keep it. And the third and biggest kick of all when it is given away. The corner stone of philanthropy is, in part, constructed of this last principle.

Things Not Seen

Into every transaction you have with our stores and markets there goes an "intangible something" that is not wrapped up in the package, weighed out over the scales or counted into a paper bag. It is something which you cannot buy elsewhere or—for that matter—you cannot "buy" from us. Yet, it is of incalculable value to you—your safeguard and your infallible assurance—and it is without price. That "something" is a part of ourselves, a bit of the spirit and the heart of this great situation, which enters into our every contract with you and strives—earnestly—to make that contract such a pleasant spot in your memory that you will always feel we have truly served you.
