Readjustment School
Taxes Is New Plan

State Would Be Required to Contribute Half, Districts
Only One-Fourth.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 30.—(Special).—A complete new plan of taxation for school purposes in the state of Oregon is now being worked out by Austin Landreth, principal of Pendleton high school, it was stated in the report of the committee on adequate revenue and equalization of taxation in Oregon, at the session of the Oregon State Teachers' association here. This plan, which is being worked out with the assistance of the University of Oregon school of education service bureau, calls for a revision of school taxes so that the state as a whole will bear 50 per cent of school costs, the county 25 per cent and the district 25 per cent.

Mr. Landreth, who has worked on school finance with Dr. Homer P. Rainey, formerly of the school of education of the University, points out that in this way "taxes will be collected where the wealth is, and spent where the children are." Under this system, which is patterned after that now in effect in New York, a more unified school system is possible, with unified statewide control.

The immediate effect of the plan would be to lighten the district tax, which, it is pointed out, is now a heavy load on many parts of the state. Districts that are lacking in funds would thus be adequately supplied and educational opportunities for all children would be equal.

A similar plan is actually working satisfactorily in New York state, Mr. Landreth points out, so that it is not just an experiment.

Take Horrible Risk in Pursuit of Sport

Savages are as fond of sport as are civilized peoples, but many of their games appear to be unduly risky. One such game is "clam bailing," played on the Coral Sea.

The procedure is for a man to swim directly over a giant clam—which may weigh several hundred pounds—as it lies wide open on the bottom, waiting to entrap fish and other food, and drop a stone into it.

This causes the clam to bring its tremendous serrated "lips" together with terrific speed, and the danger lies in the rush of water caused by this sudden movement sweeping the man into the creature's grip, from which there would be no getting away. There have been many narrow escapes and some cases in which the bather was caught. But the natives think it great fun and talk delightedly of how they had made the clam "think he got something to eat when he only got a stone."—London Daily News.

Didn't Lose His Religion

On the first day of school recently, Junior, age five, promptly started off to kindergarten. Junior is usually a rather talkative little chap and his proud mother was a little surprised that he had so little to say when he returned on his first school day.

"Did everything go off all right, Junior?" she asked, hoping, he would tell her of his experience. "I got into just a little trouble," he answered. "I got into one of the grownups' rooms by mistake. Some one asked me if I was a primary, but I told them no, I was a Methodist."—Indianapolis News.

The Old Sugar Bowl

In the days when candy was a rare treat, children clamored for sugar on their bread. A slice of home-made bread, generously buttered, with a layer of sugar on top, would fill every longing for sweets.

The sugar bowl, to meet its occasions, was tall, with a roundness that suggested the girth of an alderman. Always filled, it occupied a place of honor on the table. Be-hold the sugar bowl of today—a thing no larger than a baby's fist. The candy shop has swept away the large old-fashioned container.

Hurt by Wrong Training

A man should be in his prime physically at thirty years of age. If he is not, it is because of a lack of balance in his physical training, declares the bulletin of the Dayton department of health.

Overtraining may strain the heart and unbalance the nerves. Undue exertion is responsible for weakness of muscles and lack of development of the lungs. Dissipation undermines his resistance. One of the worst of these evils is smoking. If a man begins to look and feel old in his early thirties.—Hygiene Magazine.

Cause of Poor Writing

Dr. William Root of the University of Pittsburgh says that as a general rule persons of low mentality are good hand writers. "Intelligent people," according to Doctor Root, "think 20 times faster than they can write and, therefore, the arm is so far behind the activity of the brain that the result is poor writing. A person low in mentality has nothing else to think about but the shaping of his letters. But it does not necessarily follow that if you are a poor penman you are an intelligent, or vice versa."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Inexcusable Mistake

There is a delightful old Irish woman who keeps a corner fruit stand in a Western town. One day a gentleman disposed to be facetious took up a fine melon from her stall, and said gravely: "You have pretty good apples in this state; but where I come from we have them twice that size."

The old lady looked up from her stool, surveyed the joker coolly and replied in a tone of pity: "Ah, what for should I be wastin' me breath to talk to wan that takes our gooseberries for apples!"

Found at Last

The harassed-looking man was being shown over some works. "That machine," said his guide, "does the work of 20 men."

"At last," he said, "I have seen what my wife should have married."

Court of Honor Meets.

Four members of boy scout troop No. 16 passed their second class scout tests and received their second class scout badges at a court of honor meeting held Friday night.

Those passing the test were Richard Roberts, Paul Sanders, Leonard Mitchell and Karl Thomason. Another scout, George Hawley, was given a merit badge. He has only one more merit badge to earn to become a star scout. Troop 16, which has been organized since October, already has seven second class scouts and one first class scout. A number of scouts in the tenderfoot class will be ready to take their second class tests at the next court of honor meeting in January.

A number of parents were present for the general meeting of the court.

Bridge Is to Be Razed.

After standing for 54 years, the old Hayden bridge will soon be razed and plans are now being made for this job by county bridge crews. The new Hayden bridge of steel was opened this week and the old span which has served since 1874 has been closed. The covering of the old bridge has been taken down. The flooring and stringers which were installed during the past few years will be removed and the material used to repair smaller county bridges. Taking down the frame of the old bridge which has a span of 117 feet will be quite a problem. It is probable that the bridge will be jacked up at each of the end piers and dynamite placed to toss the entire structure into the river.

Telephone Is Stolen.

Talk is said to be cheap, but some one seems to believe that it is worth stealing. A telephone was stolen several nights ago from the Sunnyside greenhouses and there is no clue to the thief. An Alredale dog was chained nearby, but since the theft the chain has been removed and it is not likely that any thief will venture very close.
