Boy Scouts Like Camp.

Reports received here from the boy scout camp near Blue River praise the camp highly. The group is divided into five patrols. The boys attending from Cottage Grove have been placed in one patrol under the leadership of Howard Arnest and are named the Blackfoot. Totem poles are placed in front of each patrol camp. The camps receive daily inspection and the one in best order has a stripe painted around its totem pole.

An interesting item received is about a great distinction bestowed upon one prominent scout, Paul Sanders, who was crowned Cressate King. It is an outstanding rank that few receive, according to reports, and was conferred with great pomp and ceremony.

Metal Removed from Highway.
A road magnet machine being operated on the Pacific highway south of the city under the direction of the highway commission is attracting much attention. The machine clears the highway of any metal particles or small objects which are a death on tires. It is being operated this week between Salem and Grants Pass. A close check is being kept on the pick up and on the first day after leaving Salem it had picked up 246 pounds of metal. Claims are made for the machine that it will prevent 80 per cent of tire punctures if kept in operation. Wayne Taylor and Fred Wolfe are running the machine.

Among a sheaf of good stories told by Sir Harry Lauder from his recent world tour is one concerning a Scotsman who called an Englishman to account for having referred to the English army. "British army, if you please," he insisted. Later in the evening, when the two were at a sing-song together, the Highlander called upon the other to suggest a song. "Right!" responded the Englishman. "Let's have the 'Blue Bells of Britain'."

Glasses used for milk are more easily washed if not put into hot water until first rinsed in cold water. The heat dries the milk in and gives a cloudy appearance which cannot easily be removed.

Starch is kept from sticking by adding to a small panful a drop or two of kerosene or a little lard and letting it come to a boil.
