

Highly Colored Bird

Flamingo is a bird of a flaming red color, from which it derives its name. It is web-footed, and while resembling the stork and heron in build, it is a swimmer like other web-footed birds. The flamingo is found in Central and South America, and India.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called ReXall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, excavating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a ReXall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest ReXall Drug store.—Adv.

Reduction Through Rate On O. P. & E. Expected

A reduction of several cents in through rates from points on the Oregon Pacific & Eastern railway to points in California, Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico is contemplated in negotiations being carried on between officials of the local railway and officials of the Southern Pacific. It is understood that an agreement has been reached for the publication of rates with only a slight differential over rates from Cottage Grove for mills loading at Culp Creek, Walden and Cerro Gordo. It is expected that the new tariff will be out within six weeks and that the new rates will become effective immediately following such publication.

prescribed elevation of the bridge, a huge, live cedar tree was felled in the nearby forest from which pier stock of 14x16 inches and 14x14 inches was hewed and great bents fashioned. These were securely anchored on top of the base concrete piers, thus saving a heavy concrete expense. It is said that these live cedar trees are equal, or nearly so, in lasting qualities to concrete. This bridge has a span from main pier to main pier of 95 feet and crosses the stream at right angles, the new road swinging directly up stream from the south approach. Painters are on the job and the two new bridges—one and the Sharps creek bridge a half mile below, which was completed just prior to the commencement of the Disston bridge—are being given glittering coats of white.

The bridge crew is now being used to move several buildings on the right of way of the new road leading toward Disston. Among buildings to be moved are the Carter barn, Suter barn and residence, two small buildings on the George Myers ranch and the George Smith home.

BEDROCK—A brief visit to this point, at the mouth of Teeters creek, where Mr. and Mrs. Wes Christman successfully conducted a store for a year and a half, disclosed the fact that there are new faces behind the counter. Mr. Christman was on hand, however, and introduced the new owners of the attractive little business, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McKinney, recently of Idaho. Mr. and Mrs. Christman propose to take life easy for a year or two.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Slagle, who resided during the summer at Red bridge, where Mr. Slagle was engaged in bridge work, removed Friday to the W. A. Woodard Lumber company's mill south of Cottage Grove, where Mr. Slagle has a position.

MOSBY CREEK—A short stop was made at the Dan Brumbaugh home, but the family was away, likewise "Dan." During the forest fire season this sturdy son of his sire, Sam Brumbaugh, who was an Oregon pioneer of the year 1807, is like the Irishman's dog, here there and everywhere. It was in '71 that Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brumbaugh came from Salem and located homestead land on Mosby creek. Seven children were born, three now surviving, of whom Dan is the youngest. He owns a comfortable home and 140 acres, 6 1/2 miles up Mosby from Cottage Grove. For 26 young years Mr. Brumbaugh has been developing the fire characteristic above mentioned, as it was then that he entered the employ of Booth Kelly Lumber company in the capacity of forest fire warden, and during all these years, notwithstanding that he has resigned two or three times, his love of the big sticks and the fire trail, has kept him on the job. He is now in the employ of the timber association. The moment the season opens he's on the job, his territory extending over Mosby creek, Row river and tributaries, where his men are employed steadily during the season as Mr. Brumbaugh's assistant. This year it is Hubert Mosby, who patrols the Row river section. Dan has been fortunate throughout these years of service, during which he has worked on fires too numerous to be recalled, and just a few days ago came near his first accident that might easily have been a tragedy. In controlling a fire on Sharps creek he was blown well up on the side of a small canyon, hard at work. He was surrounded on all but one side, which he counted on for egress. He was depending upon a warning cry from the boys below in the event of a cut-in on his route of return, but the fire was roaring so loudly that he failed to hear the warning call. All at once he discovered that the fire was swinging in behind him. He knew he could not make it out up the draw ahead of the fire, so he acted on impulse and took down the line through the opening fire. "It took quick work and it was some going," said Dan, "but I made it, but see my beautiful eyebrows." They were singed to a nice crinkly crisp. He said that the Culp Creek fire and the small one on Sharps creek are now practically out and he is at liberty to devote his attention to the Penn Hill fire to the east of Sagganaw, which has been burning in the old cutover of Booth Kelly. He is authority for the statement that he has controlled this fire and had it practically out two times and each time he is satisfied that it was reset. Burning to the east, it has now reached green timber.

A unique mail box device is noticeable at the bridge which connects the east and west Mosby creek roads. An old wagon wheel has been planted on top of a post, and a door high. On the spokes of the wheel are fastened the several mail boxes, the wheel being of sufficient size to hold ten of them. The carrier delivers the mail to the several boxes by turning the wheel, with only the one stop to make for the several boxes.

ROW RIVER—Arthur Bales, well known timberman and rancher on Harms creek, has taken a position with the W. A. Woodard Lumber company as faller.

C. J. Howard killed a three-foot rattlesnake in the Row river road near the Kelly bridge yesterday. It carried seven rattles. This point is almost opposite Cerro Gordo mountain, which was in years past considered one of the most "homey" places in all this section for rattlers. The season has been very dry. It is said that when the water on the snake mountain dries up the rattlers start for the valley streams. Row river is near the foot of this rattlesnake and this old boy evidently had joined the "wets." In view of the fact that the swimming hole at Kelly bridge is visited by many bathers, a warning to be constantly on the lookout is timely. Few rattlers have been found in this section in recent years, but one may be run onto any time and they are ugly customers. This one was a fighter. He coiled and struck twice, made one half coil strike and two running strikes before he was disabled so that he could not travel, then he laid and struck the bank of the road grade several times until his head went flat under a goodsized "niggerhead." It took the old man some time to get to going in this rock throwing game, but when he did get wound up he would have made "Babe" Ruth dizzy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cooper have returned from a brief visit to Dilhard.

Old Age Pensions Are Up at Public Meeting

D. D. Hail of Portland, deputy grand worthy president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and state chairman of the old age pension committee, will speak on the old age pension idea at a public meeting, sponsored by the local Eagles lodge, at 8 p. m. September 4 in I. O. O. F. hall. He will explain how the old age pension system works in states that have adopted it in place of the old people's poor farm idea. He will also tell of what work is being done in Oregon to foster this system. It was the Eagles lodge that originated the idea of Mothers' day. A bill on old age pensions is to be introduced at the next legislative session and the Eagles lodge is sending out speakers to interest people of the state in the old age pension work. Mr. Hail is said to be a forceful speaker and the public is urged to hear him. The local lodge will meet early to hold a business session before time for the public meeting.

Fire Destroys Boyle Home. Fire destroyed the Boyle residence on south Sixth street Sunday afternoon. The Cottage Grove fire department responded to the call even though the house was outside the city limits but could do little because the house was a distance beyond water mains. The house was unoccupied and was being remodeled. It was originally built by Henry Whitlock.

It was believed that the fire started from a nearby grass fire. The careless throwing of a lighted match or cigarette was believed the cause of the grass fire. The fire department was called Monday noon to extinguish a grass fire near the burner at the Cottage Grove Manufacturing plant. The flames were beaten out. It was feared that the fire might spread to the manufacturing plant. Burning of the grass has removed a hazard, Fire Chief S. L. Mackin said.

Sees Growth of City. Frank D. Wheeler of Los Angeles, former president of the Cottage Grove chamber of commerce, was a guest at the Tuesday noon luncheon of the chamber. In a short address he commented upon the progress of the city and its wonderful future and emphasized the importance of cooperation.

L. C. Michener, who represented the local chamber at the hearing on the proposed cross-state railway, reported upon things that happened at the hearing.
