Human Life Expended to Produce Fine Lace

Almost every country in Europe knows something of the delicate art of lace making. Egypt also knew it, and other peoples of the Orient. Italy was probably the first to make the almost priceless needlepoint, from fax thread so carefully spun that an ounce is worth $2,000. Of the same thread, though less fine in texture, was made the beautiful Valenciennes lace so greatly prized by Marie Antoinette and her high born milkmaids. The finest needlepoint is done with a thread of cobweb thinness, the pattern drawn on parchment. Finest laces are still made in damp underground rooms to preserve the thread, only one ray of light being admitted to fall directly upon the work. Among the church treasures of France and Italy are beautiful altar cloths and other laces, which the visitor is often told are the work of nuns and devoted women who plied their needle in dark and dampness underground until they became blind or died of consumption or some kindred disease.

Coral Reefs Inland

Mention of coral reefs brings to one's mind a picture of palm-dotted islets girt with white sands in a tropical sea, but geologists find coral reefs in the midst of great continents. These, of course, belong to a past age of the earth's history, but on that account they are the more interesting. Within late years several remarkable reefs of fossil coral have been explored near Balmbridge, on the Flint river, in Georgia. In one case a very large portion of the reef exposed consisted of coral heads, some of which were more than a foot in diameter. Between 25 and 30 species of coral have been recognized in these reefs. They are ascribed to the Tertiary age.

Forty Years After

Two boyhood playmates met in a Brooklyn court. One was the judge, the other the prisoner, a ragged, nerve-racked picture of failure. "Tom, do you remember me?" the judge asked. "Yes," answered Tom, his hands shaking and his voice quavering. He was being arraigned for the eighteenth time for intoxication. He had been in the workhouse five times. He was fifty-five. "You and I were playmates," the judge recalled. "You were going to be a great lawyer and I was going to be a truck driver."

Holmes Pine Protected

The purchase of an estate with a proviso that a certain pine tree upon it must not be cut or removed has been recorded at Pittsfield. The estate, once famous as the summer home of Oliver Wendell Holmes, is known as Holmesdale. One of the restrictions in the deed is the following pertaining to an historic old pine in Canoe Meadows: "Subject to the restriction which the grantee agrees for himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to observe to wit: "That the tree known as the Holmes pine, standing by itself in the meadows to the south of the house, should be allowed to stand as long as the course of nature permits, and that it shall never be cut down or moved while it remains in a live and healthy condition."—Boston Post.

Sounded Inhabitable

In 1860 William H. Seward visited Minnesota in company with Charles Francis Adams and Senator James W. Nye. The citizens of St. Anthony, wishing to receive the distinguished statesman in a becoming manner, appointed a committee to meet the guests and escort them into town. After waiting some time, the committee learned that the party had reached town by another route, and returning to the hotel, were introduced to Mr. Seward. The spokesman, a lawyer of the place, after a few brief remarks, said: "Mr. Seward, we are very sorry, indeed, that we did not have the opportunity of escorting you into town, but we beg to assure you that we shall take great pleasure in escorting you out of it."—Detroit News.

Much Easier

"In these modern days," sighed the Spinster, "it is no easy matter for a woman to get married." "It's easier for a woman to marry a man than to let some other woman marry him," replied the Cynical Bachelor.

More Speculation as to "First Americans"

The natives of the New world communicate with the inhabitants of the Old world before the discovery of America by the Norsemen about the year 1000. This is always an interesting question for speculation, says Pathfinder Magazine. Carlos Mercado, a Latin American investigator, reports that near Esmeraldas, in Ecuador, he excavated pieces of pottery containing inscriptions resembling Egyptian hieroglyphics, Arabian numbers and drawings indicating Greek Phoenician and Mongolian characteristics. These articles were found in the ruins of an ancient Indian civilization.

Mercado states that he spent seven years excavating with a view to unearthing valuable metals. More than 10,000 archeological pieces were discovered. One piece is described as resembling a reproduction of the tower of Babel, and a stone figure suggests Samson embracing the fragments of two stone columns. The pieces also contain what seem to be Aztec or Mayan inscriptions.

Pumice Stone Used as Substitute for Razor

If your razor is used by the wife to sharpen a pencil or by a young hopeful for a screw-driver, use pumice stone to shave yourself with. Samuel Pepsy used pumice stone. Writing on Sunday, May 25, 1902, the diarist says: "To trimming my self, which I do every morning, with every morning with a pumice stone which I learnt of Mr. Marsh, when I was last at Portsmouth; and I shall continue the practice of it." Six days later he tells us: "I cut off all my beard, which I have been a great while bringing up only that I may with my pumice stone do my whole face, as I now do my chin, and to save time, which I find a very easy way and gentle." The Arabs of Palestine often use pumice stone to "clean up" after shaving with pieces of broken glass bottles.

Tuesday Evening Club Gives Library Books

Through a book shower given by the Tuesday Evening club, 16 books have been added to the shelves of the city library. The books include six of fiction, five of non-fiction and five children's books. Members of the club donated the books to assist the library in providing the best type of books for circulation.

The fiction books are: "Gran-stark" by McCutcheon, whose books of this series have won popular favor; "Christopher Hibbault, Roadmaker" by Bryant; "You Never Know Your Luck" by Gilbert Parker, English novelist; "Conquest of Canaan" by Booth Tarkington, popular American novelist; "Anna Karenina" by Leo Tolstol, famous Russian writer; "Their Yesterdays" by Harold Bell Wright.

The five non-fiction books are: "American Republic" by Fortman; "Emergency in China" by Pitt; "The Backward Child" by Morgan, a study of psychology and treatment of backwardness; "How to Judge a Book" by Shuman; "Teaching by Projects" by McMurtry, who has written a number of textbooks.

"Brownie Bunny," "Little Susie Stories," "Robinson Crusoe" by DeFoe, "Juan and Juanita" and "On Autumn Trails" by Emma Lindsay Squier comprise the group of children's books.

Miss Squier's book, "On Autumn Trails and Adventures in Captivity," has been favorably received by critics. She became famous as a writer of nature stories almost overnight with a previous volume, "The Wild Heart." Her present volume contains further stories of the wild heart—stories that will make more than one hunter leave his gun at home. The autumn trails show the wild folk of the great north woods while "Adventures in Captivity" tell of the author's contact with the aged animals of the movie studios. "On Autumn Trails" are personal experiences told with the charm of one who knows the great outdoors and loves animals.

Luba Brotherhood Debates

An interesting debate was a feature of entertainment at the regular business meeting Monday night of the Luba Brotherhood. The question was: "Resolved: that it would be advantageous to the kingdom for the Methodist and Presbyterian churches to merge as was suggested at the general conference." The affirmative team was composed of G. B. Arnest and Roy Leonard and the negative of C. E. Umphrey and Albert Woodard. The affirmative won the decision, two to one. Additional numbers on the program were vocal solo, Gladys Leonard, and violin solo, Albert Smith Jr.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History - a Six in the price range of the four!

represents 4 years of Development and over a Million miles of Testing

Years ago, the Chevrolet Motor Company designed and built its first experimental six-cylinder motor. This far-sighted step was taken because Chevrolet engineers knew that the six-cylinder motor is inherently the most perfectly balanced motor—the ideal power plant to meet the growing public demand for greater reserve power, faster get-away and, above all—smooth, quiet performance.

Day and night, through winter's cold and summer's heat, the incessant testing went on—until the present motor was developed and finally pronounced correct. At the same time other Chevrolet engineers were perfecting other parts of the chassis. And another great automotive organization—the Fisher Body Corporation—was devoting its gigantic resources to the creation of the finest, sturdiest and most beautiful bodies ever offered on a low-priced automobile. As a result, the Outstanding Chevrolet offers an order of well-balanced excellence—a combination of performance, comfort, beauty and handling ease that is truly remarkable—with a fuel-economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. You owe it to yourself to see and inspect this remarkable car. Come in today!
