A SUGGESTED CURE.

COTTAGE GROVE, Ore., March 18.—(To the Editor.)—In your valuable paper, issue of March 7, you gave a prominent place to the story "Drinking at Danco. Hain Is Put Under Ban." You say: "There has been so much complaint of drinking and festive encounters at dances that the city council has enacted a drastic ordinance in an effort to control the situation. Why do we need an action of that kind? Do we not still live in the United States, or has Cottage Grove recently set up its own government? If any have been drinking in our dance halls, why are they not in the county jail where they belong? The answer is plain: Our officers say they have no support from the people. They say that if 50 men will stand back of them, they will clean up the booze. My opinion is that if we were to begin at the top the whole problem would be settled in no time.

Suppose at the next dance some prominent person should show signs of being under the influence of liquor and should get festive, would he be arrested? I believe not, for we all know that half the voters at least would sign a petition for his release. Then, too, no one would be willing to swear the person was in such a condition. Would you bother with an offender, under those conditions, if you were a cop? Our officers are honorable men but the only thing they could do would be to have the council pass another ordinance. There are those in our city who seem to regard the national constitution as no more than a scrap of paper.

Twelve years ago our country called on its men to make almost impossible sacrifices. I have seen a father of three children lay down his life at the front. A lover also at the same time "went west." A young sergeant, struck squarely in the mouth with a piece of shrapnel, his pellet split in half, his lower jaw broken in three or four places and all his teeth shot away also gave all a large piece of charcoal pulled from a burned battle tank was only a few hours before a young soldier. If these and those who more did not sacrifice for honor, peace, sobriety and virtue, then what was it for?

CITIZENS, wake up.
 ALBERT C. WOODARD.
 Budget Director Koger is as busy as a setting hen with three broods of chickens. Between trying to satisfy those who want expenses cut to the core and those who want all the cuts to be made in some other department, he doesn't have much time for social functions. Cottage Grove Sentinel.

Perhaps the Sentinel can explain why a hen sits on a perch and sets on a nest. It is our opinion that while you may set a hen she will have to hatch her own chicks—Junction City Times.
 Editor Tom Nelson is correct, but sometimes it is easier to jest by being colloquial. Tom missed the best chance to call us a hen with three broods of chicks, hasn't a chance to be either a setting hen or a sitting hen—Cottage Grove Sentinel.

Well there is room for argument there. If she were a modern chick she would probably hire a brooder to attend to the three broods, and then go about her business—Junction City Times.

CURTIN.

Durable Woods.
 Cedar,ypress and redwood are classed in the same durability group and have approximately the same decay-resisting properties. The decay resistance of these species, however, lies in their heart wood only; the sapwood of all of them will rot rather quickly when used under conditions which favor decay.

Dr. D. E. Olson Sued By Buyers Oil Stock

Money Was Invested During Time Promoters Was Booster for Well Here.
 Dr. David Eugene Olson, whose activities in promoting drilling for oil at Cottage Grove and Eugene kept him in the limelight here for several years, is named as a defendant in a suit for the recovery of money filed in circuit court Saturday by Wallace and Annie Huntington. C. A. Olson is also named as a defendant.

In their complaint the Huntingtons allege that they gave the Olson $10,000 on March 10, 1933, toward the development of alleged oil losses in Riverside and Sonoma counties in California. One lease of 1000 acres was supposed to be in Riverside county and already had a check and a well on it. The well, their state, was supposed to have been drilled to a depth of 1000 feet and was about ready to come in. The plaintiffs gave $5000 toward the development of this project, in which the defendants claimed to have a half interest. The other $5000 was invested in a 1000-acre holding in Sonoma county where prospects of success were described as even more favorable. In the contract signed between the Huntingtons and the Olsons, the defendants stipulated that if the plaintiffs were not satisfied in all ways their money would be returned to them with interest at eight per cent, should they give notice before a year had passed. The return of the money with interest was asked on February 1, 1934, less than a year from the signing of the contract. The defendants failed to abide by the terms of the contract, the plaintiffs alleged. Neither well, it states further, has ever produced oil in paying quantities, if at all.
