Carl Porter sustained a severe gash on the chest Tuesday forenoon while employed at a cut-off saw at the J. H. Chambers & Son mill. The muscles about the right side of his chest were cut and torn and several stitches were required to close the wound. No one saw the accident but it is believed that he must have stumbled and pulled the saw towards and against himself. It would have been impossible for him to control the direction of the body without in some way getting under the saw. He was given first aid treatment by Dr. C. E. First and taken to a Eugene hospital. His injuries are not thought to be serious.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harms of Portland spent the week end at the homes of Mr. Harms' mother, Mrs. Sarah Harms, and Mrs. Harms' parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson. He was recently found by a patrolman on Mr. McKimney's former visit but is very emaciated. Though there is no paralysis he is suffering from arthritis and there is practically no hope of recovery. His son, Ernest, and Merwin McKimney, Albany, visited him the fore part of last week.

Mrs. C. M. Van Buren of Seapooles left Monday for her home after a several days' visit here with her sisters, Mrs. Mary Hambrick and Mrs. William McFarland. She also attended the Sunset Trail pageant in Eugene and visited another sister, Mrs. L. M. Armstrong.

Vanover is Stricken. Dick Vanover, brother of Dick Vandever of Divide, suffered a heart attack Friday night while attending the Sunset Trail celebration in Eugene. He was stricken while standing near the city park in that city and was unconscious when found. He was taken to the Eugene hospital, where he later regained consciousness and left soon afterward for his brother's home here.

Trumped. Dropping into his club, a thirsty member ordered a bottle of beer, but before he could enjoy it he was called away by a telephone call. In order to protect his property, he seized the top card of a pack—it happened to be the three of diamonds, and, writing his name upon it, leaned it against the bottle and went to answer the call. When he returned his beer had gone.

"I say," he complained loudly, "where's my drink?" "Oh, didn't you know," chuckled a nearby denizen of an easy chair, "old Jenkins came along with the order to protect his property, he seized the top card of a pack—it happened to be the three of diamonds, and, writing his name upon it, leaned it against the bottle and went to answer the call."

Animal and Bird "Parks" We hear much about parks for cities and men, but little about such places for animals. Yet they exist. Puffin Island, off the coast of Anglesey, is a "park" sacred to wild birds. At Hawkmoor, near Chendle, Staffordshire, England, there is another natural "park" of 200 acres for birds.

A "park" for birds at Ealing, to be adapted from a large house with grounds, and to cost some $25,000, was proposed by the Selborne society as a memorial to the late W. H. Hudson.

Nesting in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is the beautiful wooded, mountainous island of Anticosti. The 2,000 square miles of this property is one giant fish and game "park."

Improving the Foresight Men talk a good deal of the superiority of hindsight as compared with foresight. . . . There is plenty of hindsight to govern every human action. . . . Men have had every possible experience, and told about it. Women do not mercifully review their past, but men do; I never was in a group of men who did not confound themselves with mistakes, and warn others against them. . . . All learning is hindsight; a review of views after they have happened. And what has happened is the future.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Unburnable Paper A German inventor, Franz Franck, has produced a paper that will not burn. At a recent demonstration the inventor took a newspaper, crumpled it into a ball, and wrapped this highly combustible object in a sheet of his fireproof paper. Thus protected, he held it for a few minutes in the flame of a laboratory blast lamp and brought to a glass window pane. Not only did the fireproof wrapping survive but the ordinary paper inside was not even scorched.

Historic "Eliot Oak" John Eliot, the "Apostle of the Indians," and the founder of Natick, gathered the red Indians together within the shades of the forest and preached to them beneath a white oak, now a mighty tree, universally known as the Eliot oak. Measurements taken a few years ago gave this tree a trunk circumference of 13 feet 2 inches, a height of 100 feet and a branch spread of 100 feet.

Rickshaw Drawing Not Heavy Physical Labor

Adolph Basler, director of the physiological institute of the Sun Yat sen university in Canton, China, recently made some interesting observations on the rate of work performed by a coolie drawing a rickshaw. This form of rickshaw is peculiar in that the runner exerts is practically all forward. The arms are held by the shafts of the vehicle, and since the vehicle's center of gravity is over the axle, the coolie does not have to exert any upward force. The work he does is consequently the same as if he were pulling a weight by a cord running over a pulley.

It was found that the rickshaw coolie ran from four to six miles an hour, consuming during fast locomotion about one-tenth of a horse power—the same, that is, as if he were trawing five and a half pounds one foot in each second. This is over and above the amount of work the coolie would do while pulling the load of the vehicle. The expenditure of energy is much less than that of the oarsmen in a university boat race.

Italians Lay Claim to First Spectacle Maker

It is a little over three hundred years ago since the World's First Spectacle Makers' Guild received its charter from Charles I and the tercentenary is soon to be commemorated. But is it quite correct to speak of it as being the tercentenary of spectacles? Among the lesser sights of Florence is a house which bears a tablet affixed "to honor the memory of Salvino Degli Armati, inventor of spectacles in the thirteenth century." Strangely enough, although our own spectacle makers' guild had its charter in 1629, we find Pepys, nearly forty years afterward, complaining of his eyesight. He adds: "I am mighty hot upon trying the late experiment of paper tubes." If the Italian claim is authentic, it seems inconceivable that the boom of spectacles should have reached about three centuries to reach us.—Montreal Family Herald.

Flouting the Truth

There is no excuse for seven tenths of the mistakes we make. The world is full of certainties; the list is so extensive that almost everything is covered. What has happened in the past is warning for the future; and nearly everything has happened. If we may know about the distant planets—and we do—how much easier it is to know about our bodies, the habits of men, other things we may handle and taste. Men are actually tremendously clever; their trouble is that after discovering the truth, they say the truth is an outrage, and try to change it.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Deadly White Ants

The United States exports from telegraph poles to South Africa, found 20,000 soldiers in one army, but it would be quickly destroyed by the powerful jaws of the terrible white ants. In Ceylon black "army" ants marched on the warpath. A scientist coming there, found 20,000 soldiers in one army, marching in companies about twenty abreast, with officers running up and down the line keeping order. Let a horse or man break a leg and fall in one path of any army and in a few hours only a skeleton is left, according to Prof. J. Arthur Thomson in "Outline of Science."

Insulted Again

The two artists met each other at the vernishing day exhibition. They discussed art together and were unanimous in blaming the judges for not having selected their immortal works to be hung on the walls. "Well, I can't grumble, I'm not doing so badly," remarked one of the pair at last. "How's that?" asked the other. "Got a commission?" "Yes, from a millionaire. He wants his children painted badly." "O," remarked his companion, "then I should say that you're the very man for the job."

Bunyan's Flute

While John Bunyan, who wrote Pilgrim's Progress, was in prison his jailors heard music coming from his cell. They decided to take away his instrument, but the music ceased as they drew near the cell, and they could find nothing to show how the music was made. From time to time the sound of music was heard, but only Bunyan and his book were found. What had happened was that Bunyan had had a flute from a loose rat of his stool, and on hearing the gopher's step he would slip it back into its place and pore over his book.

Too True

There had been another quarrel in the Spatts' menage, and Spatt was gloowering in the evening. Mrs. Spatt hated him for his silence. "Furthermore," she began again, "you certainly aren't much of a husband." "The man threw down his paper and regarded the woman he papered and the altar appraisingly. "Well, my dear," he said wearily, "I think I can truthfully say you're a lot of a wife."

Odd English Bird

Pied wagtails are attractive birds, with bold, swinging flight, says Nature Magazine. Their call is somewhat like their relatives, the plovers, as they fly, then alighting beside a stream or stagnant pool to feed, while constantly wagging their long tails. These pied wagtails of England are clad in contrasting black and white; the white wagtails, more common on the continent, are gray and white.

"Warden of Life"

It was in 1912 that Casimir Funk, at that time associated with the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, said: "There is a force that exercises vital guardianship over the nutritive processes by which inert food material is translated into human feeling, thought and action. . . . This force we call vitamin, because it is the warden of life—because it is necessary to life."

Cause of Cloudburst

The popular idea that a so-called cloudburst consists of a vast quantity of water held in the sky in liquid form which is suddenly released is erroneous. A cloudburst occurs when a large quantity of water vapor condenses suddenly instead of gradually. As soon as water vapor condenses gravity causes it to fall rapidly.

First Illustrated Book

The "Biblia Pauperum" was published between 1430 and 1450. It was a small work of some 14 pages illustrated with wood cuts and so called because it was for the poor preachers who could not afford to own a copy of the Bible. It can be seen at the British museum.

Successful Hotel Man Must "Know the Ropes"

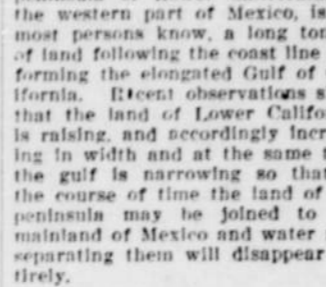

Every big metropolitan hotel faces bankruptcy its first year. People are skittish about going to a new one, no matter how fine it is, until some one breaks the ice. Fortunately is the hospitality which can attract a few notables under its room soon after it opens for business. That is why free board and lodging frequently are offered certain celebrities who may be brought off that way. Once it is noted around that people of importance are putting up at a hotel the herd follows. Then, of course, continued prosperity depends upon service standards maintained. The management always tries to create a prosperous air around a new hotel. One trick is to turn on the lights at dusk in every outside room. Employees circulate around raising and lowering shades to give an air of bustle and life. Page boys are instructed to show important names in the lobby and dining rooms even if the owners of those names are in Europe. All these tricks help.

Disappearing Gulf

However slow and imperceptible the process may be, it is a well-established fact that the contour of the earth is changing constantly. Sea captains frequently note the presence of islands in midocean, where no islands were ever seen before and just as often note the made of the total disappearance of points of land in the sea. The peninsula of Lower California, in the western part of Mexico, is, as most persons know, a long tongue of land following the coast line and forming the elongated Gulf of California. Recent observations show that the land of Lower California is raising, and accordingly increasing in width and at the same time the gulf is narrowing so that in the course of time the land of the peninsula may be joined to the mainland of Mexico and water now separating them will disappear entirely.

Petrol Tin Invaluable to Rhodesian Settler

One of the most generally used articles in the rural homes of Rhodesia is the petrol tin. Petrol and coal oil are sold in most parts of Africa in tins containing four gallons apiece. These tins are the settler's best friends, for he puts them to a hundred uses. In Rhodesia, tins are even used as a can opener, bent flat and used as rain-proof roofs for small sheds and lean-tos. With a little manipulation a settler will make guttering and some spouting may be made from them to carry precious rain water from roof to water tank. With holes punched in the sides and a few baling logs within the tin, the settler has an excellent breeze by which he may smoke his pipe and read his month-old news on bitter July nights. He fits a tin into a loose cage of mosquito wire netting and fills the space between with charcoal which he keeps wet. Beside the dairy safe, where his butter will not turn to oil nor his jug of milk sour in the torrid November days. From a tin he makes a camp oven for the Sunday roast. In it his bread and cereals are stored from insect pests.

Historic Lighthouse

The old Cape Henry lighthouse, near Norfolk, Va., was erected in 1793, the first of many that now dot the coast line of the United States. Recently because of its historical significance a pilgrimage was made to it by women's organizations of the vicinity. On the old lighthouse is a bronze tablet with this inscription: "This spot landed, April 26, 1907, Capt. Gabriel Archer, Christopher Newport, Hon. George S. Percy, Bartholomew Gosnold, Edw. Maria Wingfield, with twenty-five others, who, calling the place 'Cape Henry' planted a cross, April 26, 1907. Del Gratia Virginia Conditra."

Always Give the Home Print Shop the First Chance

We must, in great measure, take our friends as they are. If we are to have them at all. We cannot remodel any of them at will. When once we have accepted this fact, and the kindred fact that our friends are probably longing quite as feverishly to improve us, we shall get a great deal more pleasure out of our companionships, and escape much mental friction.—Great Thoughts (London).
