BRODIE AND CHINA.

Not very long ago the newspapers carried considerable space telling about the probability of E. E. Brodie of Oregon City being appointed minister to China, and the political editorials had it neatly doctored out why it would be political shrewdness on the part of the United States senators and National Committee men to see that Ed got the post with the orientals.

In only one angle have the newspapers been correct. That was in saying that Brodie is qualified for the job. Envoy Extraordinary Ed never was an applicant for the job, had no intention of trying to obtain National Committee man Williams if he didn't get the diplomatic job and had laid no plans to be a candidate for a United States senatorship.

No doubt Ed could, as a representative of the greatest republic on earth, do much in solving problems between his country and the great Chinese republic, but Oregon has some problems of her own that need solving and, while Ed wishes Brodie well in any diplomatic position he may seek, we shall not regret seeing him remain an Oregon governor, or something of that sort.

The same qualifications that recommend him for a diplomatic post would stand him in hand in diplomatically handling problems at home, and the number of squint-eyed residents of his own state with whom he would have to come in contact as a public official might be sufficient to make him feel that he was holding down an oriental post.

SIX A. M. TO MIDNIGHT.

In an obscure corner of a recent report by a public health nurse were found these words: "On duty from 6 a. m. to midnight." That is a period of 18 hours. In these days of clamor for a 44-hour week, such attention to duty as this might be thought worthy of first position. In this nurse's report, but she thought so little of what she had done that after working two-fifths as long in one day as many men want to work in a week she set it down almost as a matter and merely incorporated it in her report as a routine item.

And it probably was a routine item. Eighteen hours on a shift probably did not seem unusual to this angel of mercy when the health of children was at stake. This nurse was an employee of the Oregon Tuberculosis association, and her salary was being paid from funds raised a year ago by the sale of Christmas stickers.

Christmas is but a few weeks away. Soon the little stickers will be on sale. When you are offered the privilege of investing in these stamps, don't use your sales resistance. Just think of that obscure notation on a daily report, "Six a. m. to midnight," and make it possible for this girl, and others of her kind, to do the same thing during the new year soon to be ushered in.

PEDESTRIAN AT CROSSINGS.

Officials of automobile associations are emphasizing the rights of the pedestrians at crossings. Many a man who, in a home or a public place, wouldn't think of letting a woman put on her own coat, who courteously seats his feminine guest before he takes a seat, who would consider it a terrible faux pas of something of that sort to precede a woman out of a door, when he gets behind a steering wheel comes up to an intersection at 40 miles an hour honking his horn and get out, and the woman to whom he would show every courtesy on any other occasion has to scurry for her life.

Why the fellow with his foot on the gas believes that he has the right of way over everything and everyone is a mystery that might be done away with by a number of stiff fines for these intersection hogs. The pedestrian is always right, so far as law is concerned, if he follows the traffic laws, obeys traffic signals and doesn't try to deliberately run into a car. That a pedestrian has been careless has little influence on a jury in the days of four-wheel brakes, and it is time that about 50 per cent of drivers took cognizance of that fact. However, we have no intention of standing on our rights in front of an oncoming juggernaut just to prove our contention.

The Portland News raises the age-old question, "Do animals think?" The News proves to its own satisfaction that animals do think and concludes: "The real difference between man and animals is not in the degree to which thinking is carried." Judging by some men with whom we have been compelled to associate and by some animals that we selected for association, we should say that the difference is not always in favor of man.

Men prefer blue, women red, the color consultant of a paint house told delegates to a master painters' convention. It is fortunate that it is so, wouldn't a woman look like heck with lips and cheeks plastered a deep blue, and men blue is so much more of a tell-tale hue.

If there is anything that makes a fellow madder than having bad money passed on him, it is to get caught trying to palm it off on someone else.

Eugene just must have its little rows in public affairs. With school affairs pulling along smoothly, something had to be done to keep the town from going dead, and a fair board till has taken the place formerly held by the schools. This latter, however, is something of a county affair and with a Cottage Grove man as president it should be quickly squelched. Community or county squabbles are bad for all concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Peck of Minneapolis, wishing a divorce, can't decide how to divide their children. There are four little Pecks, and each parent wants a half bushel—but the children are different weights and the scales of justice seem unable to strike a balance.

Commenting on the apology of President Hoover to Senator Johnson for a recent unintentional slight, the Salem Statesman remarks that only small men are afraid to rectify their errors, which means that a lot of errors never will be rectified.

Governor Patterson has issued the usual Thanksgiving proclamation, but he neglected to mention that he would personally enjoy the great holiday more fully if he could be assured that no one would oppose him for renomination next May.

It's time to start picking a stock of New Year's resolutions—and it would be a good idea to put them into force right away.

Nothing takes the backbone out of a person like an empty stomach.

The Cottage Grove schools have become an institution of cultures.

A successful man may be a complete failure.

Row River Ramblings

(By JACK HOWARD.)

Mr. and Mrs. John Teeters and cluster of kiddies of Mehava on the Santiam, and Sunday with Mr. Teeters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Teeters, at the old home place, Dorena.

Lee Thomsen was flying around repairing fence and building gates a few days ago, for his goats had been getting out and going to the upper pasture and two have become lost. The heavy brush and blackberry vines became a trap for them, particularly when they are wearing heavy coats of mohair.

Reports continue to come in of damage done in gardens by jack-rabbits. It is predicted that, owing to the difficulty in hunting them on account of heavy brush lands, this section may be overrun in the near future. However, like everything else, they are subject to the law of the "survival of the fittest," for they have many enemies who may be classed as the rancher's friends this time of year. Coyotes prey on the jack and, there appears to be an occasional coyote left. The writer heard a coyote bark the other night as he rode just back of the ranch house. The next morning a big jack was found in the orchard partly eaten.

It is a neat and comfy little home the Anderson & Middleton Lumber company has completed at the Teeters creek dam site to take the place of the old Glen Scott home which burned last fall. The new house is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wicks, who lost heavily in household goods when the old home burned. Mr. Wicks has charge of the company's holdings on Teeters creek.

A number of substantial flocks of turkeys have been raised this year on Row river. Raymond Wicks has one of them and late last week, assisted by Lee Thomsen, he prepared his output for market. The price of the Thanksgiving bird is not up to that of former years, but it is said there is something of a margin for the producer. The No. 2 bird brings around $3, while the No. 1 returns from $4 to $5.

The Land Brothers, Nye and P., residing on their well appointed ranch across river from Dorena, have a splendid crop of an excellent variety of potatoes this year, outlasting any spuds that have come under the observation of the writer in this section this fall. The Land Brothers have raised this variety for 15 years. They are called the Banner, and are smooth, shallow-eyed, have a white skin and white meat and are of excellent flavor.

Western Oregon Traffic Group Getting Results

According to a statement issued today by Hon. A. C. Marsters, president of the Western Oregon Traffic association, considerable progress is being made through the direct efforts of the association.

The bone of contention is the fourth section clause upon which western Oregon has taken a very decided stand, while the full fruits of victory cannot be said to have been accomplished, it is expected that the showing made by the association's attorney, W. E. Ellis of Salem, at Washington, D. C., has been such that the interstate commerce commission must give recognition to the necessities of this western country unless it is their conclusion that the interstate points shall be sacrificed in order that the port rates shall be permitted to be lowered to such an extent that railroad transportation may kill off the coastal trade engaged in by the shipping interests, the statement says. Specific reductions on sugar, fruit, canned goods and building material to southern Oregon points are listed.

Crew Is Here Placing Airplane Beacon

A crew under E. E. Meriam, federal inspector, is here completing work at the local federal landing field. A. L. Dulin is construction superintendent. Work on the main beacon has been nearly completed and the field is being re-marked and will be completely reconditioned, all at the expense of the federal government. There are to be several lights in addition to the main beacon. The beacon on Ward's butte was completed several days ago. Material for concrete work had to be carried in on horseback.

Old System of Timing Still in Use in Egypt

Before the advent of the modern clock, many towns and villages used the time to their people by firing a gun at noon. Rome was such a place, and kept to the daily firing of her veteran noon-gun on the Janiculum hill, which had been done so far back as human memory could go until a year or so ago.

Then she decided to replace this ancient form of time signaling by the most ultramodern system available. A master electric clock was installed in the city observatory, which controlled 300 other electric clocks placed in different quarters of the Eternal city on the Tiber. The 333,000 Romans are therefore exceptionally well catered for as regards the time.

What an amazing contrast is such a method as this to the manner in which parts of Egypt to this very day tell the time. There some of the natives still employ ancient shadow clocks. These consist of wooden boards with little "goal posts" in the middle of them, which measure by the shadows they throw the length of jobs which have to be performed by oxen or laborers.

These "clocks" have been in use for telling time for 4,000 years.

Eye Strain Responsible for Much Bad Temper

Physical exhaustion entirely disproportionate to the amount of energy expended is often caused by eye strain, said Dr. R. Franklin Royer, medical director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. In many cases, Doctor Royer said, loss of temper could be traced to defective vision.

"Some of us are fooling ourselves when we do not connect serious bodily fatigue and irritability toward the end of the day, and still greater fatigue and irritability toward the end of the week, with the eye that has actually shown no pain during all that period."

Some of the specimens of forged pieces of "ancient art" are so clever that they are known to be spurious. The characteristics of old stone carvings, for instance, have been so minutely reproduced that it is often difficult to detect the fraud. As a matter of fact, there is hardly a museum in the world which, at some time, has not had one of these "fakes" in its collection. Ultimately, however, the imposture is revealed and the offending piece removed.

Forged Art on Show

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York has a special department devoted to these forged articles and they are regarded by experts as quite as interesting as the genuine, but in a different way.

Napoleon's "Pick-Me-Up"

Napoleon, in addition to other trifling feats, was the inventor of the cocktail. Although the most frugal of eaters and drinkers, allowing only eight minutes to lunch and 12 to dinner, he was assisted, it seems, in his meals by a "mixture of different alcoholic spirits, of which he himself controlled the dosage." So testifies Bourrienne, Fouché and the valet Constant Wainj, who served him from 1801 until 1814; while Marchand, who succeeded Wainj and accompanied his master to St. Helena, left among his papers the recipe of the ex-emperor's favorite pick-me-up.

Snake With Ears

Another story of a snake with ears comes from the Bushveldt. Mr. S. Voge writes to say that he read the report in the Johannesburg Sunday Times of a "snake with ears" being seen in a field at Roodberg, and he adds, that he believes this tale to be true. "My mother often tells us how, when she was a child, a snake which was found to have two ears was killed in a field," he writes. "The ears were small, but they were there, and the neighbors were called to see it, so that people round about could come and see it as well. I can assure you that this story is true."

Not "Among Those Present"

In an effort to encourage the reading of good literature by young members of the Victorian police force, the chief commissioner, General Blamey, established a well-stocked library at their barracks. Recently a new librarian, in the person of a stockily built youth from the country, who had just joined up, was approached by an enthusiastic reader. "Have you got 'The Pickwick Papers'?"

"No, sir," he replied. "We only got the three morning papers."—The Sun, Sydney, Australia.

Manitoba Boundary

The lower half of the boundary between Manitoba and Saskatchewan is stepped because, crossing a well-settled farming district, it follows the survey lines. Survey lines in northwestern Canada are, of course, always stepped, being necessary in view of the fact that the meridians of longitude, which form the basis of the surveyors' calculations, converge as they go north, and the distance between them, instead of remaining uniform, is thus gradually narrowing, whereas survey lines have to be kept straight.

Being Fair to Majorities

The fact disclosed by a survey of the past that majorities have been wrong must not blind us to the complementary fact that majorities have usually not been entirely wrong.—Herbert Spencer.

Come Into the Kitchen

Ella M. Lehr.

"Thanksgiving," says the much-married man to me, means cold sliced turkey—tomorrow, turkey hash the next day, turkey soup the day after—and probably the remains of the poor bird will be found in stuffed peppers the following week. I might as well have stuffed peppers—I'm never quite sure what the wife has stowed away in those things, and a murderous glint appeared in his eye.

"Too bad," I sighed with him. "Better be glad her life—and yours—doesn't revolve around a can opener. Oh, I say, I saw you at Pierre's today. Have a good time?"

"Say, if my wife could cook like Pierre can, I'd bet her that chick on I ever set my teeth in—boy!" Mr. M. M. breathed great sighs of gustatory joy. "And dragous anchovies—"

"Here," remarks I to myself, "is a true lover of the manly muligan—the typical American dish—hash!"

"God day," sez I, murmuring intelligible nothing about my appointment, and scribbling on my clean white cuff hieroglyphics which, translated, will enable you to extract a new dress and possibly a hat to accompany it. A man is never so docile, you know, as after a perfect dinner.

I happened to know that Pierre's curried chicken and captivating ragouts were the disguised "leftovers" of yesterday's fowl and lamb joints! He uses his imagination, along with cheese, and onion—the grand old onion; and garlic gently insinuated into stew. "Ragouts" is the French name.

Leftover meats—or fresh bits seared, plus leftover vegetables—or fresh, cubed, immersed in good rich gravy, and allowed to slowly become acquainted—that is the stow-away of a worker having such daily and weekly manifestations of increasing fatigue may have his symptoms disappear by wisely applying present-day medical knowledge of the cause, have the fact corrected, and still keep the same job and the same kind of work, with the fatigue and discomfort rapidly disappearing.

Club sandwiches require a layer of sliced fowl in the high school class, and the hand of the orchestra gave a selection from the Bohemian Girl and a novelty number "Dancing Dolls." Dan Lansing played two piano solos, Jerrine Burrows gave two readings, "Betty at the Baseball Game" and "If I Could Be by Her." Francis Pitcher gave a short talk about the high school annual. He said the class manager and the hand of the orchestra of all the classes. Mary Vinson did a clever tap dance. Louise Wynne played three piano solos, "Salut a Peste," "I've Gotta Feelin' I'm Fallin'," and "Those Big City Blues." Cecil Arneson played two saxophone solos, "I Gotta Feelin' I'm Fallin'" and "The Pagan Love Song." He was accompanied by Frances Mackin.

The girls of the athletic association held a meeting Tuesday morning preliminary to the regular monthly meeting. They voted $5 toward the annual.

The all-star volleyball team was chosen Monday at a meeting of the class managers and the hand of the orchestra. The team is: Mildred Bennett, Ethel Bennett, Mary Vinson, Dolly Newton, Mabel Blackmore and Bernita Jeans.

The junior third team defeated the freshmen at 15-9 and 15-9 and the junior second team defeated the volleyball games Thursday, November 7.

The freshmen defeated the sophomores 15-10, 9-15 and 15-11 in first team volleyball game Thursday, November 5.

The juniors defeated the seniors 15-3 and 15-10 in first team volleyball games Thursday.

The letter girls held a meeting Tuesday to vote on means of raising money for the annual. They decided to challenge the high school girls to a basketball game in the near future.

The seniors defeated the freshmen 15-1 and 15-6 in a post-game of volleyball Tuesday.

Fat Girls! Here's A Tip For You

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free from fat figure that cannot be had by ordinary means. Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast. Be sure and do this every morning for "it's the little daily dose that takes off the fat." Don't miss a morning.

The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system. At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

Get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts at Cottage Grove Pharmacy or any drug store (lasts 4 weeks), with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.

Backache

If functional Bladder Irritation disturbs your sleep, causes Burning or Itching Sensation, Backache or Leg Pains, making you feel tired, depressed and discouraged, why not try Diox? SOUR STOMACH

Fetid Belchings Nausea Heartburn

A sour stomach, accompanied by offensive belchings, is the result of fermentation of undigested food. Fermentation is caused by improper functioning of the digestive organs. Temporary measures are of little use in such cases. Buy a bottle TODAY. Your money back, if you're not helped.

To obtain permanent relief the whole digestive system must be brought into normal condition. This can only be done by an effective corrective. ZINSEP Compound is the only medicine that does this. It contains all the elements of an Acting, Gas Eliminator, Stomachic, Carminative, Gastric Secretive, Internal Antiseptic and gentle Laxative in one complete and safe treatment.

In other words, ZINSEP Compound is not just a "digestant," like most stomach remedies which merely relieve momentarily breast distress, but attacks and removes the actual cause of the discomfort, thus permitting Nature to restore the stomach to normal health.

Really, you'll never know what you have missed by a stomach ailment until you have taken a course of life restoring medicine of ZINSEP Compound. Buy a bottle TODAY. Your money back, if you're not helped.

Sold and guaranteed by Cottage Grove Pharmacy and all other good druggists everywhere.
