of upland ranches. Just as a guess it is not far from 25 years ago that a young man, straight of limb and broad of shoulders, drifted into this section from Ashland, where he was reared and where his parents resided for many years. Com-ing from the pitching hills and fertile valleys of southern Oregon, where he planted and cared for many orchards, "Lot" was attracted to the Bales brothers apple orchard of some 15 acres, then being rapidly brought into bearing. likewise the Bales brothers were attracted to bales brothers were attracted to him, for experienced help was always welcome. So Lot pulled his top coat and went to work. Each year when orchard work was cleaned up he found employment in the Chambers Lumber company logging camp or at some other kind of work where energy, strength and will to do was required.
