Storing Linen

It is an old hint that advises the storage of linen in blue paper so that the whiteness of the material may be preserved. If blue paper is lacking, dip some old cotton material in very strong blue water so that it acquires the necessary protective tint. This will do equally well.

COMING!

The Cooking School
That's Different

With pleasure we announce an event of more than average importance. A cooking school to be sure—but what a cooking school! Several months have been spent in planning three days that you will not soon forget—three days in a romantic kitchen—every moment crowded with new ideas. And this is the best part of our announcement: our school has been arranged by the Ella Lehr Cooking Schools, a name which means a great deal to women of the West. Every session will be under the personal supervision of one of the Ella Lehr staff of experts.

The Ella Lehr Schools are different—not only do they search out the best among all the multitudes of recipes and suggestions that are available, but they are devoted to creating new and practical ideas for use in the kitchen. In three days, the results of months of study are revealed before your very eyes. Every recipe has been tested and tried, every suggestion is practical—useful—helpful. Elaborate menus that require extensive equipment and expensive inroads on the family budget are not considered. But the simple pleasing ways of dressing up the good old "standbys" are the essential things in the school programs.

The Cooking School will be under the personal supervision of JULIA PERRIN HINDLEY of the Ella Lehr Cooking Schools.

Set aside the dates. Come and ask questions and make notes. We invite you as our guest at "The Cooking School that is different"—a thrilling and inspiring event that will help make life brighter during the rest of the year.
