Joseph Had Qualities Of Leadership as Boy

J. Q. Willis Tells of Early
Life of Lad Who Went Far in Politics.

That George Joseph as a boy had the fearlessness and steadfastness of purpose that made for his success as a man, as a state senator and as a candidate for governor, is related by J. Q. Willis of this city, who was his teacher when young Joseph was a resident of Lakeview, Ore. Senator Joseph's death came as a severe shock to his old-time Cottage Grove friend who had watched with pride the rapid advance in business and politics of the one who in former years had frequently come to him for aid in his studies and advice as to his action.

Mr. Willis became acquainted with Joseph in 1888. Mr. Willis' position as a high school teacher and his further duties as a justice of the peace brought him in close touch with the lad who was anxious for knowledge and had an ambition for a career in law. Young Joseph made it a point to stop frequently to talk with the teacher and justice of peace.

Mr. Willis remembers that, while Joseph worked early and late while he laid well the foundations for future success in life, he yet found time for school activities, was a natural leader in school and an outstanding debater. He would spend days in careful preparation of his arguments. On debatable questions in school or the community he carefully weighed the evidence on both sides and then took a firm stand for the right as he saw it. He was never one to share glory, but he posed upon him not to fear being on the unpopular side of any question.

Mental arithmetic was a form of mental exercise that young Joseph enjoyed equally with chess, in both of which he indulged with his teacher. Mr. Willis remembers the future gubernatorial nominee as a boy old for his age, whose company was welcomed by leaders of the community, although he remained popular with those of his own age. He won the high regard of such men as Judge W. A. Wilshire and Dr. Daly, both of whom were of great assistance to him. "The lot of young Joseph was not an easy one," Mr. Willis commented, "but his fighting spirit was bound to carry him onward and upward."

J. C. Veatch, cousin of Mrs. Willis, is in the law firm of which Mr. Joseph's sister taught under. Mr. Willis when the latter was county superintendent of Lake county.

OUTSIDE BREAD WAGONS DISCUSSED BY CHAMBER

The prevalence here of bread wagons from other cities was a subject of discussion at Tuesday's luncheon meeting of the chamber of commerce. The secretary was instructed to invite bakers of the city to be present at the next meeting of the chamber, when the subject will have further discussion. Councilman Bede explained the bond issue to be voted upon July 7 and the chamber endorsed the issue.

Highway parks in this district were discussed but no action was taken.

Evangelistic Meetings Expected to Bring Many Converts

Dr. J. E. Bulgin, Evangelist.

Seven Hundred Attend Union Gathering Addressed by Dr. Bulgin.

Many converts for various churches of the city are expected from the evangelistic meetings being conducted at the Presbyterian church by Dr. E. J. Bulgin. The meetings had gained such momentum by last Sunday night that a union meeting was held at the Christian church at which approximately 700 were present. An appeal for conversions was not made until Wednesday night, but these appeals will be continued until the end of the meetings Sunday night, when another union meeting will be held at the Christian church. Dr. Bulgin will leave from here for Dallas, Tex., where he will conduct another series of meetings. Dr. Bulgin, who started life as an agnostic lawyer, has been an evangelist for 36 years, during which time he has delivered his messages to millions and has had many thousands of conversions.

A lecture is delivered at 10 o'clock each forenoon. Meetings have been held each day at the Baptist church for children of the city. These have been in charge of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Booth. Mr. Booth is song leader for the meetings and Mrs. Booth is his accompanist.

Dr. Bulgin's subject for the remainder of his stay are as follows: Tonight—"The Unpardonable Sin—What Is It?" Friday night—"The Philosophy of Faith."

Saturday night—"If I were the Devil, How Would I Run Hell?" Sunday forenoon, 9:45, Arcade Theater—"Hindrances to Religion Removed."

Sunday forenoon, 11, Presbyterian church—"The Dual Nature, Or Does a Christian Live Free From Sin?" Sunday, 3 p. m., for men only—"Wine, Women, Gambling, the Trinity of Evil."

Sunday night, Christian church—"Was Moses Scientific?" The attendance has increased to such an extent that all remaining meetings will be held in the Christian church.

Fruit Fly Spray Urged.

There is no law compelling fruit growers to spray trees for the cherry fruit fly, but they can be compelled to destroy the fruit that is infected with the fly, or it can be done by the fruit inspector at their expense, according to C. E. Stewart, county fruit inspector. Efforts are being made to have all growers spray and to rid the county of the pest. Mr. Stewart pointed out that spraying will do little good if one man sprays and his neighbor across the fence or across the road fails to spray.

Howard Not Seeking Speakership.
Emmett Howard, republican candidate for representative from Lane county, will not be a candidate for the post of speaker of the house, he announced.

Howard said that he will support Representative Gordon of Multnomah county for the speakership and that the latter will be elected. Representative Longman of Multnomah county is the only other candidate.

Trask Rescues Women From Rattler

A rattlesnake that had frightened women members of a picnic party was killed near the Mosby creek dam Sunday by Bert Trask. The reptile was discovered by Mrs. Cleo Morelock and Mrs. Ralph Saltman and Mr. Trask was the first man of the party to answer their calls. Bert didn't take time to count the rattles, but he thought it had as many as a 1914 Ford.

Battery "E" Boys Are Complimented by White

Military Unit From Here Expected to Make Usual Record
With Big Guns.

Word from Fort Stevens is to the effect that battery "E" is making a splendid record. General White has visited the unit. He told the boys he had heard a great deal recently about the outfit being below par, but he found them to be one of the best outfits there, one of the most orderly, and he could see nothing wrong with them. The lads went through a strenuous period of infantry drilling before leaving for the fort, and it was in this that they were said to be weak.

The lads have been rising at 5 each day and have been kept busy until night. They are now having target practice, at which they hope to maintain records of the past, and will participate in the annual review and combat demonstration at Camp Clatsop a week from Saturday.

Lieutenant Washburn of Junction City was given camp command, but he has left most of the actual work to the officers that took the company from here.

The train which carried the battery to camp last week was an hour late, but the boys forgot about that when they found camp ready for them with Charles Cooley in charge of the mess. All the boys except three reported on time for departure from here at 3:45 a. m. Sergeant Longfellow was one of the laggards. There has been little sickness. Billy Linn is recovering from tonsillitis.

Hectic Session of City Council Is Held Monday

Monday night's session of the city council became hectic during discussion of a recommendation of the street committee that the Texas company be required to change a portion of concrete walk at its newly constructed service station to conform with plans submitted to the council when permit for its construction was granted.

Mayor Glass, who is local agent for the Texas company, did not entirely agree with Councilman Dutham, chairman of the street committee. The street committee's recommendation was adopted without a dissenting vote, but without roll call.

The city attorney was instructed to prepare an ordinance setting out requirements as to maintenance of curbs at service stations.

Tattooing of Poultry Advised.
Poultry tattooing outfits may be had at cost at the office of County Agent O. S. Fletcher. Registration of poultry brands may be filed in his office at 50 cents each.

Tattooing of poultry is for the purpose of identifying flocks that have been stolen and the idea is gaining in popularity, especially among turkey raisers, said Mr. Fletcher. Sixty raisers of poultry in Lane county have their registry numbers tattooed on the web of the wing of each fowl. In case they are stolen this tattoo mark is a positive means of identification.

Non-Skid Surface Is Laid.
A crew of men from the state highway department is laying a non-skid oil and gravel surface on the black-top paving between Eugene and Junction City.

The section will probably be completed in 10 days, and the crew will start outfitting approaches to the Springfield bridge.

Ladies' Club Is Again Called to Mind

Many years ago, before Cottage Grove was the city it is today, it had a Ladies' club that probably was more active than any of the civic clubs of today. Frequently reference is made to what this club did in years that are gone, and it was this week again brought to the attention of The Sentinel when John Nokes left a faded clipping from the Portland Telegram which bore the pictures of the newly elected officers. Mrs. F. D. Wheeler was president, Mrs. D. T. Aubrey was vice president, Mrs. B. R. Job was recording secretary, Mrs. C. P. Jones was corresponding secretary and Mrs. D. Hemenway was treasurer. The clipping does not give the year in which it was printed, but the date must have been 20 or more years ago.

This club was instrumental in securing the city park that was a popular place for gatherings before the advent of the automobile, it conducted annual home beautification contests and an annual sweet-potato show. One of the last acts was to secure the drinking fountain that stood for years in front of the First National bank and was removed recently when the street was widened. It is to be replaced by a smaller fountain.

Downy Mildew Hits Hops

A new plant disease which is giving considerable worry to many in the county is downy mildew, which affects hops. County Fruit Inspector Stewart is baffled by the disease, which has not before been known in the state. It is said to have come here from Canada, but even there it is said to be known about it except that it kills vines that are affected. It is said that in Canada various sprays have been tried with little success.

Issue Which Will Be Due
September 1.

A special city election will be held July 7 to vote upon a proposed issue of $30,000 in refunding bonds to retire an issue of $30,000 in funding bonds which will become due September 1. No arrangements have ever been made for their payment, and the only way in which the city can meet them is by a new issue. The new bonds would be retired at the rate of $1,500 annually.

The proposed issue has the endorsement of the chamber of commerce and Lions club and through the courtesy of the American Legion, which was yet in session following Monday night's meeting of the city council, members of the council explained the issue to members of that organization.

The bonds due September 1 are the last for which refunding will be required, with the possible exception of small water bond issue, method of payment having been provided for all other bonds now outstanding. The city will for a number of years to come have to meet bonds which should have been paid in years past, but for which no payment was arranged when issued.

Read Hemenway Gets $200 From Schepp Foundation

Almond Read Hemenway received a check of $200 this week from the Leopold Schepp foundation as a reward for keeping for three years a pledge for clean living, good citizenship and attention to religious training.

This foundation was established by Leopold Schepp who, when a newsboy, was helped by a wealthy man to get an education. He resolved that if he ever became wealthy he would return the kindness by helping others. He did become wealthy and he kept his boyhood resolve by setting aside a fund the interest from which is used to assist lads who live up to a pledge which they are required to sign. That they live up to the pledge must be vouched for by three sponsors.

In return for aid from this foundation, boys are expected to later help some other boy in the same manner. Boys to be eligible must be in the formative period of life.

The Cottage Grove lad has been outstanding in school activities. He was center in the football team, was a member of the boys' gym club and of the male quartet. He also had part in the high school opera and the high school play. He is president of the Christian Endeavor of the Christian church and operates his father's farm while the father is away on business, which is a large part of the time. He is 19 years of age, is 6 feet, 2 inches in height and weighs 210 pounds.

Read will invest his money in pullets, and with the proceeds from these he hopes to pay his way through college. He was recommended for the Schepp foundation by Rev. W. A. Elkins of Eugene, former pastor here, who has been instrumental in helping several boys to benefit through the foundation.

The station is by far the most beautiful from an architectural standpoint and the most elaborate of any station in the city. Landscaping adds to the beauty of the grounds, and the green of grass and shrubs makes a pretty contrast with the white stucco of the several buildings.

Lumber Is In Same Fix As All Other Business

Sixty Days Fixed as Earliest
Date on Which Revival
May Be Expected.

(Crew's Lumber Digest.)
The general outlook is for a continuation of present conditions for at least another 60 days. With business having remained quiet during the months when it should normally be active it is not reasonable to expect a revival in July or August. In the meantime the lumber manufacturers all over the United States are becoming reconciled to a condition which is entirely beyond their control. Even though the relation of the demand to the supply from now on will not be favorable enough to cause any strengthening in the market which will be better balanced than it has been in the past, in all probability it will remain steady enough to prevent any further serious decline in prices.

Under the most adverse circumstances there is always a little speeding up of buying just prior to the Fourth of July shutdowns as considerable uncertainty exists as to how long the mills will be idle and this causes those having special cutting business to want to get it placed and on the road. In some sections there is already a little evidence of the pre-holiday stimulation, especially on cutting for a majority of the mills have their order files in such shape that they can defer almost until the last minute their decisions as to how long they will remain closed.

Due to heavy stocks of standard yard items which the mills are carrying it is improbable that the retailers will feel it necessary to anticipate their requirements even in a limited way on items of this nature, for the average large mill is well equipped to handle mill cars for a considerable length of time after it has stopped sawing.

In attempting to figure out what is in store for the lumber market it is necessary to gain some idea of what general business is going to do. Wires from all over the United States leave no doubt that the lumber manufacturers are not the only ones who are suffering. There are hundreds of thousands of persons out of employment and the shrunken payrolls are being felt. Under such circumstances the poorer classes, instead of seeking larger quarters, take smaller, and older buildings which have been hard to rent. As a result of employment and the necessity for economy on the part of those who have to get along with less employment and lower wages. The merchant and the manufacturer find their business slowed down. A special case in the erection of new homes until such a time as the outlook for business is better.

The railroads are not going to buy material with which to build cars when they already have more equipment than they can find use for. All these things make it very clear that the lumber market will not improve until general conditions improve. Some are inclined to think that there should be a turn for the better this fall. At any rate there is reason to believe that the lumber market will not get any worse, even though it continues to drift along for some time as it is.
