Should be taught early in life the possibilities of a banking connection. Never before was it more necessary for young folks to prepare in advance for their entry into the business world. Establishment and proper use of a checking account during school days is laying the foundation for a successful entry into that business world. No move of importance in the business world is ever made without the services of a bank. Establish and maintain friendly relations in early life with this old established institution that has aided many in their entry into successful business life.

Transient Hurls Rocks At Windshields

Throwing rocks through windshields of cars that did not stop for him was the method of revenge adopted by a tough looking transient who spotted himself on the road north of Walker this forenoon. Gottfried Thim of Eugene, who drives a delivery truck to this city once a week, was a victim. The tough stepped out in front of the truck as it started to pass he threw a rock, but his aim was poor and the missile hit the radiator, passing through it. Mr. Thim came on here, swore out a warrant and he and Deputy Sheriff Pitcher went out and arrested the miscreant. He had a pal with him who was not implicated.

Justice of Peace Young, before whom the offender was taken, was informed by the district attorney that the justice court probably did not have jurisdiction, and a deputy from the sheriff's office was sent here for the man.

Another driver who arrived in Eugene at about the same time that Thim arrived here said that a tough transient had thrown a rock through his windshield. It was believed to have been the same person, and the operator waited in Eugene for the man to arrive from here. The tough admitted throwing the rock at the windshield of the Thim truck.

Fading Frowns

A downtown hotel has a sign on the assistant manager's desk—where all the guests rush up with their complaints—and it has worked splendidly. The sign says: "Nothing is half so important as you think it is." The irate guest who waits for a chance to scream about missing baggage or noise across the hall stands and stares at the sign and the assistant manager soon stands on the other side and watch the frown fade.—Detroit News.
