

Nelson Puts In Hectic Sunday Chasing Stolen Car and Customer

Bicycle and Car Found and Nelson Learns New Way to Dispose of Used Cars.

Aiding in finding a stolen bicycle and a stolen car, selling two cars and then chasing the second purchaser to get a promised down payment, made Sunday anything but a day of rest for N. J. Nelson of the Nelson Motor company.

The hectic day started when Police Pitcher got with him up Row river to Hat creek looking for a stolen bicycle. The chief believed that the two thefts might have been by the same person. The bicycle was found and brought back to the city, but no trace was got of the stolen car. Soon after their return the men received word that the car would be found under the east approach of the steel bridge over Row river, over which the two and others searching for the car had passed.

The car had evidently been driven under the bridge out of sight by those who wished to strip it and the river had afterwards swollen until water was a foot above the floor boards. The radiator and tires had been taken.

Nelson left a customer while he went out to get the inundated car, returned and made the sale. Before he could change his clothes he had concluded a deal with another customer, who wished to take the car with him to Eugene, where he was to cash a check. The purchaser, who left with the car dealer a car that was to be traded in, and which contained a quantity of clothing and personal belongings, was to follow Mr. Nelson to his home, where Nelson was to change his clothes and in another car accompany the purchaser to Eugene.

When Nelson became aware that the prospective purchaser was hitting the highway for the north, without waiting for the dealer, Nelson gave chase in his wet clothes and overtook his "customer," who was unable to cash the check at Eugene. By agreement the car being sold was placed in storage in Eugene while Mr. Nelson went to Coburg to bring back his family, who were visiting there, and he was to meet his customer at 7:30. When Nelson arrived at that time, he found that the customer had induced the garage to deliver to him the car Nelson had produced, the fact that Nelson had the storage check. When Nelson found what had happened he hung onto the storage check and ceased worrying, for he figured he had indeed concluded the sale under the garage and had produced the car for which he had claim check. This gave him a brand new idea for disposing of used cars.

While to all appearances the "purchaser" intended to get away with the car, he did not, Eugene, where the car has been recovered. It seems doubtful whether a charge of theft can be placed against the man, for he took the car with the permission of the garage which had it in storage.

The "purchaser" is a former marine and was headed for California. Marine luck still seems to be with him. When he was refused payment on a check which he presented at a cigar store here, a man whose endorsement was a good thing up and put his name on the piece of paper, saying he had worked with the man. The friend has since found that he is out the amount of the check. Joe Short, taxi operator, accepted a check for $7.50 in payment of services, and the bank has returned it to him. Why the marine used a jitney when he had a car of his own here has not been explained.

The stolen car that was found under the steel bridge belonged to William Kirk of Dorena. Officers believe that they know the thief.

Three Ananias Come Back at Jimmy

COTTAGE GROVE, Ore., Nov. 20.—(To the Editor.)—A traitor has been found among the Noble & Ancient Order of Fishermen, that great clan of men who are permitted to let their imaginations run wild, maybe not to be believed, but never to be exposed.

Ah! Me! All of that is gone. Never again will we be able to come home and tell of the big one that got away, or how, when we get a line caught in a tree and lose part of it, a big one took hook, line and sinker. We bow our heads in sorrow and shame.

History has repeated itself! A traitor has appeared. Oh, Jimmy, how could you! But the stone should have been thrown by one who is himself without sin.

THE THREE ANANIAS.

Berry Crop Threatened By Red Berry Disease

Wild Berries Affected, Which Will Make Disease One Difficult to Control.

The berry industry of Oregon and the northwest faces the danger of heavy crop losses unless methods are found to control the red berry disease, it was declared by Ray Glatt, manager of the Woodburn Berry Growers' association, at the forty-fifth annual meeting of the Oregon State Horticultural society.

Losses to berry growers through the red berry disease amounted to as high as 50 to 90 per cent of the crop in some sections of the state, stated Mr. Glatt. Thus far in Oregon, the disease has been confined chiefly to evergreen blackberries, but has appeared on loganberries and raspberries. If it continues to spread, grave losses to the industry at large may be incurred.

The disease is not truly a disease, according to O. T. McWhorter, extension horticulturist of Oregon State college, but is a blackberry mite the presence of which prevents the berries from ripening.

Spraying with lime sulphur when the buds are beginning to open is thought to be effective in controlling the spread of the mite. Extermination is not to be hoped for, said Mr. Glatt, because of the vast area of wild evergreen berries which receive no care but furnish the bulk of the crop in the northwest. As long as these areas exist in their present condition, the owners of cultivated evergreens can only hope to control the mite's spread in their own fields.

While the mite had shown signs of its presence in Oregon for several years, the infection was so scattered as not to attract much attention. This past season, however, it showed great growth and ruined entire fields in some cases. When the presence of the mite was first discovered in the California blackberry plantings, it was reported restricted to the Himalaya variety, a factor which caused Oregon growers to lose time before establishing the identity of the mite affecting the evergreens here.

While the deprivations of the mite among the wild berries might in time tend to build up the position of the growers of the cultivated berries, the loss of the dominating wild crop would seriously handicap the industry for some time, Mr. Glatt explained.

Notes in Lane County Cost 40 Cents

The average cost for each vote cast in Lane county in the recent general election was 40 cents, according to figures compiled in the office of the county clerk. The total cost was $3,411.10 and 12,869 votes were cast.

In some of the larger precincts the cost was as low as 19 cents the vote, while in smaller precincts it was as high as $1.08, $1.24, $1.39, $1.41 and $1.63. The high figure was in Heceta precinct, where 23 votes were cast. The cost in Cottage Grove precinct was well below the average, being 28 cents in two precincts and 29 cents in the other two.

Lost Fish Line Has Big Fish on It

"Pinocchio" Bill, assiduous disciple of Izaak Walton, tells the champion fish story. He was trolling for salmon at Winchester bay when the "hardware" at the end of his line became entangled in another line which had been lost by some other fisherman. As Bill was pulling in this second line he became excited when he felt a tug on it. His excitement increased as he realized that there was a real fish at the other end. He successfully landed it and later found that it weighed 27 pounds. This was the only fish that he caught that day. The salmon had carried the line into some weeds, where it had become entangled.

Mrs. Chadwick, Secretary Fair Board, Criticized

She is Re-elected, However, and C. W. Allen, Vida, is Named New President.

Mrs. Mabel H. Chadwick was re-elected secretary of the county fair board Saturday despite a fire of criticism from C. S. Calf, director and executive board member, on her salary, expenditures and procedure in administration.

C. W. Allen of Vida was elected president; Philip Gent of Irving, vice president; the United States National bank, treasurer; and C. W. Allen, C. P. Barnard, Clinton Hurd, O. E. Crowe, C. S. Calf, R. B. Thompson, Phillip Gent and A. C. Miller to the executive board.

Calf threw his bombshell into a previously tranquil meeting right at the end of the proceedings as E. U. Lee, president, was ready to adjourn the session. He attacked the present method of county fair administration and urged adoption of the plan advanced by the state association which would take much of the power out of the hands of the secretary. Under the new system the fair would be under the direct supervision of four members of the executive board, who would be placed under bond and be responsible to the county court.

Earlier in the meeting Mr. Calf had succeeded in getting the matter of adopting the new system referred to the county court for study. The court will report at the next board meeting.

Calf prefaced his attack with the statement that no member of the fair board knew just how the funds were administered, and said that he had looked into the records of the county and of the secretary and found things the board should have been informed about.

Skunk Fluid Is Left In Stores of City

One or more boys with a twisted idea of what a good joke is caused considerable inconvenience to several business houses of the city during the past week. They had secured some of the fluid used in trapping the polecat or skunk and they would drop in a secluded place in a business house a rag saturated with this fluid. The bottle when emptied was left in a lavatory in the city hall.

LAYING GAS LINE TO START AT ONCE

Work installing a gas distribution system here is to be in full swing within a few days, not later than Monday. Pipe and a ditch digging machine have been here for some time and Charles Strong, who will be superintendent for Lindgren & Swinner, the contractors, has been here this week. He authorized the statement that work would get under way at once. He also authorized the statement that only local labor would be used, with preference for married men. A local committee will be asked to certify that applicants are bona fide residents of the city. Seventy-five men will be employed for six weeks.

An office is being established in the building recently occupied by Long & Cruson.

Increased Contribution To Red Cross Asked

County Unit May Withdraw Aid Unless City Gives Boost to County Fund.

Whether or not this community will continue to have the assistance of trained Red Cross workers in its charity and juvenile cases will hinge on the results of a meeting of the community chest committee to be called soon by Rev. Duncan P. Cameron, chairman. The county Red Cross is asking for a larger contribution from the community chest in order to maintain its work here.

A meeting to discuss the work of the Red Cross and the local attitude toward it was held Thursday night of last week, representatives of the chamber of commerce, Lions club, American Legion and school board attending, as well as a group of representative residents. Miss Mary Annin, executive secretary of the Lane county chapter of the Red Cross, and Dean Parsons of the University of Oregon extension division, told of Red Cross work here and the system followed in handling cases.

Rev. Cameron, chairman of the meeting, outlined work of the local community chest and showed that for the past four years no Red Cross roll call has been held here, the community chest making a contribution each year direct to the county chapter.

NEW ROUTE IS OFFERED FOR PACIFIC HIGHWAY

Another possible route for Pacific highway through Junction City that would cut a considerable distance has been brought to the attention of the county engineer's office.

This route would provide for a road straight west from the turn in the highway near the Junction City cemetery south of that city. This road would make one turn farther west and connect straight with the turn on the present highway about one mile west of Junction City on the road toward Monmouth.

It is at this point that the proposed east of Cheshire extension of the Siuslaw highway would connect with Pacific highway if the plans of the state highway commission are followed.

CHAMBER DOESN'T APPROVE PROPOSAL OF RED CROSS

The chamber of commerce, at its Tuesday luncheon, postponed action on a proposal of officials of the Lane County Red Cross that Cottage Grove materially increase its Red Cross subscription, put the money in the county treasury of the organization and have cases of distress in this vicinity handled by the county organization.

There was considerable opposition to the move and some criticism of the large proportion of county Red Cross funds that go to pay salaries.

Some one familiar with Red Cross activities will be asked to explain the proposal to the chamber at its next meeting.

Marshall Shields Is Injured

Marshall Shields of Eugene, who, with Chet Jamison, started a miniature golf course here last summer on the G. B. Pitcher property, was seriously injured about 12:30 a. m. Friday when the car in which he was riding was wrecked on Pacific highway five miles north of Eugene. He suffered eight fractured ribs, two being torn loose from the back bone and puncturing his right lung. He is reported to be making satisfactory progress. A companion of Shields was seriously injured. Several others were severely shaken up. The car was badly damaged.

The accident happened when the car attempted to pass a truck holding closely to the center of the road and then swerved into an exposed culvert to avoid being side-swiped by the truck's trailer.

Mountain States Power Is Enlarging Production

Of special interest to the many local shareholders and customers of the Mountain States Power company is the shareholders' quarterly bulletin recently received here. The bulletin, which accompanied the regular quarterly dividend on Mountain States Power company preferred stock, indicates a steady growth and development of the territory served by this utility.

The Crawford division additional capacity has been provided in the Albany station by the installation of three 2,000 KVA transformers. Steadily increasing loads have necessitated this installation in order to provide adequate facilities to carry the usual fall and winter demands in and about the city of Albany. An additional improvement in this vicinity, carried on during August, was changing of the 11 KA insulators on the Albany-Springfield transmission line. The old insulators replaced had been in continuous service since 1912. Many new line extensions are now being made in the rural districts in the Willamette division, a considerable number of farms being electrified before winter.

Reconstruction of the flume at Jordan was completed during August. In accordance with the usual practice of the company, local labor and materials were used to the greatest possible extent. A large new stack made of special alloys to resist the effect of salt air was installed at the Tillamook power plant during the past quarter.

A large number of new rural customers were connected in the Oregon territory during the past three months, many farmers realizing the superior advantages of central station service for lighting, cooking and power. An unusually large number of transmission lines in the Willamette division during the dry season. Practically all of the modern driers operating at Dallas and throughout the Willamette valley are now electrified.

Past Commander George Speaks at Legion Meet

At the Monday night meeting of Calvin Funk post of the American Legion, S. S. He also described the number of distinguished visitors, president of the United States, a former president, congressmen, foreign diplomats, who attended sessions of the convention. He pointed out that the rowdism reported in newspapers throughout the nation as attendant upon the convention was by hoodlums in Boston, not by the Legionnaires.
