Largest State Capitol?

The Texas state house at Austin is said to be the largest state capitol in the United States. It was built between 1881 and 1888 by Chicago capitalists in return for $300,000 acres of land. The site of Austin itself was selected by a commission appointed in 1836 by the republic of Texas to find the most attractive spot within the boundaries of the country for the seat of government.

Many Causes of Fires. Sparks that fly into dry cover when a woodman's hobbled boots strike against rocks in woods and fields, live wires flicked from pipe or cigarette, matches that continue to glow after they have been thrown away, spark from airplane exhausts and sparks from coal-burning locomotives all help to swell the tide of fires that sweep this country every year.

Water at Niagara. The depth of the water at the crest of the American fall at Niagara measures from 1 1/2 to 4 feet over usual conditions, but continues to flow after they have been thrown away, spark from airplane exhausts and sparks from coal-burning locomotives all help to swell the tide of fires that sweep this country every year.

Advance in Heating. In Philadelphia, many years ago, Benjamin Franklin and his friends basked in the warmth of the stove he had invented—the forerunner of the central house-heating system. This was the only marked improvement in heating until the advent of radiator heat 75 years later.

Get Climatic Change. Because of the cool climate of Bogota, moneyed residents spend at least two months of each year down in "the hot country," the sea-coast region, as near the equator as possible. Traditional tropical heat is reached in three hours by train or automobile.

Royal Appellations. Since the sixteenth century the word "cousin" has been used by sovereigns as an honorific style in addressing persons of exalted, but not equal rank, the term "brother" being the style used by any sovereign in addressing another.

Testing Leader. "Every public leader," said H. H. Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "should be compelled to be a horseman. Before undertaking to manage men he should at least be able to prove that he can manage a horse."—Washington Star.

Hens Need Sunlight. Recent experiments show that hens kept in cold climates should have some sunlight even in winter, for test hens deprived too long of direct sunlight produced few eggs and these would not hatch.

Prudence Pays. A woman one hundred years of age at Lynn, Mass., says of herself, "I never was very strong, so I never wore myself out." Many of life's compensations can be self-applied.—Spokane City Tribune.

"My Lady." The title "Mona" is an abbreviation of the longer word "Madonna," which means "My Lady." Lisa is a proper name. "Mona Lisa" is the name of a famous portrait by Leonardo da Vinci.

Trains on Wooden Rails. Wooden rails were used on railways in the colliery district of England in the early part of the eighteenth century, but iron bars making their appearance in 1785.

Many Immune to Poison Ivy. Only about one person in eight is sufficiently susceptible to poison ivy to be badly poisoned by ordinary contact with the sap, says a Field museum botanist.

Cruel Man. Man is the only animal that can remain on friendly terms with the victims he intends to eat until he eats them.—Samuel Butler.

Embalmers Helped Physicians. Physicians in ancient Egypt called upon the expert embalmers to make some of the difficult types of bandages that were needed in surgical cases.

Why Topaz Was Valued. Topaz, the gold stone of the ancients, was much valued by them for medicinal purposes, for dispelling enchantment and for calming frenzy.

Things Big and Little. The day of the greatness of big things has passed; the day of the greatness of little things is beginning to dawn.—Irwin St. John Tucker.

Foundation of Greatness. History shows, wrote Helne, that the majority of men who have done anything great have passed their youth in seclusion.

Forms of Instruction. The wise are instructed by reason, ordinary minds by experience; the stupid by necessity, and brutes by instinct.—Cicero.

Old English Newspaper. The first regular newspaper in England was the Weekly News, which first appeared in London in 1622.

Unworthy of Trust. Trust that man in nothing who has not a conscience in everything.—Sterne.

And Then What? A favorite pastime back home was to rise at dawn and ask whether Tillie Spoonpendyke lived at that address. We shall never forget the time the householder said yes.—Detroit News.

Well, That's Something! About the only thing we can think about which to boast is the fact that we are positive we never started a forest fire.—Haverhill Evening Gazette.

Vindictive Word. The German word "strafe" literally means "to punish." During the World war this was Anglicized into "strafe," and meant to punish or damage as by gunfire.

Bonds Are Sold. An issue of $6,285.03 in Bancroft improvement bonds was sold by the city council Monday night to Geo. H. Burr, Conrad & Broom of Portland. The price paid was $100.05.

Colossal Statue. The Colossus of Rhodes represented Helios, the Sun god. The statue was the work of Charies of Lindus. It was erected by the Rhodesians in a cost of 300 talents, apparently as a thank offering after the successful defense of the city against Demetrius Poliorcetes. It was set up about 280 B. C., but 56 years later was overthrown by an earthquake and lay in ruins until 653 A. D., when the Arabs captured the city and sold the metal to a Jewish merchant.

Tucson's Distinction. Tucson, Ariz., is the only walled town in North America. Old Tucson until 1847 was a walled town. A charter to Pueblo del Tucson was granted by the king of Spain in 1552. It is one of the oldest European settlements established in this country. It was included in the territory known as the Gadsden purchase acquired from Mexico in 1854.

Elephant Lived Long. Here is a classic story: "An elephant captured by Alexander the Great from an Indian king, was found 850 years subsequently, with the following inscription on him: 'Alexander, the son of Jupiter, had dedicated Ajax to the sun,' the name of Ajax having been given to the elephant by Alexander."

Wisdom From Seneca. Let no man presume to give advice to others that has not first given good counsel to himself.—Seneca.

Insulin's Value. Insulin is the secretion of certain cells of the body situated in or near the pancreas. Its function in the body is said to be the control of the rate of supply of sugar from the liver, in proportion to the utilization of glycogen by the muscles. For this reason it is administered to patients suffering from diabetes.

Endurance Flights Valuable. Airplane endurance flights are proofs of the improvement in airplane motor engineering and of the increased safety factor of airplane engines under normal flight conditions. They also show up any weaknesses and point the way to elimination of any existing defects.

Deserted Mining Towns. Throughout the West there are a great many mining towns or camps which were deserted after they ceased to be profitable. Among them may be mentioned Rough and Ready and Hart, Calif.; Grand Forks, Yukon, Granite, Leavick and Ore, in Colorado.

Set Fashions in Gardening. William Kent (1685-1748), an English painter and architect, was called the "father of modern gardening" by Horace Walpole. Kent was the first to adopt the natural as against the artificial or formal in landscape gardening.

Proud Boast. Admiral Van Tromp, who was the hero of 30 sea fights, defeated the Spanish fleet, then the English one. After this he fastened a broom to his masthead to show that he had swept the English from the sea.

To Clean Rings. To clean platinum rings set with diamonds, immerse them in a bowl of water to which ammonia has been added, and scrubbing them with a small, soft brush which has been dipped in the water, is efficacious.

Indians Aborigines. Aborigines is a term used to refer to the earliest known races of a country, those found at its first discovery. The Indians are therefore correctly termed the aborigines of America.

Succession of Smiles. "Our ancestors," said H. H. Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "look down on us and possibly smile superciliously at new ideas which cause supercilious efforts to look down on them."—Washington Star.

Extempore Speaking Best. Those who speak in public are better heard when they discourse by a lively genius and ready, than when they read all they would communicate to their hearers.—Watts.

The Inner Sanctum. The most commonplace person has wild regions—wildernesses, it may be—of thought and feeling, which even his most intimate friends hardly ever enter.—Arthur Helps.

Barker Overpowers Husky Thief

Ivan Barker, who recently moved from here to Redmond, figured as something of a hero for small boys when he gave chase to and succeeded in overcoming a man much larger than himself, who had robbed the safe in the drug store in which Barker is employed.

While Barker was waiting on a customer he heard the door of the safe in the back room being closed. Knowing that no one from the store was there, Barker left his customer and hurried to the back room in time to see a man leaving by the back way. Barker gave chase, overtook the man and succeeded in landing a blow that put the man "out" to such an extent that Barker was able to hold him until help arrived. It was believed that the man, an ex-sailor, was under the influence of liquor, otherwise Barker would have received more serious injuries. As it was he suffered a blackened eye.

The man had removed $50 from the safe.

Barker gives the salubrious Redmond ozone credit for his thoughtless fearlessness.

HOMEMAKERS' CLUB WILL OPERATE WIDE TERRITORY

Safeway stores have announced the establishment of the Safeway Homemakers' bureau, through which will be offered the advice of a recognized nationally-known authority on household problems free of charge.

The director of the bureau is Julia Lee Wright, a woman of outstanding reputation in her field. She will have ample facilities in the way of test kitchens, able assistants, etc. for giving individual attention to requests for advice.

Through the columns of this paper and over the air Mrs. Wright will offer helpful suggestions. Opportunity to communicate with her on household subjects is to be open to all.

The major object of the bureau is to assist homemakers in getting the utmost value, economy and satisfaction out of their expenditures. Increasing demand for authoritative information on this subject prompted the decision to establish the bureau, it was stated.
