Desert Explorers Find Odd Things of Interest

The Libyan desert expedition in search of the lost oasis of Zereura under the leadership of Major Bagbold, returned to Cairo unsuccessful, so far as its primary object was concerned. The expedition discovered northeast of Oweinat a remarkable circle of stones standing three feet high and nine yards across, similar in formation to Stonehenge. This circle is in the desert 150 miles from the nearest water. They then returned to Selima, and for the first time the journey was made across the desert to Assuit on the Nile by way of the Kharga, the following: the northern part of the Arabian way, the old slave trade route from Dufur to Assuit, altogether over 1,000 miles long, which used to be traversed by camels in about 40 days, the distance from Selima to Assuit being about 420 miles. Major Bagbold stated that the slave track was clearly marked by the skeletons of camels, and that there were over 200 camel skeletons to every mile. Although it had not been used for 50 years, in certain parts the tracks of the camels were plainly visible.

Mankind Never Able to Change Nature of Cat

It seems that the household of today behaves in much the same manner as it did in the bygone ages. The animal's association with man has not changed its habits in one particular. It goes about in its own way and takes its own time and all efforts to make it take some part in the operations of the household have failed. The animal resents any interference with its coming and going. Miss A. S. Perkins of Columbia university has put the cat to an intelligence test. Seventy-eight cats were secured from a pet show and put through a series of tests. The first problem put before the cats was how to reach food placed inside an inclosure. Most of the cats solved this by stepping upon a plate which opened the way. The problems were then increased in difficulty, the hardest being one which required the cats to touch seven plates, one after another, to get the food. Only two of the contestants were smart enough to do this. One of the conclusions arrived at was that male cats are smarter than the females.

Sailors' Refuge

Robert Richard Randall was the founder of Sung Harbor. Randall was a sea captain who retired from the sea in the late eighteenth century and settled down on a large farm on the edge of which he now Greenwell village. When he died he left his property to an institution known as Sailors' Sung Harbor for Ancient and Decrepit Seamen. His relatives did all they could to break the will, but in 1831, over thirty years after the captain's death, the Supreme court upheld the bequest. In the meantime the city of New York had grown so enormously that the trustees decided it would be better to lease the land contained in the Randall farm and locate the seamen's home on Staten Island. At the time of the captain's death or prior, his farm brought in an annual income of about $4,000; at the time the trustees made the change it was yielding $40,000. Today it is estimated that the annual earnings of the property are about $400,000.

Bowling Old Pastime

Bowling has been played for centuries in Germany and the Low Countries, where it is still in high favor, but attains its greatest popularity in the United States, whence it was introduced in Colonial times from Holland. The Dutch inhabitants of New Amsterdam, now New York, were much addicted to it, and from 1623 to 1840 it was played on the green, the principal resort of the bowlers being the square just north of the Battery, still called Bowling Green. The first covered alleys were made of hewn stone or of slate, but the modern alleys are built up of strips of pine or maple wood, about 1 by 3 inches in size, set on edge, and fastened together and to the bed of the alley, the surface being carefully leveled and polished.

Old-World Melody

A New Yorker in London was strolling past Lincoln's Inn, one of the old dwellings, which figures in Charles Dickens' "Bleak House." Out of the old building came familiar strains of music.

Meditating, as he walked, on the old-worldliness of this Inn built centuries ago, the tune was slow in identifying itself.

It wasn't until the last line of the song that the words came to mind. They were, "I'll never go there any more," and the song of course, was the one that starts: "The Bowery, the Bowery."

To Stretch Shoe Leather

When a shoe pinches put it on, place a cloth in very hot water, wring it out as dry as possible, and put it on the part that hurts. This will stretch the leather and make the shoe more comfortable.

Says WILL ROGERS

Beverly Hills—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see as I stroll from here to there. Every time I get a new picture finished why I kinder feel the itch to get out to some new place or make some sort of a little trip. Anyway a couple of weeks ago, we had finished "As young as you feel," based on George Ade's old play "Father and the Boys". I was going to take a little trip off down in Central America, and then they kept me at home for fear there might be some re-takes on it. You know when we get one made we then take them out and show em, sometimes at a couple of different towns to see if they are fit to release, and sometimes we have to change something or make some new scenes.

The way I had it planned I would have been in Managua, Nicaragua on the day after the quake, was going to stop over and see what the marines was doing down there, and I would have been on the spot for quite a little news, for they sure have had it tough down there. Well we took the thing out and tried it in San Bernardino, Cal., and the customers giggled quite a bit, so that let me get away.

You know this Radio had made it mighty fine to find out about what's ahead. You see its never the weather where you take off in its weather where you have to go through after you take off. I remember one trip on our late tour with Captain Frank Hawkes when we took off one day in a snow storm in New Mexico when you just couldn't see a thing, not two hundred feet, and it was that way flying blind for the next hour, but he had heard before that it was clear in Albuquerque where we were going.

I left Los Angeles from over in San Fernando valley on the American Airways just at daybreak on Easter morning. They were having Easter sunrise services in the Hollywood Bowl.

Well the Sunrise bunch didn't get much started that day I am afraid. You know California can get more people into something free than any place on earth. Course that particular thing was a very meritorious cause, and is a good idea if you live in a country where you can depend on the weather.

Speaking of services and religious gatherings why we been missing Almee lately. She is away off prowling around some place, and we cant hardly figure her out. Her Church is running, but it with out Almee is like the modern Girl without her lipstick. It just aint her at all. With Almee away for all this stretch, and Clara Bow on her best behavior and me behaving myself, why there just is not much scandal out there at all. Doug Fairbanks is over in India getting even with some India Royalty that visited him one time. He is supposed to be shooting Tigers, but anybody that knows Doug knows that he never hunted in his life, he never shot anything, but if he can come back with some pictures with the right foot up on the neck of a dead Tiger or Elephant why it will be all right.

Mary is kinder ranting around. There is some club out there called the Mayfair, that has some sort of a shindig every week, and they put on fights, I mean impromptu fights, people get mad at each other after they get there, and they always open and close their dance with a fight. Well we have all been shocked to death to find Mary among, (Not the fighters) but among the guests, she has a ringside table at every public brawl they have. Doug has got to come home and put her to work, keep her out of devilment.

Chick Sale is out our way. I am figuring with him to put me in one up at the Ranch. He is working out the design now. You would be surprised the trade that he has, he has just practically quit acting, and is specializing entirely. It was too bad; he is a fine comedian too, one of the best that ever left the stage. But this new work is high class, and not hard. His mostly just consulting, and working out architectural plans. I wish I could hit on some side line, that would stop me having to just keep digging away day after day. Its certainly made a fortune for him. You would be surprised at his prices. He has an office in Hollywood, and is doing practically all Beverly Hills work. You just have to have em done by ladies or they wont be patronized. Jocky Guy.

End of Twilight

Twilight ends when the sun is 18 degrees below the horizon. In low latitudes, because of the quickness with which the sun traverses the 18 degrees below the horizon and because of the transparency of the atmosphere, there is less twilight.

Members of the troop engaged in the knot tying, bugling, fire by friction and water boiling contests. Edison Lemley and Claude Miller took first place in the water boiling contest, which was designed to see which team could build a fire and bring water to a boil the quick.

Dayton Clark represented the troop in the bugling contest and Howard Taylor in the fire by friction contest. The troop gave a yell. The drum and bugle corps, composed of members from troops 16 and 18, entered in the stunts and received favorable recognition. At the large court of honor held in the evening in McArthur court, Edison and Claude received a medal for their efficiency in water boiling. Edison received a merit badge for swimming and Howard Taylor received a merit badge for handcraft.

Jack Hoxie, Movie Starr To Appear With Circus

Schell Bros. Wild Animal Show To Give Two Performances Here Saturday.

Jack Hoxie, famous movie star, will appear in person with the Schell Bros. circus, which will give two performances here Saturday. In addition Hoxie will shoot several scenes for use in his forthcoming talking picture, "Circus War." Hoxie has with him his entire Hollywood company of motion picture actors and his famous wonder horse, "Old Scout."

While at his ranch and motion picture studio at Fort Davis, Tex., where he is producing all talking pictures, Hoxie decided to make a picture of the west and the circus. He negotiated with the famous Schell Bros. circus and many others in quest of a route which would take him to the locations for which his movie script called. He decided upon the Schell Bros. circus as the logical show with which to make his picture and immediately made arrangements for his entire company to join the circus. After final arrangements had been made it was found that Hoxie's marvel horse, Scout, was to remain at the ranch. Rather than leave the equine star alone at the ranch with a bunch of mustangs, Hoxie built a special padded trailer and arranged to carry Scout and the Golden Stallion with the circus.

Scout carries on his back Hoxie's famous $3000 saddle which is trimmed with silver and gold and studded with rubies, pearls and other precious stones. Incidentally Hoxie carries with him a wardrobe valued at $10,000.

Hoxie will appear twice Saturday, once at 2 o'clock and again at 8 o'clock at night, with the Schell Bros. 4-ring circus performance. However he will not appear in the big free street parade to be held at noon Saturday.
