T. O. Russell Explains Eugene's Home Position

Good Will of Other Cities of State Is Desired by Opponent of Roseburg Site.

That Eugene did not get into the picture as a contender for the veterans' home to be located in the northwest until after it became apparent that Roseburg was not an entirely satisfactory location, and then only when asked to submit a site, was the statement made Saturday by T. O. Russell of Eugene, who was a visitor in the city Friday.

Mr. Russell said that as a citizen of Eugene he stands by Eugene's original endorsement of the Roseburg site, but that as a veteran he is opposed to location of the home there. He said that he made a trip to Washington to present Eugene's claims and found that the board that will make the selection was not satisfied with the Douglas county location, although Congressman Hawley and others of influence were solid for Roseburg.

Mr. Russell admitted that Roseburg was the first Oregon city to seek the home, did the promotion work and got the endorsement of practically every other city of the state, but he said that following those incidents the veterans who may some day become guests of the institution had decided to have a say and that their say is for Eugene.

Mr. Russell said that the veterans' home is to be a much bigger thing than was at first believed and may have as many as 4,000 guests and 1,500 employes.

Eugene is anxious, Mr. Russell said, to make its position clear to other cities of the state and to overcome the feeling that has resulted from the belief that Eugene has taken some unfair advantage of Roseburg.

Thieves Thwarted When Hog Won't Die

THORNTON CORNERS, June 18.—(Special.)—An attempt to steal a large hog last night at the Frank Garoutte place failed when the porker, whose throat had been cut, refused to bleed to death so that the thieves might remove it without causing a disturbance.

Mr. Garoutte was sleeping in a house near the pen and apparently the thieves feared that the squealing of the pig if taken alive would awaken him. They reached through the pen to knife the porker, which weighs about 135 pounds.

A cut about seven inches long and three inches deep was made in the hog's throat, but the jugular vein was missed. Tracks of two men were found about the pen but there were no clues as to their identity.

Wheeler Law Again Up.

Further consideration of the proposed change from the Wheeler law for high school financing to the high school tuition law will be given by the county boundry board at a hearing to be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, June 23, in the circuit court room in the courthouse.

Springfield, Junction City, Cottage Grove and Eugene school boards are pressing for a change in the law, asserting that it is unfair to the larger schools. This year's opening gun was fired several weeks ago when the larger school boards asked for a hearing.

What Do Folks Think of You?

Through all the years from early manhood until his fingers grow stiff and his eyes dim, a man may study printing and in the end be very far from knowing all there is to know about that fine art.

Volumes that might fill libraries have been written on the subject. Thick trade journals discuss the news and the technique of the business in all its phases. The subject is inexhaustible and steadily progresses.

But do you know, every day of the world men go to their printers with INSTRUCTIONS, without once thinking to ask for SUGGESTIONS. We're not condemning the men; probably it's the printers' fault. We're simply wondering why it is that shrewd business men neglect so rich and obvious an opportunity and do it so frequently.

The upshot of it all is that men look at this letterhead and say that this firm is solid and successful and wholly desirable to do business with; then they look at that letterhead and say that that firm is cheap and obscure and to be avoided in business. Perhaps in either case the reverse is true! Such is the power of printing.

Then what do folks think of you?—folks who know you only by your printed matter.

What puts the fluff in fluffy muffins?

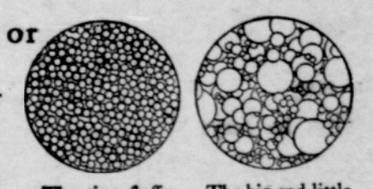
It's the millions of tiny bubbles in the batter released by the cream of tartar in your Baking Powder. Unfortunately, there are cheap substitutes for cream of tartar. They make bubbles too, but not the tiny, fluffy kind. Ask any domestic science teacher, or any dietitian.



The tiny fluffy bubbles made by cream of tartar. The big and little bubbles made by the substitutes.

Not every baking powder contains cream of tartar, for the substitutes cost a lot less. Look on your baking powder tin. See if you can find the words "cream of tartar" anywhere.

It's important!
