JULIUS AND HAL

That was a "pat" cartoon which the Oregonian published Friday showing the governor riding horse. Nothing tells a story better than a picture or illustration.

The Sentinel believes that Governor Meier has great administrative ability which he could use for the benefit of the state, and has used many times. The Sentinel believes that he wishes to make a record as governor, partly because of his interest in the state, partly because of the pleasure he would derive from doing so and partly to advance his political ambitions, but it appears to a large number of the people of the state, and the number is getting greater daily, that he would rather fail in making such a record than to fail to have his own way in everything he undertakes or suggests. He seems to be unable to give and take, regardless of how trivial the issue may be, and it not above trading to gain his purpose, despite recent criticism made of the secretary of state, who set a good example by showing that he would, when the good of the state was at stake, grant an unreasonable, unwarranted demand upon the part of the governor. Hal deserved credit rather than censure for the attitude he took regarding his excellency's request for special license plates, although the writing of the note was a poor move politically, it put ammunition into the gun of one who has missed no opportunity to ride Hal.

A thirty-day stay does not help the situation appreciably. The money will be just as hard to get a month from now as it is now, and if the governor is sincere in his much-advertised feeling for the common people, he will grant another stay at the end of thirty days, and another at the end of sixty days, etc. He should also return for thirty days, or sixty days, or whatever it is to be, the license money of those who paid on time although just as financially embarrassed as many who procrastinated. Those hard pressed persons who dug up their money have been discriminated against.

If the governor grieves for the common people, why must he have special favors from the state, why must his automobiles be immune when they travel on the highways at a rate of speed that would cause any other operator to be hailed into court, at a rate of speed through small cities that endangers life and limb?

If the governor is a knight errant of the common people he should do as the common people do, and they certainly are getting no special favors these days.

And if we want the governor's office and the secretary of state's office to be conducted in a dignified way, all that is necessary is for the governor to do his part. He will find Hal a mighty likeable chap when treated right and an efficient official who knows his stuff. He has been patient and forbearing under severe provocation.

IS PROSPERITY PEEPING?

There are indications that prosperity is peeping around the corner and is hoping that some will see him and catch him.

Crow's Lumber Digest says that signs in the lumber industry are the most cheerful they have been for months. That means much to this section.

In The Sentinel's mail today arrived notice that the price of type metal is going up. Inasmuch as this is the only thing used in a printing plant that has gone down in price, probably a tilt in the price should be discouraging, but The Sentinel has noted that in other lines there have been notices of advanced prices, and instead of being discouraged The Sentinel is wondering whether there are not the first signs of a strengthening of market conditions.

Higher prices should mean higher wages, and higher wages mean greater purchasing power, and it is greater purchasing power that will bring prosperity.

Advancing prices probably mean something significant as to stocks of goods in storage and on shelves. We know that stocks in retail lumber yards are the lowest they have been in a quarter of a century. Persons returning from a visit in the east report that it is difficult to purchase a large order from many yards that formerly bought in large quantities. Stocks at mills are low and production has been cut to the bone. The same no doubt is true in other industries.

Any purchasing movement will bring an advance in prices. The glutted condition that resulted from installment purchasing, by means of which we probably held the depression back a year or so, is being righted. Those who bought on the pay-as-you-can plan are getting pretty well caught up with their payments, and any present demand will be a natural one. Hoover's proposal for a moratorium on international debts, even if it costs us millions, may be the straw that will start business on the up grade.

Stapling Machines. The Sentinel.

The farm board is trying to figure out when and how to sell its 200,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat. So is many a farmer.—Eugene Register-Guard.
If the farm board would buy another 100,000 bushels, set a price of $1 a bushel on the 300,000 bushels and then go out of business, the problem would be solved so far as the producer is concerned and the government would lose no more than it stands to lose now through the expensive regulatory machinery it maintains.

We are pleased to note the advancement of Paul Kelly, former Eugene publisher and editor, to the editorship of the Oregonian. While R. G. Calvert will retain his position as managing editor, upon Kelly no doubt will devote most of the detail work connected with editing the Pacific Northwest's leading and best edited newspaper. Paul endeared himself to the readers of Eugene newspapers and will no doubt be as successful in his larger field. This is a case of ability being recognized.

The Oregonian tells us that Australia is in the same kind of a mess the rest of us are in and that immigration is being severely restricted, while unionists oppose the admission of skilled workmen to compete with them. If the situation is so bad what is Uncle Sam doing over here frittering away his time trying to win the Widow Zander?

If we had to wait until people were fitted to govern themselves we would never have self-government.

It is better to grumble about your wife than at her, although both are utterly useless.

Some self-made man couldn't get the same kind of a job for anyone else.

France in America

St. Pierre and Miquelon are two small groups of rocky, barren islands close to the southwest coast of Newfoundland belonging to France. The area of St. Pierre is ten square miles and the population about 3,500. The area of Miquelon is 83 square miles and the population about 500. The capital is the small town of St. Pierre.

Price of Selfishness

The only happy people are those who see more concern about the happiness of others than about their own well-being and convenience and advancement. Selfish people never know contentment.—Hamilton Fyfe.

Radio Ray Has This to Say:

We believe that Governor Meier had the right idea on the "moratorium" on car licenses. The charge is out of all proportion to the wage it is possible to earn these days, anyway.

And if it is possible to eliminate the huge sums spent on duplication at our state schools, perhaps it is possible to save a respectable amount on our highway construction, without in any way cutting down the wages or the numbers of men employed at common labor.

At any rate, the application of a little "department store business ability" seems to mean the saving of the public's tax money.

The national anthem was sung far and wide on July Fourth, and following that date another song is being sung nationally by those bitten by the camping bug. Can-opener, 'tis of thee, Friend in Emergency, Of thee we sing. When burnt brown is the steak, And sinks the ten-pound cake, You save a tummy ache, Oh, camping king.

And speaking of singing, Radio Ray carries a line of popular sheet music, at popular prices. This was the eleventh line added to his stock, and with the radios and records rounds out the home music supplies carried by this local, progressive store.

FOR GREENS

Salads made with light, simple greens seem to find their ideal complement in a dressing like Vinaigrette Dressing. It gives them a touch of subtle flavor while allowing all their natural deliciousness to assert itself.To make Vinaigrette Dressing: One teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper, a little paprika, twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Beat with a fork until thoroughly blended. Stir in two tablespoonfuls chopped dill pickle, and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

FOR FRUITS

For fruit salads select a dressing made with nuts or cheese . . . or one that has a touch of sweetness. The next time you have a fruit salad try Nut Dressing:To make Nut Dressing: To twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil add four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-eighth teaspoon of white pepper. Mix well and then add four tablespoonfuls of chopped nuts.

FOR SEAFOOD

Seafood should be marinated in French Dressing for a few hours before it is made into the salad. It helps to bring back all the zesty tang that makes seafood so delicious."To marinate: Mix twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Add a teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper. Mix with the seafood and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve with Lemonaise (mayonnaise made with lemon juice).

Sugar and cream go well with peaches

But..

on sardines . . . never!

SOME things just seem to be made to go together. Some do not. We like lemon on fish, but on oatmeal we prefer something sweet. And so it is with salads and their dressings. There is a kind of dressing that goes best with each different kind of salad. So . . .

mix a dressing
to the salad

For instance, on salads of simple greens, try Vinaigrette, Bachelor Club, or French Dressing. On fruits, fresh or canned, use Bar-le-Duc, Cheese or Nut Dressing. And when the salad is made of seafood, marinate the ingredients in French Dressing before they are made into the salad.

SEND FOR Mary B. Murray's booklet about appropriate salad dressings. It tells you how to select the dressings that go best with different kinds of salads and contains many useful hints about the proper service of salads.
