CHANGE OF PROGRAM EVERY DAY

SOCIETY

The W. C. T. U. was entertained Friday afternoon by Mrs. Mary Smith at the home of a daughter, Mrs. George Matthews. Mrs. William McGee was in charge of devotionals. Mrs. Helen M. Bosley, president, reported on the essay work which will be conducted in the city schools this year and said that this project has the support of Superintendent D. A. Emerson. A play, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," which will be given early in September, was discussed. Rev. D. P. Cameron will direct this production. Mrs. William McGee was appointed literature superintendent for the union. Mrs. F. C. Houser, Mrs. C. N. Land and Mrs. Hattie Hart were named to arrange a program for the coming year. Mrs. Bosley resigned as president and Mrs. N. E. Compton gave a message in honor of the retiring president. Miss Stella Adams, Mrs. Loretta Shortridge and Mrs. Lettie Knickerbocker were named delegates to the Lane county W. C. T. U. convention to be held in Springfield in September. Mrs. Compton, county president, also will attend. Election of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. Lettie Knickerbocker, president; Mrs. F. C. Houser, first vice president; Mrs. Mary Smith, second vice president; Mrs. Ida Caldwell, third vice president; Mrs. Loretta Shortridge, secretary; Mrs. C. N. Land, treasurer; Mrs. Hattie Hart, music; Miss Stella Adams, flowers. The newly elected president called for a meeting of the new officers to be held the first week in September at the home of Mrs. Bosley. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. W. V. McGee. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, who was assisted by Mrs. Matthews.

Nineteen members of the Cottage Grove Rebekah lodge attended a meeting of the Springfield lodge Monday night. Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Yarnell and her seven overall girls. Those from Cottage Grove who attended were Mrs. Rosa Currin, Mrs. Annie Newcomb, Mrs. Ethel Applewhite, Mrs. Minnie Willits, Mrs. Eva Hatch, Mrs. Eva Aubrey, Mrs. Clara Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Hazen, Mrs. Sarah Tennis, Mrs. Elloise Fullmer, James Bennett, Mrs. Laura McKernan, Mrs. Elsie Currin, Mrs. Merle McKibben, Mrs. Alice Conner, Mrs. Stella Baker, Miss Jessie Sanborn and Bert Hatch.

Mrs. Myrle Woods of this city and Dr. E. A. Johnston of Helena, Mont., were married Saturday in Portland. They left at once for Seattle and Canada on a honeymoon trip. The bride, who is the owner of two service stations here, has been a resident of the city for many years. The couple have returned here to make their home until the bride's business interests can be disposed of. Dr. and Mrs. Johnston have known each other since childhood. Dr. Johnston recently retired from practice.

The missionary society of the Presbyterian church met Monday with Mrs. George Matthews. Miss Irene Forsythe, a returned missionary to China, gave a talk upon her work in the orient and the customs and habits of the people. She had a display of Chinese dresses, curios, etc. The usual summer offering was taken. The committee was Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. O. W. Blackmore.

A Royal Neighbors club was organized at a meeting held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Breedlove, oracle. The following officers were elected: Mrs. H. B. Breedlove, president; Mrs. J. S. Powell, vice president; Mrs. Emaline Wilson, secretary-treasurer. The club will meet the first Thursday of each month.

The Royal Neighbors will hold a social meeting next Tuesday in Swanson hall. A 6:15 covered dish supper will be served and a program and social evening will follow.

Height of Human Agony in Waiting Return of Lost

In Britanny they are always awaiting the return of lost fishermen. Day after day the bereaved ones of their families wait, gazing out over the treacherous waters. Mothers, wives, sweethearts haunt the quays. For them, in the strange absence of their beloved ones, all life is suspended. Bodies without hope or conscious life, almost without souls, they wait upon the piers. Of all the agonies that rack the human heart, such waiting is the cruelest. The uncertainty of hope deferred plunges the heart into a constancy of the bitterest grief. Better far to know the worst than to hope on and on, without even the poignant consolation of knowledge of the dear one's fate. That persistent anxiety and dread paralyzes every healthful activity, destroys the savor of one's food, makes every night a sleepless one and exiles all joy and peace from human souls. The only refuge left such Breton fisherfolk in life is passionate and daily prayer to God for the return of the missing men who went out upon the sea, and who have not returned.—Le Matin (Paris).

China's Right to Title of "Mother of Gardens"

The late Ernest H. Wilson, who was undoubtedly the world's foremost authority on plant introductions from China and keeper of the Arnold arboretum of Harvard university, remarks that "China is, indeed, the Mother of Gardens, for of the countries to which our gardens are the most deeply indebted she holds the foremost place."

There is hardly a garden in this country or Europe that is not indebted to China for the plants that embellish it. The forsythia, the Yulan magnolias, the peonies, the parents of our modern roses, be they hybrid tea, rambler, or palyantha; many of tthe azaleas and primroses, peaches, oranges, lemons and grapefruit have been brought to us from China.

The Portuguese reached China in 1516 and took back with them to their settlements in India the sweet orange, which was later introduced into Portugal. Mr. Wilson says that, so far as he has been able to discover, this was the first plant taken to Europe. From that time to the present era there has been a constant flow of new plant introductions from the East to Europe and America.—New York Herald Tribune.

"Latah" Sufferers Made Victims of Odd Pranks

An extraordinary disease called latah is prevalent in the Malay states, a contributor informs the Sydney Bulletin. To anyone who has never seen latah before, the gesticulations of the sufferers appear at first funny or offensive, until it is explained that a person afflicted with it will, if suddenly startled, fall into a hypnotic state and imitate the gesture of anything in sight. For instance, an old woman suddenly startled by a bicycle bell will violently imitate the pedaling of a cyclist until she falls down exhausted.

That the victim makes these movements entirely against their will is evident when one considers the pranks that are played on well-known latahs. They have been known to jump off a lugger in shark-infested waters, drop trays of drinks and crow like a rooster at sharp command. What causes latah is unknown; there is a theory that it is associated with betel-nut chewing.

American Cliff Dwellers

Cliff dwellers, although of broader application, means in America that prehistoric race that built the houses and villages whose ruins are found in the southwestern part of the United States and especially in the valley of the Rio San Juan and its tributaries. This river rises in the extreme southwestern corner of Colorado, and flows westward along the borders of adjoining states to a junction with the Rio Colorado. As to the origin of these vanished cliff dwellers nothing is known, but it is evident that centuries ago these valleys were occupied by a considerable, sedentary population, who had fixed homes and cultivated fields for crops of corn, beans, gourds and probably other things, by means of extensive systems of irrigation. They made pottery, cloth, baskets, etc., and stone implements, but nothing metallic.

"House in the Wood"

Situated in The Hague wood in Holland is the famous "Home in the Woods"—a royal inn erected about 1645 for the widow of Frederic Henry of Orange. Here Mary Stuart, wife of William II, spent the happiest years of her life. At The Hague in 1899 was held the international peace conference. The Hague is rapidly extending to the popular seaside resort of Scheveningen. Close to this popular resort is the Peace palace, erected at a cost of $1,500,000, donated by Andrew Carnegie. The foundation stone was laid July 30, 1907, and bears the inscription: "Paci justia firmandae hanc aedem Andreae Carnegii munificentia dedicavit." The building was founded after the first peace conference and was intended to be the meeting place of the permanent court of arbitration.

Origin of Word "Dogma"

Contrary to common belief, "dogma" is not originally a word of authority, nor is it connected with "doctrine." "Doctrine" comes from the Latin "docere," "to teach"; "dogma" from the Greek "dokein," "to seem," whose nearest relation in Latin is "decet," "it is seemly," the ancestor of our "decent." "Dogma" at first therefore meant "that which seems to one," or "an opinion." But when the early Christian councils met to discuss the essentials of the faith, what they sought were the "opinions" held in common by all orthodox bishops. These were called "dogmas"; but since they represent the agreement of so weighty a concourse, the word soon acquired the sense of authoritative truth.

Fortune in Croquet Box

A manuscript worth hundreds of dollars a page was found in the lumber room of an English castle.

One summer's day the guests of Lord Talbot de Malahide decided to play croquet and sent servants to fetch the mallets and hoops from their box in an old lumber room. The servants opened a box and, instead of mallets, found a mass of musty crumbling papers yellow with age.

These proved to be the manuscript writings of James Boswell, the great-great-grandfather of Lord Talbot, and among them were 107 pages of his famous "Life of Johnson." Only 16 pages of this manuscript had been found before, and their owner was offered $75,000 for them.

Loss by Forest Fires

In one year forest fires in the United States caused a loss estimated at $82,934,220, or nearly 7½ cents for every man, woman and child in the country.

Wife: Professor, will you pass the nuts?

Prof. (absentmindedly): Yes, but there are a few I should flunk.

Pete—"And why do you call me 'Pilgrim'?"

Mabel—"Well, every time you call you make a little progress."

A Rastatt (Germany) resident found a pair of baby's shoes in the storks' nest which rests on the roof of his house.

Dog Lost on Trip Is Returned

Tudy, Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Compton's Spitz dog, which they lost on their trip to Iowa two months ago, was returned to them last Friday morning. Tudy was lost off the auto in the vicinity of Dayville and was picked up by H. H. Cummins of that place. On their return home, the Comptons inquired at Dayville and discovered that the Cummins family had gone to the coast for a vacation and had taken Tudy with them. When the Cummins returned to Dayville they shipped Tudy by express to her home here.

On their trip Mr. and Mrs. Compton also had a believe it or not experience. In Nebraska Mr. Compton lost a fountain pen with his name on it and later found it in Wyoming. Like many of the Believe It or Not features the experience has a simple explanation. The fountain pen had been dropped in the car and had lodged in an angle. It was not jarred from its hiding place until the Comptons arrived in Wyoming.

National Legion Plans Program.

A radio program boosting the national American Legion convention to be held in Detroit will be given between 8:15 and 9:15 eastern time, Sunday, August 23, over the National Broadcasting company's red network, according to word received by Robert Fromm, commander of the local post.

Roxy, premier theatrical and radio producer, will return to the air to take charge of the coast-to-coast hook-up program for the American Legion National Convention corporation. Radio, screen and stage stars will entertain.

Odd Fellows Attend Crow Meeting.

A number of Cottage Grove Odd Fellows attended a meeting at the Crow I. O. O. F. hall Thursday night of last week at which Grand Master Homer D. Angell and Grand Marshall Charles Poole paid an official visit to the lodges of Crow, Elmira and Lorane. Sixty-three Rebekahs also were in attendance, 28 of them being from Cottage Grove. Ice cream and cake were served after the meeting.

Camels Find Refuge in Swampy Spanish Plain

Spain may pass through troublous times but there is one community in that country which is not likely to be disturbed whatever happens. This is the strange colony of wild camels which have made a home for themselves in the lower reaches of the Guadalquivir river. Many years ago an attempt was made to introduce camels for agricultural work in southern Spain. The plan was not a success, and those camels which did not die strayed off to fend for themselves. A few of them found a retreat in the vast alluvial plain through which the sluggish stream of the river winds its way to the Gulf of Cadiz.

One could hardly imagine a situation more unlike that to which a camel normally is accustomed. The land is largely water-logged and covered with a dense growth of weeds and rushes many feet in height. From the human point of view, the district is extremely unhealthy, although animal life flourishes.

At the least sign of danger the animals retreat to the swamps, where the ground is so soft that it is impossible for a man to follow. Of course the broad feet of the camel, which help the creature to walk on loose sand, have also stood in good stead in these marshes, where a horse or a cow certainly would never be able to travel safely.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

How to Become a Saint

Why were the saints saints? Because they were cheerful when it was difficult to be cheerful, and patient when it was difficult to be patient; and because they pushed on when they wanted to stand still, and kept silent when they wanted to talk; and were agreeable when they wanted to be disagreeable. That was all. It was quite simple, and always will be.—Exchange.

Woman Injured When Jar Explodes

An explosion of a fruit jar Saturday under unusual circumstances resulted in minor injuries to Mrs. J. E. Tate. The jar that exploded was one that was left over after Mrs. Tate had filled her boiler and had been placed in a pail of water on the stove. The water boiled away and when Mrs. Tate poured some more into the pail the explosion followed.

Learn what a difference six cylinders make

Step out of any other low-priced car into a Chevrolet, and learn the difference six cylinders make.

"Idle" the engine—and the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. It's actually built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only one of many six-cylinder advantages. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire you out. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And a six is much easier to handle!

If you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running so smoothly, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

And remember when you do—that no other car is so economical to operate as the Chevrolet Six.
