MUSINGS. The good ship Misadventure, which had been on a 365-day cruise in the troubled sea of Depression, is again in port, just long-side pier 1931, snubbed by the great hawser of 'time. Her plates are said to be a bit rusty and a trifle sprung as she goes into the drydock of Eternity; but she has been a mighty good boat at that, or she would have gone to the bottom amid-voyage, in the continued blow she weathered. Her captain and the ship's officers are to be congratulated that they have as much as made port without greater mishap than that of a shifted seat-washed cargo, made up of the world's excess in trade—and her seamen of the fo'castle—every man-jack of us—are deserving of clean bills of seamanship, as we are signed off the old tub. . . .

At times the snarl of the wind and the bite of the sea developed a spirit of distrust, for'd deck and th' fo'castle, of the navigating officers, and mutiny was averted only through good discipline, thorough seamanship and to a return to plain, common American sense, which had been stowed in the bottom hold for some ten voyages. . . .

Anyway the old boat did her best, and she goes into drydock 'th our best wishes; and that with her sister ship, Assurance, ahad-by, trimmed to slip her hawser at pier 1932, January 1. . . .

No blatant promises are being made; but, as officers look her over and we seamen look aloft, a feeling of confidence asserts itself—and every man-jack is bending sail and tightening down hatches determined on safe delivery of cargo. "Ahoy!" . . .

"Ave, aye, sir! All clear, sir! She's heading into 'th' wind, sir;—'th a bit of weather to starboard!" JACK HOWARD. . . .

CHINAMAN SAYS FOLKS NO SAVVY

Undertakers Must Be Busy, According to Depositors Who Want Money.

BY CLAUDE M. BRISTOL. Vice-President Smith, Camp & Riley, Ltd. (In The Oregonian).

Fear—that terrible thing which at present rules the world—got a terrific solar plexus blow in Portland last week.

It was reaching out its awful claws in an attempt to destroy confidence in the very business heart of Portland and endeavoring to bring unhappiness and misery to thousands of Portland people. It was fed primarily by malicious individuals who had as their sole aim the destruction of things which good folks of Portland had striven for all their lives and subsequently mothered and fathered by perhaps well-meaning people, but who became temporarily panic stricken because they did not think.

Of course, most of us know that it is a penitentiary offense to spread rumors or even gossip of the condition of financial institutions, and perhaps before many days have passed some of those who were behind pulling the strings of the fear puppets to do damage to our financial institutions will realize that the arm of the law is long and far-reaching.

There have been countless books written on the psychology of fear—how it can be developed and how it can be throttled—but behind the scenes in Portland last week were a lot of right-thinking men and women who calmly planted their feet firmly on the ground, smashing out with both fists every time fear showed its ugly head. While perhaps few realize it, there was great drama behind the curtain. The story of what happened can be told at a later time, but we are going to give you some interesting sidelights on the actions of a lot of average human individuals who failed to think when some of our largest financial institutions were made targets by premeditated acts of vicious scoundrelism.

A wise old Chinaman—he might have been a cannery worker for all we know. His face was wrinkled and his hair gray. His clothes were nothing to speak of, but there was wisdom in his eyes. He stood in the center of a milling throng of worried, perplexed men and women in a bank lobby and he was heard to comment:

"Some folks no savvy. Some take money out—some put it back again. Jumping jacks. All crazy—damn fools!" . . .

"The undertakers must have done a thriving business the first part of the week," said one vice-president, "as there were dozens of people who told us that they had to have money to pay for the burial of relatives. I never knew so many people had doctor's bills, dentist's bills, mortgages falling due at an exact hour, so many people being sued by their butcher and grocer, so many who

Lime Is Available Here At Price of $3 the Ton

Agricultural lime for south Lane county farmers is available at $3 a ton, provided a sufficient quantity is contracted to make it worth while for the Quicksilver syndicate at Black Butte to install a crusher. Some of this lime, discovered a year ago, has been used by farmers of this section and has been found efficacious in removing soil acidity. For the present, on account of the expense of machinery, the mining company does not intend to burn the lime, but the only difference between the raw and burned is that the burned will cover a greater acreage per ton. At the price of $3 the raw lime is cheaper for covering a given area than burned lime at present market prices. The price of $3 is at the mine, unstacked. It is estimated that the cost to sack will be about 35 cents for used grain sacks.
