CONSOLIDATION OF EDUCATION.

The Sentinel was one of the first papers that dared say that education had to be made less expensive or the wrecking crews would come along and get it. The first statements of that character made by this newspaper were pooh-poohed more or less, but in recent years there has been much support of the same idea from press and elsewhere.

Whatever The Sentinel has at any time said has been as a friend of education and it has stood by the institutions of learning when they were unfairly attacked.

Today the institutions of higher learning of the state feel that they have their backs to the wall, just as The Sentinel feared. What has been brought about has been so far brought about by those whom The Sentinel believes to be just as firm friends of education as The Sentinel is. The members of the board of higher education are endeavoring to find a way to reduce the cost of education, a way to eliminate duplication, a way to put it on a business basis, a way to put it more nearly within the reach of all. In doing that they will make mistakes of judgment, just as any of the rest of us would, but The Sentinel has a great deal of confidence in the members of that board, in their sound judgment, in their earnest desire to be of real service, in their unbiased honesty and integrity. They are endeavoring to perform a big job and they knew that to follow their own judgment would bring down upon them severe criticism from those who disagree with them, who believe that one institution or the other has been unfairly dealt with. The Sentinel does not know that the plan now decided upon is the best one that could be evolved, but it is certain that those endeavoring to put it into effect believe it to be that kind of a plan. They are upstanding citizens of our state, legally our representatives in positions which they did not seek and our sympathies are with them and they shall have our support even though we may from time to time make suggestions that may seem to be criticism.

The Sentinel has frequently called attention to the fact that it is not alone the cost of education in taxes that has brought higher education to its present position, even though education does take nearly half our taxes. There are other expenses that are equally as great. The student himself, in fees, board, expenses of a house, social expenses that he would not have at home pays an amount that probably is equal to the amount that is paid directly by taxation.

It is these additional expenses that put higher education out of the reach of the greater proportion of high school graduates, and that means that higher education, in its battle for tax funds, does not have the sympathy of the great masses beyond whose reach it is. It is human nature to be opposed to, or at least not greatly interested in, the things we can not ourselves have. Parents of children who can not send their children to college feel much the same as those who participated in a tea party many years ago, that they are being taxed without having representation.

The Sentinel was one of the first, if not the first, to suggest that student fees be increased. They were increased soon after The Sentinel made its suggestion. The principle is correct. By that method those who get higher education pay a greater proportion than those who do not get it. But the idea can not be carried too far, because the fees act as a deterrent for many worthy young men and women who are deserving of education, young men and women who probably would get more out of education than many to whom the fees are nothing. However, in the opinion of this writer, it is better for students to pay their money for fees than for activities that go with college life but are not necessarily a part of college, such as fraternities and sororities. It is admitted that these organizations serve a purpose. Membership therein may be desirable, but when they become more important to the student than education itself, when they result in classes and cliques, when they make education seem unattainable to those who would feel that they had not been to college if they failed to make a house, our institutions of higher learning would be better off without them.

The board of higher education is endeavoring to subordinate football, which too often has been almost a major subject, and it may be that the board can do something about these other things and put higher education more within the reach of the masses.

It would be but natural for a newspaper to suggest that wrecking the journalism department of the university might have been ill-considered. Colleges have gone far afield in teaching trades and professions, and there is some doubt in the mind of this writer as to whether this should have been permitted. This business of teaching everything from carpentering to journalism has been, in the opinion of this writer, a matter of competition between colleges. There are many employers who prefer employes who get their learning in actual experience under actual working conditions, but if any of the non-degree trades and professions should be taught in our colleges, certainly journalism is one of the most worthy. Not alone because journalism requires young men and young women of high ideals and of good education, but because journalism teaches something that is of inestimable value even to those who may never follow the profession. The cost to the state has been less than $10,000 annually at the university, and this writer believes the initiative that students have learned there, the ability acquired to meet persons and trying situations, the education in vigorous, expressive and virile English has been worth to students much more than the cost to the state.

The Sentinel wishes to endorse the move of the board to do away with automobiles at colleges. It is the automobile style of education that has brought the kind of mess we are now trying to clean up.

The Sentinel regrets that Presidents Hall and Kerr may have to go, and that neither can be elected to the chancellorship. Both are outstanding educators of the nation, men who have given their life-blood to their institutions. They are so big that they have made not one move to hinder carrying out the program that means their elimination from the work they love and for which they have given so much.

Oregon Voter seldom makes an error in statistics or in the use of words, but we find it speaking of Salem as the capitol city. Did something go wrong under the polished dome?

JOHN PHILIPSO, U. S. A.

There is a story about the early life of the late John Philip Sousa that is worth repeating for the benefit of many who hold their citizenship lightly.

As the story goes there was a young man whose name was John Philipso. He was of parents born in another land, but John was an American and wanted a name without a foreign twang, so to John Philipso was added "U. S. A." and John Philipso became John Philip Sousa, the name under which he became known as one of the greatest composers the world has ever known.

The Sentinel uses this story to point out that if one coming from foreign parentage is American enough to wish to have a name identifying him as an American, we who come of American parentage and have names that identify us as such should have enough pride in our country to speak kindly of it more often, to give it and its institutions a greater measure of patriotic devotion than many are now doing. Those coming from other lands, even though retaining the names they brought with them, to which there can be no objection, often set an example that those born here might well emulate.

ITEM NOT DONE YET.

Cottage Grove, March 6.—(To the Editor.)—When I bid you a fond adieu, Mr. Editor, I hoped that it might not be necessary for me to again enter the lists and poise a lance in another joust to uphold the truth. However, your reply to my last letter is so grossly wide of the facts, in several instances, I cannot, either in justice to myself or the best interests of your readers, allow it to go unchallenged.

You say, "We presume it is admitted that bonds can be redeemed in ten years to our figures of a week ago."

Your penchant for presumptions seems to be so firmly knit into your system that nothing short of dynamite will break you loose. However, I want to say, most emphatically, that I admit nothing of the kind. Why should I? I pointed out that your figures had no more stable foundation than presumptions, ifs, possibles and maybes, and that it was only by the reckless use of these that you were enabled to reach your desired goal at all. In what better way could it be shown that they had no real value?

(Editorial note.—What The Sentinel said was: "We presume it is admitted that bonds can be redeemed in ten years to our figure WITHOUT COLLECTING ANY MORE ANNUALLY THAN IS TO BE COLLECTED THIS YEAR." There are no ifs ands or buts about such a statement. Nothing but common sixth grade arithmetic, and we presented figures that can not be controverted to show that collections every year for ten years at the same rate as this year would reduce the debt to far below the figure we had previously set.)

You further say, "Inasmuch as Mr. Kem infers that this writer did not know what was done by the budget committee of which he was chairman, it should be stated that the statement of bonded indebtedness was made by the recorder and not by the budget committee, and the report to which Mr. Kem refers so states in the last paragraph thereof."

In reply to a former letter, you said "The budget committee's report, if it made one." I was perfectly justified in entertaining a doubt as to your knowledge of the proceedings of the committee and the above quotation relative to bonded indebtedness only strengthens that doubt. You refer to the last paragraph of the budget to prove that the statement of bonded indebtedness was made by the recorder. I will now quote this paragraph verbatim so we may see just what your statement is worth.

"I, O. V. Breese, recorder of the City of Cottage Grove, Oregon, hereby certify that the foregoing estimate of expenditures and receipts for the year of 1932 are the true and correct copies of the estimate prepared by the budget committee of said city now on file in this office." It will be observed Mr. Editor, that in this certificate of the recorder there is not a word or indication of any sort to show that the recorder made the "statement of bonded indebtedness." Yet, you point to it as evidence that he did. I never questioned his making it and never had a doubt, so am wholly at a loss to know why you mentioned it here. However, the recorder does make quite clear that the committee made the estimate of the receipts and expenditures of the city, and certifies that it is "a true and classified summary of the indebtedness of the city." Therefore its constitutes the budget committee's report, as I have frequently spoken of it. It is the report of the committee to the taxpayers at their public meeting held for the purpose of accepting or rejecting it.

(Editorial note. — The Sentinel doesn't believe that Mr. Kem intends to attempt to deceive anyone, but we are unable to explain why he didn't complete the paragraph of which his quotation is a part. The complete paragraph reads: "I, O. V. Breese, recorder of the City of Cottage Grove, Oregon, hereby certify that the foregoing estimate of expenditures and receipts for the year 1932 are the true and correct copies of the estimate prepared by the budget committee of said city now on file in this office. THE FOREGOING IS A TRUE AND CORRECT CLASSIFIED SUMMARY OF THE INDEBTEDNESS OF THE CITY OF COTTAGE GROVE." The budget committee is not mentioned in connection with the summary of indebtedness, which was made by the recorder individually and was attached to the estimates of the budget committee.)

Again you say, "His figures (the recorder's) published in connection with the budget committee's report showed only the final maturity date of the last bond of each series."

Once more you are wrong, Mr. Editor, as is shown in the following verbatim statement of bond issues in budget report:

	Date bond Issue	Maturity
Water	6-1-1910	6-1-1935
Water refunding	10-1-1921	10-1-1941
Water reservoir	6-1-1925	6-1-1945
Water replacement	6-1-1926	6-1-1941
Water system	4-15-1928	4-15-1946
Water refunding	6-15-1930	6-15-1950
Trunk sewer	10-1-1924	10-1-1944
Refunding	10-15-1930	10-15-1950
City hall	7-1-1926	7-1-1946
Armory	5-1-1930	5-1-1945

A glance at the above budget report will show when all bonds, exclusive of Bancroft bonds, were issued and when they finally mature.

(Editorial note.—We fail to see what point Mr. Kem is trying to make. The above table shows exactly what The Sentinel said it showed, the final maturity date of the last bond in each series, and every issue is a serial issue except the water bond issue of 1910.)

If you will observe this table only casually you will find another hard nut to crack. Of the $100,000 of bonds issued in 1910 for extending main water line into the mountains, $15,000 was refunded in 1921 and $35,000 in 1930. These two items together with $38,000 that has been neither paid or refunded, make a total of $78,000 remaining unredeemed or, in other words, we have permanently retired but $22,000 of the original $100,000 of bonds in 21 years and yet you have the courage to say that we will not only redeem the $229,500 yet remaining of all bonds, exclusive of Bancroft, within 10 years but, that we will do it at the present rate, which is $10,000.

(Editorial note.—Again we must state that we do not believe Mr. Kem would intentionally attempt to deceive anyone, but no portion of the original $100,000 bond issue for the main line into the mountains has ever been refunded. The refunding issues to which Mr. Kem refers were refunds of bonds issued before the $100,000 issue was floated, except in the case of the $35,000 issue, which includes a refund of $15,000 of city warrants. Again we must state that we don't believe Mr. Kem would intentionally attempt to deceive anyone, but we have stated, and reiterated, and reiterated that PAYMENTS ON BONDS FOR 1932 WILL BE $20,500, NOT THE $10,000 TO WHICH MR. KEM CONTINUALLY REFERS in his computations. There will be $10,000 on general obligation bonds alone and $5,000 on Bancroft bonds from items in the budget. Collections on street improvements will add $5,500, provided collections are in the same amount as for 1931. The $15,000 is certain and there is no reasonable reason for presuming that collections on street assessments will be less than they were last year.)

The recorder's report of December 31, 1931, shows the maturity of only a part of the bonds, if I interpret the abbreviations correctly. For instance, "Water replacement 1926 5% due ser. beg. 6-1-37," means that these bonds were issued in 1926, drawing 5 per cent interest, payments due yearly beginning in 1937, but does not say when they will terminate. Same is true of water system bonds, also of water refunding, refunding and armory. There is not a thing to show when these five different issues of bonds will mature or if they will ever mature. There is not a thing in the entire list of 10 different issues of bonds exclusive of Bancroft, that shows any of them maturing after 1945, if I have interpreted them correctly. If not, will you kindly print the list and point out wherein I have erred? I am from Missouri and must be shown.

This is why I said in my last letter that the report showed none maturing after 1945 and shows you to be in error when you say:

"Contrary to Mr. Kem's statement, the recorder's December 31 report, shows bonds expiring after 1945." Then continuing, you say: "But in 1950, according to the recorder's books, there should be but $1,500 remaining of all present outstanding issues."

(Editorial note.—Mr. Kem is correct as to the indefiniteness of the recorder's figures as to these five issues, but all are 20-year bonds and it will be easy for Mr. Kem to figure maturity dates. The bonds in the December 31 report are the same as those in the other recorder's report quoted by Mr. Kem, so there is no reason why he should be in any doubt as to maturity dates. Mr. Kem is deceiving no one but himself when he says that when the statement is made that bonds are due serially there is no indication that they will ever mature. Bonds due serially mature when the last bond is due.)

Pleased to have you refer to the recorder's books. It shows the truth of my statement, that there are bonds that do not mature until 9 years after your 10 year limit, also the inadequacy of the recorder's report and the lack of harmony between that and the budget committee's report.

(Editorial note.—As every reply to Mr. Kem has stated that bonds will be due until 1950, there is no point to the preceding paragraph.)

Nuf sed. Will have more to say about this later on. O. M. KEM.

SOCIETY

The women's bible class of the Methodist Sunday school gave a shower Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors for Mrs. Jack Holcomb. Twenty were present. A pleasant social afternoon was enjoyed and dainty refreshments were served. Decorations were in keeping with the St. Patrick day season. Those present were Mrs. Lettie Knickerbocker, Mrs. M. Allen, Mrs. Ella Allen, Mrs. Judson Allen, Mrs. Carrie Maugh, Mrs. Ira Beidler, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Lottie Burge, Mrs. Alta Hart, Mrs. Emma Hart, Mrs. Henry Umphrey, Mrs. F. T. Wilson, Mrs. Carrie Boulware, Mrs. J. R. Hendricks, Margaret and Harriet Leonard, Mrs. William Hogate, Mrs. Belle Taylor and Mrs. J. R. Chambers.

The Past Matrons' club was entertained Monday afternoon at the T. C. Wheeler home, with Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. O. L. Nichols as joint hostesses. The club made plans for the year's work and entertainment committees were appointed. It was decided to have three hostesses for each meeting instead of two as formerly. Letters from several absent members were read. At the tea hour a delicious two-course luncheon was served. Table decorations and the menu were in keeping with the St. Patrick's day season.

Mrs. W. B. Johnston entertained members of the O. L. H. club Tuesday afternoon at her home. Mrs. T. C. Wheeler was an additional guest. The afternoon was spent playing bridge and Mrs. George Jacobsen held high score. At the tea hour a delicious two-course luncheon was served. Spring flowers were attractive room and table decorations. The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. W. W. McFarland, who will entertain with a 1:30 luncheon at the Colonial.

Mrs. Herbert W. Lombard was hostess Tuesday afternoon for the Tuesday Bridge club, entertaining with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Gray Goose. Mrs. Raymond Grube of Pengra and Mrs. Harry Metcalf of Eugene, former club members, were additional guests. Following the luncheon the group went to the home of Mrs. Lombard for an afternoon of contract. Mrs. Metcalf held high score. The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. William Moyer.

The Ad Libitum club was entertained last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dwight Mercer, who invited Mrs. C. E. Umphrey, Mrs. S. L. Mackin and Mrs. Everett Bradford as additional guests. A pleasant social afternoon was spent with needlework and dainty refreshments were served. Daffodils and potted plants were colorful decorations. The club will meet March 24 with Mrs. G. B. Arnest.

A congenial group gathered Tuesday at the H. A. Hagen home for a 6:30 covered dish dinner and an evening of bridge. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Grube of Pengra, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Lombard, Mr. and Mrs. William Moyer, Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Kime and Dr. and Mrs. Hagen. At cards Mrs. Hagen held high score. Violets were decorations.

The Cottage Grove Garden club will meet this afternoon (Friday) in the city hall. The hostess committee will be Mrs. W. M. MacGibbon and Mrs. Alfred Wulff. The program will include the following: "Perennials," Miss Belle Burkholder; "Annuals," Mrs. Mae Irwin; "How to Multiply Perennials," Mrs. C. R. Dear. A flower exchange will be held.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Saltsman were hosts Thursday night of last week for the Bona Tempo club. Bridge was the evening's diversion and Mrs. W. A. Garoutte held high score for women and Dr. C. H. Kime high score for men. Dainty refreshments were served. Sweetpeas were colorful decorations. The club will meet in three weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brace.

The Tuesday Evening club, at its regular meeting this week, studied Arnold Bennett. Mrs. B. R. Job reported on the biography and works of Bennett and Mrs. Elbert Smith gave a review of his novel, "Clayhanger." It was pointed out that Bennett portrayed his own life to a great extent in his novels and that this was especially true in "Clayhanger."

Mrs. Elmer Neet was hostess Thursday afternoon of last week for the Beau Monde club. The afternoon was spent playing bridge and Mrs. Earl Garoutte held high score. Dainty refreshments were served. Decorations were in keeping with the St. Patrick's day season. The club will meet Thursday with Mrs. G. A. Sanders.

A family dinner celebrating the birthday anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fullerton of Wendling and little Betty Leonard was held Sunday at the Roy Leonard home. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fullerton, H. Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leonard and family and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Fullerton.

Calvin Funk unit of the American Legion auxiliary will hold a covered dish supper at 6:30 Monday night in the armory for members of the auxiliary and the American Legion. Ex-service men and their wives from Drain also will be guests. A short entertainment has been planned.

Mrs. Elbert Bede entertained at dinner Sunday in honor of the birthday anniversaries of herself, her daughter Ruth, Alton Woodard and Regina Dusenberry. Others present were Miss Mickey Hurley of Eugene, Miss Genevieve Woodard and Miss Beth Bede.

The Royal Neighbors lodge of this city has been invited to meet at 8 o'clock Monday night with the Crow Royal Neighbors lodge. Those who plan to attend have been asked to take sandwiches.

A surprise party, honoring O. V. Breese on his birthday anniversary, was held Sunday night at the Breese home by a group of neighbors. The evening was spent playing five hundred.

Mrs. Fred Bennett was hostess Tuesday afternoon for the Needlecraft club. A pleasant afternoon was spent with needlework. At the tea hour dainty refreshments were served. Decorations were in keeping with the St. Patrick's day season.

Cottage Grove assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, will entertain a group of the young people tonight with a dance at Masonic hall.

Mrs. Edith Kelly of Roseburg, vice president of the national A. R. A., will be a guest tonight of the local Rebekah lodge.

The Presbyterian missionary society will meet at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bert Trask.

There are 214 American firms in Shanghai, China.
