A female frog spawns 12,000 to 15,000 eggs annually.

The Vatican city had a population of 1006 persons, 716 of whom were residents, in March, 1932.

In 1880 England's birth-rate was seven per 200 persons, annually.

Composer Tully used the tune of "America" in musical felicitation of Louis the Sixteenth.

The English national anthem was first written: "God Save Great George, Our King," 1740.

Vermont produces $2,000,000 worth of maple sugar annually.

In Argentina where 225,000,000 acres are adapted to wheat culture, 12 bushels to the acre is a good crop.

The melody of "America" was used in 1602 to celebrate the victory of Geneva over the Duke of Savoy. Cellophane is being used in hats.

Touch of Hardship May Aid One's Self-Respect

Every facility, invention and project seems to be bent on making people more "comfortable." Don't we know that we can be so "comfortable" that we will be good for nothing? Hadn't we better pursue hardship a little for its own sake, F. H. Collier asks, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

We say this, but we hate to begin. That in itself shows, no doubt, that our moral courage has declined. There is no better philosophy than that of "doing one good deed every day" for the welfare of our fellow man. May it not be equally uplifting of the soul to do one good deed that we are afraid or indisposed to do? Most "duties" are like that. But, resolutely performed, there is a sense of triumph that is a worthy reward. That much more iron has been put into one's character.

Here we are, talking like Samuel Smiles whom, as we remember in our boyhood reader, we detested. We fear there was always sybaritic rudiments in our makeup. While we might daily seek to perform deeds of the nature described in Longfellow's "Excelsior," we were fortunate if we could tot up one or two a month. Nevertheless, the principle is indestructible.

Few Recognized Beauty of Gettysburg Address
When the speakers were being chosen to make addresses at Gettysburg in 1863, President Lincoln was an afterthought—and then a dubious chairman begged him to make his speech as short as possible! It is generally believed that Lincoln wrote the Gettysburg address on a piece of brown paper, on the way to Gettysburg. But this is not true, according to the Golden Book Magazine. Two days before the dedication at Gettysburg, President Lincoln had the speech almost all written and in his hat (where he usually kept valuable papers).

"The silence during the delivery of the speech, and the lack of hearty demonstration at its close," said Ward Hill Lamon, describing the event, "were taken by Mr. Lincoln as certain proof that it had not been well received. In that opinion we all shared."

"Mr. Lincoln said to me: 'Lamon, that speech won't score! It's a flat failure and the people are disappointed.'" It occurred to only a few who heard it that it was an immortal address.

Discovery in Dispute
Conflicting stories are told about the introduction of the potato, a native of the western hemisphere, to European circles. Those adventurous Spaniards who roamed the seas in search of new lands and what ever else they could find are said to hold the introduction rights, although it is also contended that Sir John Hawkins, an English voyager, holds the honor, having introduced the potato to the court of European monarchs, in 1563. It is generally believed, however, that Sir John was responsible for the sweet potato's presentation.

When they were first transplanted to the Old world the potatoes were like stepchildren. This probably was because Europeans were deep set in their ideas of diet and prejudiced against new foods.

Wolves and Music
Science is continually destroying our fondest beliefs. For centuries we have believed that music has the power to move the very stones and soothe the most savage of beasts. But this is not so if we can believe the enterprising gentleman who had the violin played for the wolves in the London zoological gardens.

Wild wolves from Europe and Asia cringed and put their tails between their respective legs at the sound of a fiddle played behind their cages. When the violinist, still playing, stepped within their range of vision, terror turned to rage and the wolves lunged at their restraining bars. Incidentally, the experiment bore out another legend—that the music of a violin would drive wolves away.

Aluminum and Bauxite
The Department of Commerce says that six countries supply about 88 per cent of the total aluminum produced in the world; in order of output they are the United States, Canada, Germany, France, Switzerland and Norway. Three countries—France, Hungary and the United States—supply 66 per cent of the total bauxite produced; four other countries—Dutch Guiana, Italy, British Guiana and Yugoslavia—supply 22 per cent. Of the seven chief producers of bauxite and six chief producers of aluminum only two countries—the United States and France—appear in both groups.

Too Late to Prove
Evidence of a suspected prehistoric murder is being investigated by East African scientists instead of the police. The famous Oldoway man of Tanganyika who was discovered by a German professor before the war is now stated by a noted archeologist to be at least 25,000 years earlier than any known example of human kind. But this man was apparently bound tightly after death and then buried in shallow water. Foul play is suspected.
