yet have the temerity to go out in public and try to mix with respectable people. Would it not be a little risky to elect a man to the highest office of our land when he is attacking the constitution of our country? It should be elected, how could he take the oath of office? Doesn't the oath bind him to uphold and enforce the laws of the government? It seems to me that a man with any honor would be in a ticklish position. Men get by with most anything in the United States, but that would not be safe in some countries. Only a few years ago a man by the name of Farrer was coming to face a firing squad in Spain just because he opposed the school system of that country and wanted a change to something like our system here. In the clamor of the wet advocates there is far more heat than light. Some people accept at face value, rumors and lies having no foundation.

The facts are that the great clamor for repeal of the eighteenth amendment is fostered by the organized liquor trade. There is where comes all this derogatory noise, this propaganda over the country, which results in news items, in false statistics, in hanging scores of dry officers of the law for doing their duty, in publication when they fall, in madmen speeches in congress, in such idiotic bills as one to prevent officers from using arms against criminals in self defense. Just like the old copperheads during the civil war. They to face a war was a failure and did all in their power to make it fail. This organized liquor trade is not only fighting in the United States but throughout the world with enormous financial resources against the rising tide of temperance. Of course they have concentrated on the United States. They know that if the success of prohibition is acknowledged here their doom is sealed. We drys will fight to the last ditch anything that is going back to the saloon. While the situation is not as satisfactory as it might be, yet we know it is a hundred per cent better than what we got rid of.

Temple Built to Honor Great Egyptian Goddess

The temple at Denderah is one of the most famous temples in all Egypt. According to the historical facts which the scientists have been able to dig out of the hieroglyphic records, it was restored by Pharaoh Peps I, who lived four thousand years ago in the Sixth dynasty.

There is a high wall round the temple, with a majestic gateway, and to walk through this gateway is to be awed by the majesty of the columns of the entrance hall. The capitals of these columns are graven in the image of Hathor, the goddess to whom the temple is dedicated. She is represented as a woman with the ears of a heifer and with hair flowing down both sides of her head.

A center aisle leads through the Hall of Columns to the shrine proper. On each side of this aisle are chambers which are identified by hieroglyphic inscriptions denoting their particular uses. Also there is a gallery encircling the shrine and from this still other chambers open. On the roof of the temple is a shrine to Osiris and here there are hieroglyphics describing the ritual of the Osiris cult.

Even Primitive Peoples Had Reckoning Systems

There have been systems of reckoning time found among the peoples left by the most primitive people. Well regulated systems existed in the Egyptian, Babylonian, Syrian and many other early nations. The Roman and Greek calendars were taken from the Egyptian, Babylonian, Phoenician. The Julian calendar was derived from these and from the ancient Roman calendar and was proclaimed about B. C. 46. Pope Gregory in 1582 A. D. authorized the revision of the Julian calendar, which was adopted by the Roman Catholic countries, but not by Great Britain or America until 1752. By this time there was a variance between the calendars of those nations and those adopting the Gregorian calendar at the earlier date, necessitating an adjustment of 11 days. The Gregorian calendar has now been adopted by practically all the Christian nations and for business purposes by such nations as Japan and China.

Molasses Windows

An English scientist has developed a method which may prove one of the most important inventions for many years. At the present time the world produces more sugar than it can use for food. One of the great problems is to know what to do with the surplus. The invention concerns a process by means of which crude sugar in the form of molasses can be converted into a substance as hard and as transparent as glass. It has, moreover, the valuable property of passing the health-giving ultra-violet rays which are stopped by ordinary window glass. The material can be blown, molded, or rolled, just like glass.

Sundial for Nightwork

A sort of sundial which works without the sun is being erected on the top of a Moorish tower in the gardens of the port of Guayaquil, in Ecuador. A powerful beacon light is being revolved from the top of the tower, operated electrically from a synchronized clock. The beams of light, which makes a complete revolution every 12 hours, will tell the time at night by shining on a number of well-known landmarks as it revolves. The same spots will be lighted up at the same time every night.

Odd Australian Animal

The jerboa, or jerboa rat, which inhabits the southern portion of Australia is an interesting little animal. Its body is three inches, its tail four inches long, the last inch of the tail being black and tufted like a lion's. The body color is gray, white underneath. The hind legs resemble those of a kangaroo, the white feet having four claws. The short front legs have five fingers. Its head is pointed, its ears particularly large, eyes small and bright.

Boost for Bostonese

"American Well Wisher" writes in the London Daily Telegraph, "Londoners" pays the Americans a compliment (quite unwittingly) when he credits them with giving the first letter in the alphabet its right pronunciation. A cultured and much-traveled friend, an Englishman, told me that the best English he ever heard spoken was in Boston (Mass., U. S. A.). Having lived there many years I believe this to be true."

Flower Growing a Gamble

Southern France and Italy and Spala to a lesser extent, having succeeded certain oriental and Balkan regions as the center of production of flowers and their essences, enjoy a quite lucrative trade from them. It is an important business. Since growing regions for choice products are small, crop failures, not unusual with so delicate a product, cause abrupt and violent fluctuations. For the same reason, speculation in these commodities is gambling of a most precarious sort.

Interior Decoration

The Centennial in Philadelphia in 1876 brought an awakening to the possibilities of beauty in the home through harmonious combination of artistic draperies and furniture. Homes of the Colonial period and early American houses were artistically furnished because the furniture in those days was well designed and well made.

Banyan's Peculiarity

The branches of the banyan tree send roots downward, which, when they have become rooted, become props, and in this manner the tree spreads over a great surface and endures for many ages.

New York pays 30% of the taxes which maintain the U. S. government. Two successive jury disagreements in a Hawaiian criminal case operate as acquittal.

The new 10,000-ton U. S. cruisers roll so sharply as to interfere with gun fire. The Chinese government will build a hydroelectric plant near Nanchang.

Steam heat is now pumped all over certain U. S. cities from single boiler plants. In 14 years (1866-1880) Texas supplied 4,223,497 head of cattle for northern markets.
