OUR RELIEF TROUBLES.
 Anyone who doesn't believe that administering relief properly these days is a man's sized job should spend an hour listening to the tales poured into the ears of those who handle relief.

Let it be said that a majority of the cases where aid is given are of those in real need. Some of the cases are pitiful, some are tragic. Sometimes one can see the agony it has caused the needy one to have to ask charity, but by far too many the attitude is that it is up to them to get all they can before someone else grabs it. Too many would rather be provided for in this manner than make any effort to help themselves.

The Sentinel would not say anything to injure any of those who accept relief only because that is the only way to prevent suffering on the part of themselves and loved ones. It feels that those in actual need are entitled to have food provided for them, but there are far too many who are prone to find fault because the food furnished is not the best that the shelves of grocery stores provide, who are prone to find fault because those dispensing relief are inclined to provide relief only for actual needs and to insist that food provided shall be such as will provide the greatest amount of relief for the least amount of money, that delicacies can not be furnished by the tax money of those who are themselves struggling to make ends meet.

Times like these, when relief must be furnished many, develop too many who are happy to be helpless, develop too many who search for excuses to explain why they can not help themselves.

Then there are outstanding cases of those who rack their brains for ways to make their demands upon charity as small as possible. One such was talking to one of the other end recently. She was telling the other one how she was helping herself by picking wild berries and by doing some other things that provided food. The other one quickly explained that she could not do these things because she had two children to care for. Nothing would be better for growing children than a few days in the open. The children might easily help.

There are cases of those receiving relief who have more property than many of those paying the taxes with which relief is provided. When relief is provided to property owners there should be some way of making it a charge against property owned by those receiving the relief. It might even be possible to charge relief against all those receiving it. Some day they might be able to pay all or part. That would serve a double purpose. It would be an incentive to those accepting relief to make their demands as reasonable as possible and it would raise their morale by making them feel that relief for which they promise to pay is not charity. The tragedy of relief work is the manner in which it breaks down the morale of the people.

There is hope that relief work may be better in the coming winter, but it is to continue much longer it should be put on a business basis. Under present methods those who abuse relief make it more difficult to properly serve the worthy.

Ralph Hamilton of Portland, former speaker of the house, has been suggested for chairman of the state republican committee. Without casting any reflection upon any others who have been, or may be, suggested for the position, Mr. Hamilton would be a splendid choice and would put life into a campaign. The republican party of Oregon needs just such a man to head its activities this year.

TULE LAKES AND LEGS.
 This business of our peripatetic schools of higher education is getting serious and it seems likely that there may be sanguinary battle between communities that are not the homes of any of the institutions under which it is proposed to put skirts.

In an effort to throw oil upon the troubled waters The Sentinel recently suggested that the two larger institutions be located in Cottage Grove. This proposal was taken kindly and somewhat enthusiastically by Eugene and Corvallis and the whole thing might easily have been settled had the Klamath Falls papers kept out of the scrap.

The Sentinel held forth as sufficient inducement for locating the schools here the fact that it has a first class football field and one of the sportiest golf courses in the state. Now come the Klamath Falls papers and put in a bid for the institutions which The Sentinel had safely and satisfactorily located in its own town, and the Klamath Falls papers make a bid by offering the further inducements of one of the liveliest graveyards in the country and a tulle lake that may be used for boating and bathing. Boating may be desirable, but we are not so certain about the bathing.

The Sentinel did not attempt to state all its attractions in its first offer. It merely mentioned those that seem to be essential to the proper and complete education of those who soon will be conducting the affairs of a great commonwealth. We haven't any graveyards and we haven't any stagnant waters that might be transformed into tulle lakes, but we do have something that no other city can have, and that is the most beautiful set of male limbs this side of Grand Rapids, Mich., made famous by the late Hugh Hume. Claudius will aver that there is nothing like them anywhere else in the world and they should be valuable in the conduct of a coeducational institution, although Claudius has been lying down on the job of publicity agent during recent months. This should forever put a quietus on any claim Klamath Falls has put forth in her efforts to become a seat of learning. The Klamath Falls papers showed gross ignorance in their effort to have colleges moved to their city and displayed unbelievable lack of knowledge of the geography of their own state. They spoke of Eugene as a suburb of Cottage Grove. Eugene is a suburb of Springfield, not Cottage Grove.

An ex-styler expert says he can see nothing attractive in the backless bathing suits. Maybe he's been going to the wrong beaches.—Eugene Register-Guard.

The Eugene paper misses the point. It's not what's IN the bathing suits that attracts.

In a recent test it was estimated that the clubhead of a driver traveled at the rate of 125 miles an hour at moment of impact. No wonder the dub golfer can't think of half a dozen things he ought to do fast enough to keep up with the club.

A paragrapher wants to know who says the 1932 girl is more attractive than her 1900 sisters were. This is a point that may never be settled. We probably think she is more attractive because we have a better chance to judge.
