SETTLING BOOZE QUESTION.

The Sentinel's attention has been called to the following paragraph in a table from Finland:

"Despite the legalized sale of liquor, rum-runners' ships have appeared off the Finnish coast carrying huge stores, and it remains to be seen whether the new system is strong enough to keep illicit liquor away, even though the smugglers can underbid the monopoly."

The Advent Review and Sabbath Herald, commenting upon the paragraph quoted, makes the following comment:

"It has been the contention of prohibitionists all the way along that the lawless activities of smugglers and rum-runners and bootleggers are not the result of prohibition, nor would they end if prohibition ended, but that instead there always will be such criminals as long as there is any chance of making money by that form of crime . . . . We have reason to believe that if prohibition were repealed in the United States, we would have an even worse situation than before the days of the eighteenth amendment."

The Sentinel, which finds itself unable to agree with either the radical prohibitionists or the radical wets, finds the editorial in the Advent Review and Sabbath Herald the saanest exposition of the liquor question from a prohibitionist's standpoint that it ever has read. That publication agrees with the opponents of prohibition that "you can't reform men by law."

* * *

The Sentinel believes that rumrunners, moonshiners and bootleggers have been greatly increased by prohibition, but it doesn't believe these have done as great harm as did the old-time saloon of the "good old days," neither does it believe that repeal of prohibition would immediately do away with them.

There are several reasons why the moonshiner and the bootlegger would remain. The paramount reason probably is for the gain that there is generally believed to be in the illicit liquor business. Another is that distribution probably would be somewhat curtailed under any substitute for the eighteenth amendment. A third and very important reason is that thousands, probably hundreds of thousands, have learned in recent years how to make and distribute illicit liquor, and it is not reasonable to believe that they would immediately lie down and quit just because some other method of getting booze had been provided. A fourth reason that The Sentinel considers important is that present plans of the wets are for enforcement of liquor laws by the federal government. The Sentinel doesn't believe federal enforcement has been very effective under prohibition and there is no reason to believe regulation of sales of liquor would be any more effective.

The Sentinel is one of those papers which believes prohibition has been far from the success its proponents thought it would be, and it is also one of those papers that believes repeal of prohibition wouldn't come anywhere near solving the booze question. As long as men and women are foolish enough to want to drink the stuff there always will be a booze question. In the opinion of The Sentinel it never will be settled until people cease wanting the stuff. If some one can tell us how to get the people not to want the stuff, wets and drys can soon get together on a program.

PAYMENT OF THE BONUS.

Inasmuch as several members of the American Legion, after reading a recent editorial on payment of the bonus, wondered whether The Sentinel had changed its position on payment of the bonus, wishes to say that it has not changed that opinion in any respect.

The Sentinel has several times said that money has been wasted by the federal government in sufficient quantity to have paid the bonus. It still believes that such is the case. The Sentinel has several times said that nothing would please it better than to see some reasonable way by which the bonus could be paid without injury to the nation or the credit of the government. It has not changed that opinion, even though the bonus money is not yet due.

The Sentinel would regret to see anything done that would in any way endanger the relief the government is giving soldier boys who are in actual need or are suffering physically because of war service, or that would would endanger those getting aid for non-service-connected disability.

The point The Sentinel intended to make was that President Hoover has the right to his opinion on the bonus, that he is as sympathetic with what the soldier boys desire as anyone who would displace him, that in taking his stand on the bonus when he knew he would lose thousands of votes by doing so he showed the spirit that the soldier boys displayed when they won the war and that he should not be penalized for having the stamina to express his honest opinion.

The Sentinel is supporting a candidate for congress who has expressed himself in favor of immediate payment of the bonus without reservations, but in giving that support The Sentinel believes that this candidate if elected will safeguard the interests of the country if he finds there is no way the bonus can be paid without serious injury to the nation. The Sentinel believes that President Hoover would welcome and approve any reasonable plan whereby the bonus could be paid without endangering the financial credit of the nation or injuring the millions of taxpayers and homeowners who are not service men.

In other words President Hoover is just as likely to aid in payment of the bonus as any congressman who takes his job seriously, is just as much in favor of the bonus as the one who would displace him, has the stamina to say what he thinks and is entitled to the vote of any Legion man who would vote for him if the bonus issue were eliminated.

The city election has got to such a point that defamation of character has been resorted to to defeat one candidate for office. That is one reason why so few seek public office, every slip a candidate has made in his life is dug up and bared to the world by those who probably have made worse mistakes. Every word spoken against a candidate is taken by the scandalmongers and passed along as gospel truth when it may have been made out of whole cloth. There is a general opinion that a candidate for public office has to take such abuse and that he has no recourse. Such is not the case. The courts are liberal in their interpretation of the law, but actual defamation of character is as much a crime when a candidate for office is attacked as it is when a private citizen is attacked. Those who defame character are inviting court proceedings and are inviting the opportunity to pay well for their indiscretion.

The Eugene Register-Guard, declaring itself a wet paper, takes a position opposing repeal of the state home dry law on the grounds that such repeal would leave liquor control to the federal government, and that such control would not be satisfactory. Yet, we understand the Register-Guard wishes to turn the entire liquor business over to the federal government. If the national government is not to be trusted to enforce liquor laws under prohibition, how can it be trusted to enforce liquor laws without prohibition? The prohibitionists are asleep if they don't ask the Eugene paper to explain that away.

Although The Sentinel finds difficulty in warming up to an independent in any office, or the appointees of such independent, it can not help but speak kindly of the work being done by Rufus Holman as state treasurer in putting the state's business on a business basis. In this he has the cordial support of Secretary of State Hoss, original economizer, and is actually outshining his superior, Governor Meier, to whom he owes his job.

More and more the feeling grows that a change in national administration would delay until late in next year any great revival in business, while retaining the present administration would mean a decided upswing at once.

The humane authorities stepped in to stop the bull fight advertised for the state fair. For the kind of bull fighting they have at Salem that was the wrong department to step in.

High School Notes

"Let black folks and white folks cooperate to make human life more beautiful," said Rev. Ira E. Gillet in his talk before the student body in assembly last Wednesday afternoon. This message, together with a black and white leopard skin, was given to him by a native woman of Africa.

Mr. Gillet stated that civilization had never banished war, but that since the black people have had the Bible they have learned to lay aside the war club, one of which is displayed. Other articles he exhibited were enormous string beans, animal skins, baskets, spoons, a doll, blankets, a bed, dishes and books. There are three dozen different kinds of books printed in Portuguese East Africa. Mr. Gillet brought with him a jar of beans called "black-eyed susans." "These beans," exclaimed the speaker, "will bring you good luck in marriage if they are carried around on your person." Much amusement was created when Mr. Gillet allowed only the seniors and unmarried members of the faculty to have the beans.

Mr. Gillet, who had been in Portuguese East Africa for the past 13 years, formerly lived in Oregon and graduated from Oregon State college in 1913.

PIEPER DESCRIBES WORK IN NATIONAL FORESTS

That the work done by the forestry department in constructing a road from Champion boarding house in the Bohemia district up the mountain has been done at a far lower cost than expected, in fact at probably the lowest cost the forestry department as ever had for similar work under similar conditions, was the statement made by Paul Pieper, district ranger, at the regular meeting of the Lane County Taxpayers' league Tuesday night. Mr. Pieper gave the larger part of credit for this economical construction to LaBelle Stewart of this city, who is in charge of the relief crews sent from here to do the work. Mr. Stewart, it seems, has the peculiar idea that even in the expenditure of relief funds the government must get its money's worth, and the men sent to the job have fallen in with the idea.

Mr. Pieper explained in detail the activities of the forestry service in guarding the forests, building roads and trails, etc., told where funds come from and how they have been expended this year in cooperation with the local relief council.

PROHIBITIONISTS GIVE THREE POINT PROGRAM

A rousing prohibition rally was held in the Methodist church Wednesday night to stir sentiment against repeal of the state's home dry law and to promote the election of congressmen and other officials opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Boyd P. Doty, northwest representative of the Anti-Saloon League of America, said that Oregon voters have a triple duty: to elect dry congressmen who will oppose any movement to repeal the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act; to elect a dry state legislature that will support the state dry laws and refuse to ratify any change in the federal laws, and to defeat the proposed amendment that would wipe the state dry amendment off the statute books.

Mr. Doty scoffed at the idea that repeal of prohibition would materially aid industry and farmers of grain growing states. He said that consumption of liquor has decreased and enumerated the belief that prohibition, even if not completely enforced, is better than anything offered in its place.

R. E. Close, superintendent of the would make the state a bootleggers' paradise. He described conditions in New York where, he said, racketeers have entered every phase of life since the repeal of that state's dry laws. He said this repeal was brought about by shameless politicians dominated by Tammany. Mr. Close also pointed out the three-point program for Oregon prohibitionists.

E. E. McLendon presided at the meeting.

The ZORN-MACPHERSON SCHOOL "JUGGLING" BILL AT TAXPAYERS' EXPENSE — ESTABLISHES 4 NEW SCHOOLS, CREATES 2 NEW TYPES OF SCHOOLS — BOTH UNTRIED and UNNEEDED.

Under the guise of economy, unknown interests propose this extravagant building and wrecking program, which claims to be a consolidation of Oregon's higher educational system. There are five campuses now, and if this bill is approved, there will still be five campuses—after a raid has been made on the taxpayers' money! The following facts will enable every taxpayer to prevent this experiment which endangers our higher educational system, and results in a tremendous financial outlay by taxpayers.

4 New Schools Established

This bill actually creates 4 NEW schools—a junior college at La Grande and Ashland; a law school at Salem; and a teachers' college at Eugene. In addition, it "junks" the Monmouth Normal School, valued at $700,000, and uses but one-third of the facilities of the University at Eugene. This disarrangement will result in a tremendous financial outlay by taxpayers for additional NEW schools, NEW departments, NEW courses and NEW equipment. There are five campuses now. If this bill is approved there will still be five campuses; but, in addition, the taxpayers will be forced to erect new housing facilities for the University law school and library at Salem; provide NEW buildings and dormitories to accommodate the greatly increased student body poured onto the Corvallis campus; and equip two NEW junior colleges and a teachers' college with new and costly facilities for conducting a NEW and untried system.

2 New Types of Schools Proposed

Two NEW TYPES of schools are created by this bill—two junior colleges and a teachers' college—both untried and unneeded in Oregon. To educate students for junior standing in technical and scientific college courses, requires expensive laboratories and equipment, thus tripleating the same facilities now maintained at the University and State College. The passing of this bill establishes the principle of STATE SUPPORT TAX for all or any junior colleges. Every town in the State of Oregon will then have the right to demand a junior college! Every legislature session will invite log-rolling bills for appropriations for new junior colleges in ambitious localities. Taxpayers of this state are asked to vote on this costly junior and teachers' college experiment, with every expenditure made at their expense.

In addition, this bill claims a saving of $1,000,000 per year in taxes, BUT DOES NOT ACTUALLY REDUCE OREGON'S BASIC STATE TAX for higher education by a SINGLE PENNY. You will pay the same tax for state schools as you do now if this bill is approved.

VOTE 317 x NO!
