Under the Big Dome
By ELBERT BEDE.

State Capitol, Salem, Ore., Feb. 27.—"Who'll we spring an April fool joke on?" was the question asked by the speaker today while members were waiting time fighting over committee reference. What he meant was that we shall be here until April 1 unless those who use time on the floor are willing to become heroes and shut off the rat-a-tat-tat.

This writer addressed the Salem chamber of commerce today on "What I Know About the 1935 Legislature," but he didn't tell 'em.

One of the biggest pieces of legislation of the session is one regulating whales.

The orderly progress of legislation came near being interfered with today. While this writer was returning to the session from Cottage Grove, he found a heavy truck mired in a one-way road just north of Cottage Grove. He had to use his car to push the truck out of the road, the truck having lost its motive power. It was the same kind of job we are having here getting motor vehicle legislation over.

Industrial commission legislation is meeting with a lot of accidents.

Everywhere one goes in Salem he hears high compliments for the performance of the Eugene Gleeman here Friday. The singing boys certainly are advertising their home city.

Cosmetic therapy is always an important subject of legislation, probably largely to get the good looking girls down from Portland, but they haven't anything on the girls that are on the payroll here, and the girls here know all about cosmetic therapy.

State Capitol, Salem, Ore., Feb. 28.—Al Price, who takes pride in being a descendant of one of the lost tribes of Israel, has been ill for several days. Probably from having too much to do with pork barrel legislation.

The care and pains members are taking to have legislation in proper shape when it is enacted is illustrated by the numbers of amendments to bills. Hardly any get by without amendment in committee, and those that do are likely to be amended from the floor. It is getting to be almost a regular thing, when a bill reaches third reading to send it back to committee for further amendment. Some days practically every bill, after having been amended and reamended in committee, is amended by unanimous consent on final passage. Desk clerks don't relish having that done, for there is danger of error, and it interferes with orderly conduct of the desk work, but it is all a part of the chief clerk's job. Amendments have been so numerous that the engrossed bills committee has had to work nights, and even then has been unable to keep up with its work.

J. E. Turnbull and William Tugman were here last night, probably having been attracted by the third house. Judging by what has been said in the newspapers about the regular sessions, they may have been led to believe this was one of them.

The fight on the part of the medics to do away with contracting of the industrial accident commission business has brought enough doctors to Salem to cure all the ills of the state for many years to come.

We have a well developed farm bloc, but its members are far from wooden heads.

Hal Hoas does everything for the accommodation of those who use the capitol buildings. There is a looking glass at the elevator landing on each floor and they are freely used these cosmetic days by the fair feminine things that wait for a lift.

J. A. McLean, than whom there is no more democratic democrat; M. H. Anderson and Dave Graham were here today. Eugene today, Graham is a former member of the house, and opined that this session has bigger problems than when he was a member.

State Capitol, Salem, Ore.—There have been few sessions during the past quarter of a century that have been completed with a full membership or without some member or important employe becoming dangerously or fatally ill. So far this session the membership remains complete, but Tom Rafferty, former state traffic chief, who had charge of the house chamber, has been absent three weeks and is now reported dangerously ill with pneumonia.

Two residents of Eugene who attracted attention here recently were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bailey, Ed being a former senator. He still carries considerable weight, physically and otherwise. Mrs. Bailey was cordially greeted by those who became acquainted with her when she was here with Hubby Ed.

The complexion of legislation is likely to be changed, for two dozen or more cosmeticicians were here from Portland in the interest of cosmetic-therapy legislation. They always get an attentive hearing, but it was odd, the other night, that despite all we hear about legislators being attracted by the fair feminine majority of members of the committee that was to hold a hearing on the cosmetic-therapy bill forgot about the meeting.

Representative Wells of Multnomah has become a grandfather during the session, but Representative Hill of Lane is not to be outdone. Callers at the Lane representative's room the other morning found Ed still in bed and a baby crib parked in front of his door. The representative failed to make any satisfactory explanation.

By the time old age pensions become law those who are boosting for that legislation will have passed on and youths of today will be old enough to claim the pensions.

Prink Callison, U. of O. football mentor, had heard so much about the brand of football being played here that he spent a day here recently learning some new plays and was particularly interested in the one in which the ball entirely disappears and shows up inside the enemy's goal line.

A number of bills have comfortable and cozy nests in the clerk's desks, but no bill is secure in a position of that kind, for it can be jerked out onto the floor without a moment's notice and may be surprised in a condition of dishabille.

W. Glenn Cox, former resident of Cottage Grove, has been here from Primeville visiting Representative Coater of Lincoln, also a former resident of Cottage Grove.

Anti-machine gun legislation is being enacted, but it is feared such legislation will not be applicable to the machine gun orators who rat-a-tat-tat too frequently.

This session fears nothing. It purposes among other things to regulate whales, bees, dentists, chiropractors, dogs, muskrats and machine guns.

It is agreed that public hearings have little effect upon ultimate action upon proposed legislation. Usually the talking is for the consumption of the large number of spectators who are for or against the legislation, but these formal marathons give persons over the state a chance to get things off their chests, and the exercise seems to do them good, even if the expense to the state is high.

Representative Price, popular Hebrew member from Clackamas, says he belongs to one of the lost tribes. His experience here has made him certain of that.

Visitors here are learning that the session is really serious about economy. "I'd like a calendar, please," was the request made at the bill room by one who has been a visitor at many sessions and knew that the former procedure was to pass out calendars and bills to whomsoever requested, and in whatever quantities desired. Often there were reprints to meet the demand, "Yes, sir, was the answer, "five cents, please." The visitor was almost taken off his feet, but he produced the nickel. This rule is being rigidly adhered to, and there has been a tremendous saving in the printing bill. There is one way to beat the pay-as-you-receive rule, that is to get a member to send a request for the calendar or bill desired, but that usually is too slow and too troublesome a method, and many nickels drop into the till of the bill room.

Many of those who complain about the expense of a session are often among those who add to the expense of a session. That is shown from letters received by every member. In one mail one member received 25 letters asking opposition to a bill that had been killed four days before. Each of the letters required an answer if a friendship of the constituent were to be retained. That was an expense of at least $1.25 for that one mail alone. The cost of needless correspondence of this kind probably costs a session a thousand dollars or two.

It begins to appear that we are going to reach port about next Friday or Saturday without having taken over either a bar pilot, river pilot or harbor pilots. And will the boys be glad to see us away home! And so will some others.

Garden Club

If You Want the Joy
By Chesla C. Sherlock.
The poorest gardener in the world is the one who merely walks around a garden and looks at it. Instead, such a person is no true lover of flowers, it matters not how contrary his protestations are. There is a divine urge within us all, the urge to want to create something ourselves, and poor indeed is the person who has lost it, who takes no heed of it. The old fable put it correctly: If you want the power (the joy) do the thing yourself! You must get in your garden a bit to get the most out of it. You must put something of yourself into it. It will never truly be yours! That law is absolute. And the joy you take in a garden is usually in proportion to the amount of yourself you have invested in it.

Daffodils.
In the spring the sun can't hold any more of yellow gold. So some of it runs out and falls in drops along our garden walls. But we don't call them drops, we say "The daffodils are out today!"

Carter Glass, author of the bank bill, would abolish the alarm because the planes disturb the hybridized cattle on his farm. Operation of Muscle Shoals would be a divine job for 200,000 workers, believed by some economists the only sure remedy for times like these. Oregon paid nine cents for its insurance plates last year. The state cents to mail them, a total of $10-144.9 to Uncle Sam. October 31, 1932, totaled 180,791 compared to 215,965 a year before. A decline in demand of insurance

LEGISLATURE TO SET LONGEVITY RECORD

Lane County Man Submits New Plan to Make Sales Tax Optional.

By ELBERT BEDE.
State Capitol, Salem, Ore., Feb. 28.—(Special)—There is now no longer any doubt that this session is going to make one record, that for the longest session in the history of the assembly. Senate and house leaders are now plotting ways and means to make the day for adjournment sine die. Some of these leaders once believed, or claimed to believe, that it would be possible to clean up business within the 40 days, which ended ten days ago, so they probably are not underestimating now.
If something new in sales tax was proposed here today by a resident of Lane county, A. H. Horn, living near Junction City. His proposal is that it shall be optional with counties to adopt a sales tax with which to cover the entire tax bill, and he brought a petition signed by a large number of prominent residents of Eugene and Lane county to support the proposal.
There might be some doubt about the constitutionality of such a law enacted by the legislature. Mr. Horn was seeking competent advice upon that point. Representative McCornack, chairman of taxation and revenue, while expressing his doubts as to the constitutionality, expressed the belief that it would take a 10 or 15 per cent sales tax to put over Mr. Horn's idea.
Senator Wheeler's bill to eliminate the state sales tax and provide for payment of the original tax in ten semi-annual payments, which easily passed the senate and has since been taking a siesta in the house to adopt a revenue seal, is likely to be given a waking potion. Demands for enactment of the bill are coming from nearly every county of the state and those interested have been arriving in several portions of the state during the past few days. It is believed that taxation and revenue is ready to report the bill out favorably.

High School Notes

An assembly was held Wednesday, February 22, honoring George Washington in the city library. After a short miscellaneous program Rev. L. G. Shaw gave an address on the merits of these two men.
George Washington was the only man born and naturalized in the United States who is recognized as "The American," stated Mr. Shaw. "He was a man of unusual ability, but he was not a superman, Mr. Shaw went on to say. He was dependable and honest.
Lincoln was not a member of any church. He was a man of unusual ability, but he was not a superman, Mr. Shaw went on to say. He was dependable and honest.
The remainder of the program follows: Clarinet solo, Audrey Hunt; reading, "The Perfect Trio," Mrs. D. A. Emerson; solo, Tom Howard; Washington, Rules of Conduct," Mr. Emerson; song, "The Soldiers' Chorus," boys' chorus.
