IMPORTING OURSELVES INTO PROSPERITY.

We hear a great deal these days about the necessity of trade between nations to make this country prosperous.

The nation that will be the most prosperous is the one that is able to sell the most in foreign markets and needs to buy the least.

To bring this economic problem in world trade close to home, it would be just as reasonable to say that we could make Cottage Grove prosperous by buying everything we can in Eugene.

Everyone wants Uncle Sam to make himself prosperous by buying from them, but they are sharp enough to hang onto Uncle Sam's dollars when they get them.

is that we probably are spending with European nations now in tourist traffic alone enough to enable them to pay a large part of what they owe us.

Well, our export trade never has been a great part of our production, less than 10 per cent, so we could manage to get along pretty well if we sold nothing to anyone except ourselves.

Following the passage of beer legislation by congress, the department announces to farmers the fact that it has available on the growing of malted barley.

Most parts of the United States have small opportunity to grow malted barley profitably though certain favored localities may do so.

The department has no facts on which to base an opinion as to the probable demand for malted barley from the 1933 crop.

In 1917 the barley crop was 211,000,000 bushels, about 72,000,000 bushels of which went into the production of malt.

Barley is now grown in the areas best adapted to the crop. Other areas have to contend with exceptional disease hazards, difficulties in producing high quality grain, and other handicaps.

Barley Demand Is Matter of Doubt

Department of Agriculture Has No Facts on Which to Base Opinion.

By Dr. H. V. Harlan, Barley Specialist, United States Department of Agriculture—WNU Service.

Following the passage of beer legislation by congress, the department announces to farmers the fact that it has available on the growing of malted barley.

Most parts of the United States have small opportunity to grow malted barley profitably though certain favored localities may do so.

The department has no facts on which to base an opinion as to the probable demand for malted barley from the 1933 crop.

In 1917 the barley crop was 211,000,000 bushels, about 72,000,000 bushels of which went into the production of malt.

Barley is now grown in the areas best adapted to the crop. Other areas have to contend with exceptional disease hazards, difficulties in producing high quality grain, and other handicaps.

Brewers require barley that has plump kernels and good hulls. It should be well grown and well ripened with mellow kernels.

Barley should not be grown following corn in areas where scab is common.

Cabbage, Cauliflower Growers Waste Lime

The cabbage and cauliflower grower's mind turns to lime in the spring almost as easily as the young man's fancy turns to love.

Furthermore, he says, excessive applications of the hydrated form are so expensive that each cabbage grower should estimate in dollars his probable losses from club root to determine whether it might not be cheaper to stand the loss from the disease; especially if the disease has occurred only slightly in any given field and with a crop as cheap as cabbage has been.

Sanitation Pays

A survey of hog production methods on 80 farms in Sedgwick, Washington and Yuma counties, Colorado, shows the benefits of the clean ground method of raising hogs.

Lice on Beef Cattle

To get rid of lice on beef cattle, dip or spray them with any coal tar dip or nicotine sulphate solution. Dipping gives the best results.
