Blighted Barley Under New Rules

Official Grain Standards Revised by Secretary of Agriculture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture—WHL Service.)
The secretary of agriculture has revised the official grain standards for barley as to define and provide grades for "Blighted" barley and the grade requirements for "Sample Grade" are also amended.

The Grain Standards act requires, in effect, that not less than 90 days, public notice must be given before any new standards, promulgated under the provisions of the act, may become effective. The amended standards will become effective on July 21, 1933.

The order of the secretary, amending the standards, provides in part, as follows:

Grades for blighted barley—"Blighted barley shall be all barley which contains more than 2 per cent but not more than 5 per cent of barley damaged or materially discolored by blight or mold."

"Blighted barley shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such barley if it were not blighted, and there shall be added to, and made a part of, the grade designation, the word 'Blighted'."

The grade requirements for sample grade for all classes of barley are amended so as to include the specification "Or which contains more than 5 per cent of barley damaged or materially discolored by blight or mold."

The practical effect of the revision is that, beginning July 21, in the inspection and grading of barley, kernels of barley that are damaged or materially discolored by blight or mold are not to be regarded as sound kernels; that the straight, unqualified grades, 1, 2, 3, etc., may contain as much as 2 per cent by weight of such blighted kernels; that when the barley contains from 2.1 per cent to 5 per cent, inclusive, of such blighted kernels, the word "Blighted" will be added to the grade designation, 1, 2, 3, etc., "No. 1 Barley, Blighted," "No. 2 Barley, Blighted," etc., and that when more than 5 per cent of such blighted barley kernels are present the grade, "Sample Grade" will be assigned to the grain.

It is believed by the department that this amendment of the barley grades will cause these grades to conform with users' requirements, and facilitate equitable grading of country-run barley.

Farm Woodlots Return Millions to the Owners

New York state farm woodlots are second only to Wisconsin and lead North Carolina and Tennessee, according to a recent summary of the 1930 census.

The 1930 census shows that New York returned $16,925,000 and Wisconsin's 5,705,000 acres returned $16,925,000. Wisconsin has nearly 4,000,000 more acres of farm land than New York.

The principal product from the New York farm woodlands, according to J. A. Cope of the state college of agriculture, is fuelwood, followed in order by: sawlogs, fence posts, poles and piling, railroad ties, and pulpwood. Most of the state's pulpwood is cut from commercial forest areas, he says.

The typical New York state woodlot contains 23 acres and is one-fifth of the total acreage of the farm. The state has nearly 18,000,000 acres in its 100,000 farms. The value of woodlot products was included for the first time in the 1930 census, and for the whole United States totaled $242,000,000.

Tree Bands Kill Worms

Chemically treated bands may kill as many as a thousand codling moth worms to the tree each season. When they leave the fruit until the end of the season, codling moths seek the nearest dark, protected place for spinning their cocoons. Loose bark on the trunk and branches, or debris on the ground, normally provide suitable quarters. If the trees have been scraped and the orchard thoroughly cleaned up, however, bands around the trunk of the tree will attract 50 per cent or more of the worms. A chemically treated band automatically kills practically all the worms that spin their cocoons in contact with it.

Look Over Herd Now

There is no use in evading the fact that there are thousands of poor producers in the dairy herds of the country. If all such cows were removed in one great campaign, the markets would feel the effects and prices would advance. But first there is needed a campaign of cow testing to discover just which are profitable and which are not. It is poor business to have cows in a herd that are not capable of meeting all cash costs, paying the farm for farm grown feed and something over for labor and other charges. Get rid of these just as a matter of common sense.

Dive for Coins

About fifty native divers are in the water most of the time in the harbor of Honolulu, and dive for coins tossed from the decks of arriving ships. It is estimated that coins of small denominations to the aggregate value of $10,000 are thrown to these divers annually.
