Horse Latitudes
The name horse latitudes is given to the belt of calms in the North Atlantic ocean between the region of westerly winds of the higher latitudes and the region of trade winds of the torrid zone. Authorities differ in regard to the origin of the name, some claiming that it was derived from the fact that vessels with a cargo of horses were often so delayed on account of the calms that the animals perished from lack of water.

Size of Rainbow
The rainbow may appear to be of varying size. It is always seen along the circumference of a circle whose center is on a straight line with the eye of the observer, hence no two persons see strictly the same bow. The width of the colored bands increases as the size of the rain drop decreases.

Aid to Purity of Milk
Tests at Columbia university have disclosed that one of the most valuable contributions toward the purity of milk, since Louis Pasteur's discovery that heat destroys germs, was the invention of the device that protects the pouring lip of the bottle from germ accumulation during delivery.

Cowbird Destroys Eggs
Though the cowbird has an unsavory reputation for the way in which it imposes upon other birds it is regarded as of considerable economic importance on account of its food habits. Ants, wasps, leafhoppers, beetles, caterpillars and spiders are included in the diet of this bird.

Chickens and Airships
An aviator says that the action of the chickens in a district over which an airship is passing tells at once when a ship is off a regular course. Those to which airships are familiar pay no attention to them. Others run for their homes as when a hawk appears.

Old Stradivarius Violins
It is estimated that Stradivarius made 1,116 instruments between the years 1698 and 1737. Of these, up to recently, 540 violins, 12 violas and 50 violoncellos were actually known, while there are traces of about one hundred more.

Not in Life's Picture
"Youthful imagination," said H. H. Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "is like the picture on yonder billboard. It gives pleasure even though no one can hope that life's performance will reveal anything so resplendent."

Cow Brands on Walls
To immortalize the history of the Texas cow business and its importance as the state's original great industry, 32 famous old brands have been chiseled on the walls of Garrison hall of the state university.

Pressure of Water
For pressure of water in pounds per square inch, multiply the depth in feet by 0.433, or in inches by .036. At a depth of 72 inches, the pressure is 2,598 pounds per square inch.

Rough Language Is Lost
Jud Tunkins says some men remind him of Uncle Jim's parrot, who gets a reputation for being smart by using rough language which doesn't mean a thing.

Rosewood Most Durable
If properly worked, rosewood is most durable. Even after a hundred years' use it may be polished again and look like new, becoming harder with age.

Enemies of Hawks
Purple martens and kingbirds are effective enemies of some hawks, fearfully attacking and driving off those which venture near their nests.

Ghent's "Row of Monuments"
In Ghent, Belgium, there is a "row of monuments" where seven large public buildings stand on almost a straight line of only about 700 yards.

Can Make Many Gum Drops
Gum drops are now made of the fruit pectin from oranges, culls or other discards, which would ordinarily be a loss to the orange growers.

Angora Cats Not Playful
Angora cats are not playful. They maintain a certain dignity at all times. Their sphinx-like quills make them typically oriental.

No Time to Walk
"Don't ax me if I'm afraid to walk past a grave yard," said Uncle Eben. "I never tried it. I always run."

A Proverb
"Coming events cast their shadows before," is really a proverb, and a very old one. Cicero used it.

To Form Raindrop
It takes about 8,000,000 cloud particles to form the average sized rain drop.

Not All Six-Footers
Only one out of 200 American men attains a height of six feet or more.

Manner of Eating
All other creatures, except man, eat in much the same manner, with one eye on the food, and another on the rest of the world. Man alone manages to mix smiles with his dinner.
