Why Tetras Are Smaller

The rosy red Tetra from Rio, when it grows in the streams of Brazil, is 1 1/2 inches long. The tetras seen at dealers' shows rarely run over an inch. This dwarfing is due to artificial life in an aquarium and does not detract from the health or breeding ability of this delightful pet.

Planting the Hotbed

For best results when planting seed in a hotbed the seed should be sown in rows about four to six inches apart. In planting be sure that only four or five seeds are used to the inch, as closer planting will result in crowding. In growing plants in hotbeds, special care must be given to watering and temperature. Too much water is worse than little, so in watering the plants apply just enough to thoroughly wet the soil. Temperature, however, is of prime importance and should be regulated so that the hardy plants, such as cabbage, lettuce, and onions have a day temperature of 60-65 and a night temperature of from 50 to 55. Warm season crops require temperatures of ten degrees higher.

Barley Used for Beer

Only the best two-row barley is used for what are termed high-grade beers. Varieties known as Chevallier, Hanna, and Old Comm are known as the best malting barleys, although other varieties are sometimes used. The cultivation of barley requires great skill. The best malting barleys are grown on light calcareous and sandy loams in warm districts with a moderate rainfall. Alluvial and clay soils produce larger crops, but these are of inferior quality.

Did You Ever Stop to Think —that the farm cows and equipment where your Grade A milk is produced represent an investment of $100,000.

—did you know that our dairy furnishes steady employment to twelve persons?

—did you ever stop to think that we are paying a large amount of taxes, which helps keep up our schools and highways?

—did you know this is the largest and one of the best equipped dairies in Lane county?

If you know all this, then why not buy milk produced on the farm instead of canned milk that is produced by a company that pays no taxes, furnishes no employment and has not the least interest whatever in the community?
