Printers—Office OutfittersShortage of Food in Early PastureImpossible for Dairy Herd to Get Enough to Hold Weight, Strength.

By John A. Arcey, Extension Dairy Specialist, North Carolina State College.—WNU Service.

It is false economy to make cattle depend entirely on pastures for roughage at this season of the year. Yet many dairymen are inclined to do so on account of the usual shortage of rough feeds in the spring. The belief seems prevalent that young grass will supply a sufficient amount of nourishment for the cattle.

Immature grass is about 90 per cent water, and it is physically impossible for cattle to eat enough of it to maintain their bodyweight and strength and produce a profitable milk flow.

Such practices are also liable to result in the cows eating weeds, wild onions, and buds in an effort to get a sufficient ration. When they do this, their milk is unpalatable and not good for drinking or butter making.

Dry roughage provides the bulk feed needed and also much nourishment that is essential to constant and profitable milk production.

Another factor in heavy grazing of young pastures is the damage done to the sod by extensive tramping and grazing before the soil has dried out. The result will be a greatly curtailed yield later in the year.

Temporary grazing can be provided by such grazing and soiling crops as cereals sown in the fall. Later in the summer, when permanent pastures are in good condition, the cows can gradually be introduced to a more substantial green diet. However, a grain ration is needed at all times.

Pasture Seeding for 3-A Contract Acres Suggested

More Illinois land will be seeded to grass during the next two years than ever before in the history of the state, prophesies H. P. Rusk, head of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

This "back-to-grass" movement is spreading throughout the state as a result of the government's cornhog and wheat adjustment programs in which some 2,000,000 acres of land will be taken out of crop production by co-operating Illinois farmers.

A large percentage of this former wheat and corn land will be seeded to permanent or semi-permanent pastures for live stock and many Illinois producers are wondering what grass seeds or mixtures of seeds should be used.

For early live stock carrying capacity of permanent pastures, all records at the University of Illinois were broken by a heavy seeding consisting of 12.3 pounds of bluegrass, 2.5 pounds of red clover, 2.5 pounds of sweet clover, 4.1 pounds of timothy, 1.6 pounds of alfalfa clover and 4 pounds of white clover. This mixture may be used for seeding contracted acres, with out violation of the AAA cornhog contract, provided it is in addition to the average acreage devoted to pasture in 1932 and 1933 and is not pastured in 1934.

Bees Are in Demand

Were it not that honey producing is profitable enough to induce people to keep bees, it would be necessary to raise some type of insect solely for the purpose of pollination, says Dr. E. F. Phillips, professor of entomology at Cornell university. In his recent address to the Empire State Honey Producers' association. So necessary is the service that bees render to the fruit growers of New York state that 800 colonies of them were imported last year to aid in pollination in Niagara county alone, and in other counties throughout the fruit-growing region growers are renting colonies of bees for the purpose. Not only do bees produce a $2,000,000 honey crop annually in New York state but they pollinate more than one-third of the $15,000,000 apple crop as well.

Short Furrows

The world crop of tobacco is about 4,000,000 pounds a year.

Unusually early crops are aiding a strong agricultural situation in California.

For the first time in three years cotton planters of Peru expect to make a profit this season.

With a market value of $53,247,000, tomatoes were California's largest vegetable crop last year.

France is reported to be on an export basis with wheat, although normally she is an import basis.

Approximately 600 farms were sold under foreclosure proceedings during the second six months of 1933 in Ohio.

Mississippi ranks as the twelfth state in the nation in cheese production, manufacturing more than 5,000,000 pounds last year.

Another Market Blowout

Although Ohio's contributions to railroads ceased in 1840, counties were permitted to subscribe to such ventures until 1851, when the new Constitution prohibited all such transactions. While this railroad craze was active, 37 counties invested $4,173,000; 55 townships $1,005,100, and 16 towns $1,072,000. Practically all this investment of public funds was lost, many counties paying on railroad bonds for 30 years when no railroad was built.

Colorings of Salmon

The pink coloring of the flesh of the salmon is believed to be due to the fact that these fishes feed largely on a kind of shrimp of similar hue.
