A NEW DEAL
Although The Sentinel always has been a staunch republican newspaper and expects always to be such, it has consistently supported the present national administration, for reasons which were given at the time it was declared it would give such support.

While The Sentinel will continue support of many features of the New Deal, it reserves the right to criticize adversely as well as favorably. The New Deal has been in effect long enough now so that its virtues and faults are fairly well established.

But there are features deserving severe criticism. Those features which tend to do away with initiative and to arbitrarily regulate prices are faulty, but the outstanding fault of the New Deal, in the opinion of this newspaper, is the uncertainty from day to day as to what new regulations may be imposed.

Imposing arbitrary regulations upon every act of certain forms of business has been extremely irksome and those forms of business have become discouraged. Many of the new taxes seem to have failed of their purpose and are burdensome.

not enjoyed by monarchs has led to assumption of autocratic powers by those in lesser positions throughout the country, and those powers assumed by lesser persons have not been used in as sensible a way as they have been used by the national administration.

The Sentinel believes that the good in the New Deal is now outstanding and its bad features are easily recognizable. A democratic administration, retained in power, would feel compelled to continue both the good and bad.

Now is the time to prepare for two years from now. The way to start the ball rolling is to elect republicans to state office. The Sentinel has no word to say against any of the democratic candidates—it has great admiration for some of them—it sees no reason why democrats shouldn't accept them—but it sees no reason why a republican should scratch a single candidate on the republican ticket.

Perspiration, according to health authorities, reduces the body's salt content to such an extent that measures should be taken to replace the saline content after excessive perspiration. If this be true, we could name a number of persons who have no excuse for being fresh.

The Coos Bay Times has propounded 25 questions to candidates for governor. What is the good of that? Candidates will answer in the way they believe most likely to get the most votes.

The drought-stricken areas probably would be interested in that grass which Mr. Hoover is said to have stated would grow in the streets of the country.

Liquor prices are to be stabilized. When stabilization is needed is after liquor has been sold.

CORRECTION IN REMLETTTER
Cottage Grove, Ore., Aug. 24.—(The Editor)—I have just read my letter and find a little mistake of about $22,000,000,000. It's a mere trifle under normal business conditions, but darn much for the present restricted, congested and undigested, yes, undigested, economic condition.

Wild Yeast Causes Loss to Canned Milk Industry

Wild yeast is one of the greatest enemies of the sweetened condensed milk industry, for destruction of large quantities of processed milk is possible when the yeast enters a condensing plant, notes a writer in the Washington Star. Found growing freely in many plants, the yeast is easily carried inside the buildings whenever a breeze springs up.

In the sweetened milk manufacture, boiling temperature is never attained, and boiling is necessary to kill the yeast spores. Prevention, therefore, is the only remedy. All equipment is not only kept absolutely clean but is treated with sodium hydrochloride which kills the yeast spores if any are present.

Many Raw Materials

The raw materials used in the manufacture of electric lamp globes, gathered from the four corners of the earth, include chromium from Siberia, wool from China, tinstone from Indo-China, Damar gum from East Indies, titanium pigment and bismuth from Australia, cryolite from Greenland, feldspar from Sweden, but now obtained mostly from North Carolina; china clay, fluorspar and barytes from the British Isles, potash from Germany, kieserite from central Europe, manganese from Asia Minor, stannum from Italy, amber from Turkey, cork from Spain, shellac and mica from India, sodium carbonate and gum arabic from Africa; ammonia, nitre and sodium nitrate from South America, antimony from Mexico, and cobalt, nickel and molybdenum from Canada.—Chicago Daily News.
